GENERAL PREFACE

The Carl Nielsen Edition is an independent project under the auspices of the Music Department of the Royal Library, launched in 1994 on the initiative of the Ministry of Culture and funded by the Ministry and the foundation Carl Nielsen og Anne Marie Carl-Nielsens Legat, with further financial support for the publication of the individual volumes from a number of other private foundations.

The edition is for both practical and scholarly use, and is based on critical editorial principles. It comprises all Nielsen's finished works and completed individual pieces, and seeks as far as possible to reflect the works in the version last sanctioned by the composer. In cases where songs exist in several different arrangements by Nielsen, all the versions are published.

Each work is furnished with an introduction which gives a brief account of the genesis of the work and its place in the composer's oeuvre, and a Critical Commentary including source description, editorial emendations and additions, and important alternative readings. The editorial material is published together with the music.

The edition is divided into the three main series Stage Music, Instrumental Music and Vocal Music, each further divided into volumes; within each genre the works are ordered chronologically.

Series I, Stage Music

- Operas
- Incidental music

Series II, Instrumental Music

- Symphonies
- Other orchestral works
- Concertos
- Chamber music
- Piano and organ works

GENERELT FORORD

Carl Nielsen Udgaven er et selvstændigt projekt under Det Kongelige Biblioteks Musikafdeling, iværksat i 1994 på Kulturministeriets foranledning og finansieret af Kulturministeriet og Carl Nielsen og Anne Marie Carl-Nielsens Legat, hvortil kommer støtte fra en række private fonde til udgivelse af de enkelte bind.

Udgaven er til såvel praktisk som videnskabelig brug, tilrettelagt efter kritisk-videnskabelige udgivelsesprincipper. Den omfatter samtlige Carl Nielsens afsluttede værker og enkeltetsatser og søger i videst mulige omfang at afspejle værkerne i den af komponisten senest sanktionerede version. I tilfælde, hvor sange foreligger i flere forskellige arrangementer fra Carl Nielsens hånd, udgives alle versioner.

Hvert værk er forsynet med en indledning, der kort beskriver værkets tilblivelseshistorie og placerer det i den samlede produktion, samt en kritisk beretning, hvor der redegøres for kildesituationen, redaktionelle ændringer og tilføjelser og vigtige varianter. Den kritiske beretning udgives sammen med noteteksten.

Udgaven er opdelt i hovedserierne Scenemusik, Instrumentalmusik og Vokalmusik med tilhørende opdeling i enkeltbind; inden for hver genre er værkerne ordnet kronologisk.

Serie I, Scenemusik

- Operaer
- Skuespilmusik

Serie II, Instrumentalmusik

- Symphonier
- Andre orkesterværker
- Koncerter
- Kammermusik
- Klaver- og orgelværker

Series III, Vocal Music

Cantatas
A cappella choral pieces
Songs and recitations with piano, songs without accompaniment
Songs arranged for vocal soloists and orchestra

Series IV, Juvenilia, Addenda et Corrigenda

Editorial principles

The music is reproduced with no typographical indications of editorial additions or emendations. These are documented in the Critical Commentary. Typography, score disposition, genre names, and instrument names have been normalized in accordance with present-day practice. With a few exceptions, discussed in more detail in the Critical Commentary, the many additions and changes in Nielsen's works that have been made by friends and colleagues have been removed.

Articulation, dynamics, ties and slurs, execution markings and playing instructions have been normalized on the basis of analogies between clearly parallel passages. All such completions are documented in the Critical Commentary. Obvious writing and printing errors have been tacitly corrected.

Nielsen often notated horns and trumpets with key signatures. This practice has been normalized to a notation exclusively using accidentals.

"Muta in" in connection with the retuning of timpani and changes between two instruments (for example clarinet in A and B^b) have been tacitly normalized. This also applies to the combination of ties and slurs.

In Nielsen's manuscripts the dynamic markings are sometimes rather carelessly placed, and this is also reflected in the early printed editions. This has been tacitly adjusted.

Clefs are normally given as in the main source.

Redaktionelle principper

Nodeteksten gengives uden typografisk markering af redaktionelle tilføjelser eller ændringer. Disse er dokumenteret i den kritiske beretning. Typografi, partituropstilling, instrument- og genrebetegnelse er normaliseret efter nutidig praksis. Med enkelte undtagelser, som der er gjort nærmere rede for i den kritiske beretning, er de mange tilføjelser og ændringer i Carl Niensens værker, der er foretaget af venner og kolleger, fjernet.

Nodeteksten er normaliseret med hensyn til artikulation, dynamik, buer, foredragsbetegnelser og spilletekniske anvisninger således, at der er analogi mellem entydige parallelsteder. Alle sådanne kompletteringer dokumenteres i den kritiske beretning. Oplagte skrive- og trykfejl er stiltiende rettet.

Carl Nielsen noterede ofte horn og trompeter med faste fortegn. Denne praksis er normaliseret til notation udelukkende med løse fortegn.

"Muta in" i forbindelse med omstemning af pauker og skift mellem to instrumenter (f.eks. klarinet i A og B^b) er stiltiende normaliseret. Det samme gælder kombinationen af buer og bindebuer.

I Carl Niensens manuskripter er de dynamiske angivelser undertiden placeret noget skødesløst, hvilket afspejler sig i de tidlige trykte udgaver. Dette er stiltiende justeret.

Nøgler gengives normalt som i hovedkilden.

PIANO WORKS

According to his autobiography, Nielsen's first home housed a disused spinet, which served as a kitchen table, and which excited his curiosity when he was allowed a rare glimpse at the broken mechanism.¹ His first encounter with a piano in working condition is not dated, but it is recounted in a section of the autobiography dealing with his life around the age of six. This was the upright instrument at the home of his mother's blind half-brother, Hans Andersen, an organist at Dalum Church near Odense:

"I cannot remember whether I found chords or triads, but with one finger of each hand I played a long succession of sweet thirds, and as my two fingers thus kept company I thought, remembering a snatch of an old song: 'Two thrushes sat on a beech-tree branch'."²

Nielsen also records the influence on him as a teenager of an old pianist named Outzen, from whom he received his first piano lessons in Odense. It was at this time that he saved up his bandsman's pay to buy an old piano, some cheap tutors and some second-hand music, including a Mozart C major Sonata (most likely KV 545) and Book 1 of Bach's Well-Tempered Clavier.³

From 1884 to 1886 Nielsen took piano lessons with Gottfred Matthison-Hansen⁴ at the Royal Danish Academy of Music in Copenhagen, where his first-year report commented: "very prettily played, cantabile and careful in every respect",

KLAVERVÆRKER

Isine erindringer fortæller Carl Nielsen at der i barndomshjemmet fandtes et ubenyttet spinet, der tjente som køkkenbord, og som vakte hans nysgerrighed, når han en sjælden gang fik lov til få et glimt af dets slidte mekanik.¹ Hans første møde med et rigtigt spilbart klaver er ikke dateret, men det beskrives i den del af erindringerne der beskæftiger sig med tiden omkring hans seksårsalder. Det drejede sig om et opretstående klaver hos moderens blinde halvbroder, Hans Andersen, der var organist ved Dalum Kirke nær Odense:

"Jeg husker ikke, om jeg fandt Akkorder eller Treklange, men med en Finger fra hver Haand spillede jeg lange Rækker af søde Tertsgange, og naar mine to Fingre saaledes fulgtes ad, tænkte jeg: 'To Drosler sad paa Bøgekvis'."²

Carl Nielsen fortæller også om hvordan han som teenager mødte en gammel pianist ved navn Outzen og hos ham fik sine første klavertimer i Odense. Det var på den tid han som militærmusiker kunne spare penge op, så han kunne købe et gammelt klaver, nogle billige klaverskoler og nogle antikvariske noder – herunder Mozarts C dur sonate (sandsynligvis KV 545) og første bind af Bachs Wohltemperierte Clavier.³

I årene 1884 til 1886 fik Carl Nielsen klaverundervisning hos Gottfred Matthison-Hansen⁴ på Musikkonservatoriet i København; vidnesbyrdet efter det første år lød således: "meget kjønt foredraget sangbart og omhyggeligt i alle Henseender", og hans udførelse af et af Schuberts Impromptus efter and his playing of a Schubert Impromptu in his third year was described as “clear and precise. Completely secure.”⁵ He never had pretensions to great skill as a pianist, and the repertoire for his annual tests was relatively undemanding.⁶

Nielsen continued to compose at the piano throughout his creative life. Yet by earliest inclination, and notwithstanding several of his teenage years as bugler and alto trombonist in a military band at Odense, he was a violinist. The violin was his first study at the Academy, and it was as a violinist that he earned his living for 16 years in the Royal Theatre Orchestra and enjoyed occasional participation in chamber music-making. A private recording, probably made sometime between December 1920 and 1924 gives a glimpse of Nielsen as pianist, and even briefly (and not entirely convincingly) extemporising.⁷ Only few examples are known of Nielsen performing his own or others’ works in concert as a pianist. On 10 June 1902 at the Svendborg Theatre (Svendborg is on the south coast of the island of Funen) he played his Humoresques for Piano and the Festival Prelude for the New Century.⁸ Another occasion was at a reception held in honour of Nielsen himself at the Danish Embassy in Paris on 22 October 1926, when he played his Humoresque-Bagatelles.⁹ Reports of his pianistic abilities give no indication of hidden prowess. On the contrary, even as staunch a friend and music-making partner as Henrik Knudsen¹⁰ declared that Nielsen’s piano-playing was “hopeless, generally with a vile sound – worse than his violin playing – except for his marvellous musical and artistic intentions.”¹¹

All the same, in his early composing years, and again during the last 15 years of his life, Nielsen composed piano music at fairly regular intervals (during the gap between 1897 and 1916 he produced only two short pièces d’occasion: the trejde år blev beskrevet som “tydeligt og klart. Ret sikkert.”⁵ Han nærede dog ingen ambitioner om at udvikle sig til den store pianist, og repertoireet ved hans årsprøver stillede forholdsvist beskedne pianistiske krav.⁶

I resten af sit liv komponerede Carl Nielsen normalt ved klaveret; han var dog – på trods af ungdomsårenes virksomhed som militærmusiker i Odense – først og fremmest violinist. Violinen var hans hovedinstrument på konservatoriet, og som violinist fik han sit udkomme gennem 16 år i Det Kongelige Kapel og lejlighedsvis som kammermusiker. En privatoptagelse, som formentlig stammer fra perioden mellem december 1920 og 1924, giver et indtryk af Carl Nielsen som pianist – oven i købet i et kort øjeblik også som (ikke særlig overbevisende) improvisator.⁷ Der kendes kun få eksempler på at Carl Nielsen har optrådt offentligt som pianist med egne eller andres værker. På Svendborg Theater den 10. juni 1902 spillede han Humoresker for Piano samt Festpræludium ved Aarhundredskiftet,⁸ og ved en reception afholdt til ære for ham selv på den danske ambassade i Paris den 22. oktober 1926 spillede han sine Humoreske-Bagateller.⁹ Ej heller er der andre vidnesbyrd om at han skulle have eventuelle evner på dette felt. Tværtimod erklærede en af hans bedste venner, kammermusikpartneren Henrik Knudsen,¹⁰ at hans klaverspil var “haabløst, det klang nederdrægtigt i Reglen, værre end Violinspillet, bortset fra alle de musikermæssige og kunstneriske storartede Intentioner.”¹¹

På trods af dette skrev han regelmæssigt klavermusik, både i sine tidlige år som komponist og igen gennem de sidste 15 år af sit liv (i den mellemliggende periode mellem 1897 og 1916 foreligger kun to korte lejlighedsværker, Fest-Prælu-

The performance received a brief review in Fyens Tidende 12.6.1902. Earlier, at a concert in The Private Chamber Music Society on 16.11.1899 Nielsen accompanied the singer Vilhelm Herold in a selection of his own songs (according to the printed programme the concert also included the Sonata for Violin and Piano and the String Quartet in G minor, Op. 13).

Aftenens program blev efterfølgende kort omtalt i Fyens Tidende 12.6.1902. Hertil kommer at Carl Nielsen ved en koncert 16.11.1899 i Privat Kammermusikforening akkompagnerede Vilhelm Herold i et udvalg af sine sange (ifølge det trykte koncertprogram opførtes yderligere violinsonaten, opus 9 og strygekvartetten i g mol, opus 13).

Festival Prelude and A Dream about 'Silent Night'). Five of these works – the Symphonic Suite, Chaconne, Theme and Variations, Suite, and Three Piano Pieces – are of significant scale and achievement, both in terms of Nielsen's oeuvre and of early 20th-century piano music as a whole. Their artistic success has been variously assessed. Adverse criticism of their piano writing dates back to Walter Niemann's book on Nordic piano music.¹² Yet for other commentators the piano works are more revealing than any other genre of the essential Nielsen,¹³ thanks partly to the colouristic limitations of the medium, which throw greater musical weight onto the notes themselves, and partly to the fact that he did not approach the instrument with the preformed instincts of a professionally adept exponent.

Various performers championed Nielsen's piano music in his own lifetime, including Louis Glass,¹⁴ Johanne Stockmarr,¹⁵ Alexander Stoffregen,¹⁶ Christian Christiansen,¹⁷ Herman D. Koppel¹⁸ and, in Germany, Eduard Erdmann.¹⁹ There is anecdotal evidence for their input into certain details of the first published editions, firmly documented in the case of Stoffregen and the Chaconne.²⁰ As a result, two more recent editions of the piano music have in varying degrees favoured returning to Nielsen's manuscripts, with the aim of eliminating other people's modifications of his compositional intentions.²¹ However, in no instance do the surviving sources available to the Carl Nielsen Edition give documentary evidence of the composer's dissatisfaction with the editions published in his lifetime, other dium og Drømmen om 'Glade Jul'). Fem af disse værker – Symphonisk Suite, Chaconne, Thema med Variationer, Suite, og Tre Klaverstykker – er betydelige værker, både set i lyset af Carl Niensens samlede produktion og i lyset af klavermusikken som sådan i begyndelsen af det 20. århundrede. Deres kunstneriske kvalitet er blevet vurderet forskelligt. Kritikken af det pianistiske i værkerne går tilbage til Walter Niemanns bog om nordisk klavermusik.¹² Men for andre kommentatorer¹³ viser klaverværkerne mere end nogen anden genre den egentlige Carl Nielsen, dels som en følge af instrumentets begrænsede klanglige muligheder som derved sætter det musikalske fokus på selve noderne, dels på grund af at han ikke nærmer sig instrumentet med den professionelle virtuos' forudfattede pianistiske tilgang.

Adskillige pianister bidrog til udbredelsen af Carl Niensens klavermusik allerede i hans egen levetid, heriblandt Louis Glass,¹⁴ Johanne Stockmarr,¹⁵ Alexander Stoffregen,¹⁶ Christian Christiansen,¹⁷ Herman D. Koppel¹⁸ og i Tyskland Eduard Erdmann.¹⁹ Ifølge overleveringen foretog flere af dem forskellige indgreb i musikken efterhånden som værkerne blev trykt – hvilket for Stoffregens vedkommende kan dokumenteres ved Chaconne.²⁰ Som en følge heraf har to af de nyere udgaver af klavermusikken forsøgt at bringe musikken mere i overensstemmelse med komponistens manuskripter ved at fjerne den fremmede indgriben og forsøge at komme nærmere til Carl Niensens oprindelige intentioner.²¹ Imidlertid er der intet i det overleverede kildemateriale der dokumenterer, than a few corrections of minor typographical errors. Accordingly, these early editions are taken as the principal sources for the current Critical Edition, with the exception of Op. 59, which was published posthumously, and for which Nielsen's fair copies therefore represent his last documentable intentions. In some instances, minor corrections are to be found in the composer's hand in his copies of the published scores (see the Critical Commentary at the end of the present volume). Where different performance traditions have become established as a result of choice between manuscripts or first editions, the rejected alternatives are shown by musical examples in the list of emendations and by facsimiles at the end of this Preface.

Nielsen's early manuscripts include a number of complete movements for piano. These will be included in the final volume of the Carl Nielsen Edition – Juvenilia, Addenda et Corrigenda. The *Cobbler's Wedding March*²² (Skomagerens Brudevals) is excluded since it is considered to be a composition by Nielsen's father.

FIVE PIANO PIECES, OPUS 3

Nielsen assembled his first published collection of piano pieces during his extended study tour of European cultural centres in 1890-1891. He had apparently completed Nos. 2 (originally entitled Novellette) and 5 (originally Elfentanz) earlier, since these are preserved along with the memoirs of Emilie Demant Hatt²³ and were therefore presumably notated during their times together in the summers of 1887-1889, or perhaps sent to Emilie from Copenhagen as gifts. He noted his progress on several of the others, together with ideas for their publication, in his diary, which he began to keep on 1 September 1890, two days before embarking on a lengthy European tour. On 12 September 1890 in Dresden, he recorded: "Have composed a Piano Piece in A minor: In Folk Style";²⁴ on 27 October, now in Berlin: "Composed 'The Devil' today [original title for No. 3, Arabesque]; Fini²⁵ thinks that it is something completely new in music";²⁶ the next day: "Today I had the idea for publishing my 3-4 piano pieces in the form at komponisten var utilfreds med de udgaver som forelå i hans levetid, når man ser bort fra et mindre antal rettelser af trykfejl. Disse tidlige tryk har derfor udgjort hovedkilderne for nærværende kritiske udgave med undtagelse af opus 59 som først blev trykt posthumt, og hvor Carl Niensens renskrift derfor repræsenterer komponistens seneste, dokumenterede intentioner. I enkelte tilfælde indeholder de trykte udgaver mindre rettelser i komponistens hånd; disse er registreret i den kritiske beretning i nærværende bind. I tilfælde hvor en bestemt opførelsestradition er blevet knæsat som følge af et valg blandt flere manuskripter eller førsteudgaver, er de ikke-valgte alternativer anført som musikeksempler i den kritiske beretning.

Carl Niensens tidlige manuskripter indeholder yderligere et antal satser for klaver; disse vil blive bragt i Carl Nielsen Udgavens afsluttende bind, Juvenilia, Addenda et Corrigenda. *Skomagerens Brudevals*²² er udeladt, eftersom den menes at være komponeret af Niensens far.

FEM KLAVERSTYKKER, OPUS 3

I ndholdet af sin første trykte samling klaverstykker sammenstillede Carl Nielsen under sin store rejse til europæiske kulturcentre i 1890-1891. Han havde øjensynligt allerede tidligere komponeret nr. 2 (oprindeligt med titlen Novellette) og 5 (oprindeligt Elfentanz), eftersom disse er overleveret sammen med Emilie Demant Hatts erindringer²³ og derfor formentlig nedskrevet under deres samvær i årene 1887-1889 eller muligvis sendt til Emilie fra København som gave. I sin dagbog, påbegyndt 1. september 1890 to dage før han drog ud på den lange Europarejse, noterede han hvordan arbejdet med flere af de andre stykker skred fremad, og fremsatte forskellige ideer om hvordan han kunne få stykkerne trykt. Den 12. september 1890 i Dresden skriver han: "Har komponeret et Claverstykke i a moll: i Folketone";²⁴ 27. oktober, nu i Berlin: "Componerede 'Fanden' idag [oprindelig titel på nr. 3, Arabeske]; Fini²⁵ mener det er noget helt Nyt i Musiken";²⁶ den følgende dag: "Har idag faaet Ideen til at udgive mine 3-4 Claverstykker i of travel letters to mother: printed in a kind of letter format with an envelope around them etc.: a kind of diary. The staves should have not quite straight lines and so on, and the whole must look natural”;²⁷ on 2 November: “Wrote to Wilhelm Hansen about the publication of the piano pieces with illustrations by Wivel.”²⁸ On 9 November Nielsen noted “A letter from Wilhelm Hansen, offering to buy the rights to the Piano Pieces and to print them by Christmas.”²⁹ The eventual publication, which came out some time during early 1891,³⁰ did not contain Wivel’s (or any other) illustrations.

As Nielsen’s study tour continued, he garnered positive opinions on the pieces. In Leipzig a certain Herr Wildt singled out the Arabesque as likely to make Nielsen famous in Germany,³¹ while Adolf Brodsky’s favourite was the Humoresque.³² It has not been possible to trace a public premiere performance or an early reception in newspaper reviews.

The first mention of the pieces in Nielsen’s surviving correspondence comes in a letter to Emil Sachs³³ of 23 November 1890, which echoes several of his diary entries and mentions an unidentified publisher, other than Wilhelm Hansen, interested in buying the pieces and the need to hurry in order to meet Hansen’s commitment to publish them by Christmas. This letter elaborates on the third piece:

“The Arabesque is new and composed with Jacobsen’s poem ‘Arabesque’ in mind. All musicians are calling the pieces highly original and ‘märchenhaft’, and a gifted young Finnish composer, Jernfeldt,³⁴ said one day that the Arabesque is something completely new in music. They are all quite short pieces. How do the first two lines of Jacobsen’s poem go?³⁵ Isn’t it:

‘Have you gone astray in the deep woods?
Do you know Pan?’

I’m going to make that the motto for the Arabesque.”³⁶

Under sit studieophold modtog Carl Nielsen en række positive tilkendegivelser om stykkerne; i Leipzig mente en vis Herr Wildt at Arabeske sandsynligvis ville gøre Niensens navn kendt i Tyskland,³¹ mens Adolf Brodsky foretrak Humoreske.³² Det har ikke været muligt at dokumentere den første offentlige fremførelse, ligesom der tilsyneladende heller ikke foreligger nogen omtale i aviserne.

Første gang stykkerne er nævnt i Carl Niensens korrespondance er i et brev til Emil Sachs³³ fra den 23. november 1890, hvori han gentager en række af dagbogsoptegningerne og også nævner, at en anden udgiver end Wilhelm Hansen er interesseret i at købe stykkerne; samtidig understreger han at det haster såfremt Wilhelm Hansens ønske om en udgave inden jul skal imødekommes. Brevet kommer specielt ind på det tredje af stykkerne:

“Arabesken er ny og er komponeret med Jacobsen’s Digt ‘Arabeske’ for Øje. Alle Musikere kalder Stykkerne meget originale og ‘märchenhaft’ og en ung begavet, finsk Componist, Jernfeldt³⁴ sagde en Dag at Arabesken var noget helt Nyt i Musiken. Det er alle ganske smaa Stykker. – Hvordan lyder de to første Linier af Jacobsen’s Digt?³⁵ Er det ikke:

‘Har Du faret vild i de dybe Skove?

De skulde nemlig staa som Motto over Arabesken.”³⁶

The title of Jacobsen's poem refers to the free versification rather than to the content. Nielsen's first heading for the piece, The Devil, picks up on the figure of Pan and perhaps reveals more of the character of the music than does the definitive title.

The day after his letter to Sachs, Nielsen wrote to his former teacher Orla Rosenhoff,³⁷ declaring that the arabesque was the most original thing he had composed.³⁸ Writing back six days later, Rosenhoff expressed the wish to see the pieces in proof, in order to check on the piano writing. Nielsen read the proof on 14 December and sent it to Rosenhoff the following day.³⁹

Other than the two pieces composed before his grand tour, no continuous draft score or fair copy for the Five Piano Pieces appears to survive, though several of the pieces are extensively sketched. A copy of the first edition with Nielsen's pencilled emendations is housed in the Carl Nielsen Museum in Odense (A), and this is the main source for the present edition.

No. 5, Elf's Dance, was later used, under the title Elverdans, in Nielsen's music to Holger Drachmann's play Sir Oluf, he Rides (Hr. Oluf han rider) of 1906, there orchestrated by Julius Röntgen and expanded by a 60-bar middle section with new musical material between bb. 48 and 49.⁴⁰ In connection with the printed edition of four extracts from Hr. Oluf (Wilhelm Hansen 1906) Nielsen transcribed the expanded version of the movement for piano, keeping part of the piano texture from the version in Op. 3. The expanded version from Hr. Oluf is of course not included in the present edition of Op. 3, No. 5, but the new middle section between bb. 48 and 49 will be included in the final volume of the edition, Juvenilia, Addenda et Corrigenda.

SYMPHONIC SUITE, OPUS 8

Composition of the Symphonic Suite followed on from the hugely successful premiere of Nielsen's First Symphony on 14 March 1894. The second movement is dated 23 May 1894, the first 1 August 1894 at Gjorslev Bøgeskov at Store Heddinge in Stevns (Zealand), where Nielsen worked in a rented farmhouse, while his sculptress wife was making studies of animals⁴¹ (she eventually made the design for the front

J.P. Jacobsens titel hentyder til den frie metrik snarere end til digtets indhold. Carl Niensens oprindelige titel Fanden knytter an til Pan-skikkelsen og siger måske mere om stykkets karakter end den endelige titel.

Dagen efter at have skrevet til Sachs skrev Carl Nielsen til sin gamle lærer Orla Rosenhoff³⁷ at arabesken var det mest originale musik, han hidtil havde komponeret,³⁸ hvortil Rosenhoff seks dage senere svarede at han meget gerne ville se et korrekturtryk af stykkerne med henblik på en kontrol af klaversatsen. Carl Nielsen læste korrektur den 14. december, og den følgende dag sendte han trykket til Rosenhoff.³⁹

Bortset fra de to stykker komponeret før studierejsen er der ikke overleveret nogen kladde eller renskrift af Fem Klaverstykker, selvom der er omfattende skitser til flere af dem. På Carl Nielsen Museet i Odense opbevares komponistens eksemplar af førstetrykket med hans egne blyantsrettelser (kilde A), og dette eksemplar danner hovedkilden for nærværende udgave.

No 5, Alfedans, blev senere – med titlen Elverdans – genbragt i Carl Niensens musik til Drachmanns skuespil Hr. Oluf han rider fra 1906, her instrumenteret af Julius Röntgen og udvidet med en 60 takters mellemdel med nyt musikalsk stof mellem klaverudgavens t. 48 og 49.⁴⁰ I forbindelse med den trykte udgave af fire uddrag fra Hr. Oluf (Wilhelm Hansen 1906) transskriberede Carl Nielsen den udvidede version af satsen for klaver med bibeholdelse af den del af klaversatsen som går tilbage til versionen fra opus 3. Den udvidede version fra Hr. Oluf er selvsagt ikke inddraget i nærværende revision af opus 3, nr. 5, idet dog den nye mellemdel mellem t. 48 og 49 vil blive bragt i Carl Nielsen Udgavens afsluttende bind, Juvenilia, Addenda et Corrigenda.

SYMPHONISK SUITE, OPUS 8

Arbejdet med Symphonisk Suite fulgte umiddelbart efter den meget store succes som Carl Nielsen havde oplevet med førsteopførelsen af sin første symfoni den 14. marts 1894. Anden sats er dateret 23. maj 1894 og første sats 1. august 1894 på Gjorslev Bøgeskov ved Store Heddinge på Stevns hvor Carl Nielsen arbejdede i et lejet bondehus, mens hustruen, billedhuggeren, foretog dyrestudier med henblik på fremtidige skulpturer;⁴¹ hun udarbejdede også forsiden til den cover of the first published edition⁴²). Back in Copenhagen he was working on the finale towards the end of August.⁴³

On 17 November he reported to his wife⁴⁴ from Dresden that having failed to meet Brahms in Vienna, he had left the manuscript of the Suite at the great man's house;⁴⁵ but there is no record of Brahms's impressions of the work, despite Nielsen's prompting in a letter of 18 December.⁴⁶

A revealing letter from Nielsen to Klaus Berntsen⁴⁷ of 24 May 1905, in response to a request for details of his working methods and the content of his music in general, discusses Hymnus amoris, The Four Temperaments, Helios, Saul and David and the Symphonic Suite; about the last-named he says:

"In one of my piano pieces ('Intonation' in the 'Symphonic Suite') I allowed myself to be affected by a big old oak tree in Gjorslev. During the period when I was writing the piece I went every day to the tree and received a strong impression, which I then tried to reproduce in a succession of powerful chord progressions in the aforementioned piece."⁴⁸

Nielsen would later remember the time of composition of the Symphonic Suite as one of his happiest, as he wrote in one of his most intense letters to his wife, from the time of their marital crisis: "I think that was a long, marvellous and pure time, and I now want to devote my time to the study of all my works from that time."⁴⁹

The first public performance was given on 4 May 1895 by composer-pianist Louis Glass at the twelfth and last concert of the organisation Symphonia,⁵⁰ alongside quartets by Glass and Gustav Helsted⁵¹ and songs by Nielsen, in the lesser hall of the Koncertpalæ.⁵² The concert programme included an introduction to the work, with four short musical examples; this note is uncredited but was presumably written by, or in consultation with, the composer:

trykte udgave af suiten.⁴² Tilbage i København fuldførte han finalen i slutningen af august.⁴³

I et brev til hustruen⁴⁴ fra Dresden den 17. november meddelte han at det ikke var lykkedes ham at mødes med Brahms i Wien, men at han havde efterladt manuskriptet i den berømte mands hus;⁴⁵ der foreligger dog ingen vidnesbyrd om hvilket indtryk værket gjorde på Brahms på trods af Nielsens anmodninger om en udtalelse i et brev fra den 18. december.⁴⁶

Som svar på en anmodning fra Klaus Berntsen⁴⁷ om at gøre rede for detaljer i den kompositoriske proces og for indholdet af sin musik i almindelighed, gav Carl Nielsen den 24. maj 1905 en indgående redegørelse for arbejdet med Hymnus amoris, De Fire Temperamenter, Helios, Saul og David og Symphonisk Suite; om sidstnævnte hedder det:

"I et af mine Claverstykker ('Intonation' i 'Symfonisk Suite') har jeg ladet mig paavirke af et stort, gammelt Egetræ ved Gjorslev. Jeg gik i de Dage, jeg skrev Stykket, hver Dag til Træet og modtog et stærkt Indtryk, som jeg saa prøvede at gjengive i en Række kraftige Accordfølger i det nævnte Stykke."⁴⁸

Senere erindrede Carl Nielsen tiden omkring kompositionen af Symphonisk Suite som en af sine lykkeligste, således som han beskrev det i et af sine mest intense breve til hustruen fra tiden omkring deres ægteskabelige krise: "Jeg synes det var en lang dejlig og ren Tid og jeg vil nu dyrke alle mine Arbejder fra den Tid."⁴⁹

Den første offentlige fremførelse blev givet den 4. maj 1895 i Koncertpalæets Mindre Sal⁵⁰ af komponist og pianist Louis Glass ved den tolvte og sidste koncert i musikforeningen Symphonia⁵¹ sammen med kvartetter af Glass og Gustav Helsted⁵² og sange af Carl Nielsen. Det trykte program indeholdt en introduktion til værket med fire korte musikeksempler, formentlig skrevet af eller i samråd med Carl Nielsen uden at dette dog fremgår af programmet:

52 Komponist og organist (1857-1924).

“I. The composition begins with a movement in D minor, which in its broad and heavy chord progressions maintains a single thought, mood and nuance (ff) from first note to last.

II. The second movement begins in an undefined tonality, but soon slips unnoticeably into the main key of F major, while the melody continues, supported by peaceful sixths in the left hand:

In the central section the bass takes up a fragment of the main motif and in manifold ways this thought grows and develops until the main motif re-enters and the movement concludes more or less as it began.

III. The theme begins gently in D major and spins itself out in ascents and descents until the conclusion in this key. After a short transition, a new theme enters in F sharp minor which is thoroughly worked out in contrapuntal combinations and strong modulations. At length we come back to the main theme, which enters in new guise and new tonalities until finally a broad coda leads to the conclusion.

IV. The finale's motif searches tentatively in runs and syncopations, until suddenly the theme from the first movement with its heavy chords bursts forth, only to be displaced immediately by motifs from the second and third movements, appearing sometimes separately, sometimes together. The finale motif once more gains the upper hand and, after yet another interruption, ends the movement in A major.”⁵³

“I. Kompositionen indledes med en Sats i d moll, som i brede og tunge Accordfølger fastholder én Tanke, én Stemning og én eneste Nuance (ff) fra første til sidste Note.

II. Anden Sats begynder i en ubestemmelig Toneart, men glider snart umærkeligt over i Hovedtonearten (f Dur), medens Melodien føres videre, understøttet af rolige Sextgange i venstre Haand:

I Mellemsatsen griber Bassen en Stump af Hovedmotivet og paa mangfoldig Vis voxer og udvikles denne Tanke indtil Hovedmotivet atter indtræder og Satsen slutter omtrent som den begyndte.

III. Themaet begynder stilfærdigt i D Dur og spinder sig videre og videre i Stigen og Falden indtil Afslutningen i Tonearten. Efter en kort Overgang indtræder et nyt Thema i fis moll:

som gennem contrapunktiske Combinationer og stærke Modulationer faar en indgaaende Behandling. Omsider kommer man tilbage til Hovedthemaet som optræder i ny Skikkelse og nye Tonearter indtil endelig en bred Coda fører til Slutningen.

IV. Finalens Motiv

famler og søger i Løb og Syncoper, indtil pludselig Themaet fra 1ste Sats med sine tunge Accorder bryder frem for strax igjen at blive fortrængt af Motiver fra 2den og 3die Sats, som snart optræde enkeltvis snart sammen. Finale-Motivet faar atter Overhaand og – efter endnu en Afbrydelse – slutter Satsen i A Dur.”⁵³

A motto from No. 77 of Goethe's Venetian Epigrams (1790) appears at the front of the score, with a dedication to Victor Bendix:⁵⁴ "Ach, die zärtlichen Herzen! Ein Pfuscher vermag sie zu rühren" (Ah, those tender hearts! A bungler could stir them). In the original context the speaker is responding, disdainfully, to the suggestion that it is more noble to "stir a tender heart" than to give oneself over to the natural sciences, such as botany and ophthalmology. Whether that context is relevant to Nielsen's purpose in citing his chosen lines is impossible to determine. At any rate those lines are consistent with his antipathy towards what he regarded as the "softness" of much music of his time, and it was in this sense that they were understood in his lifetime. Indeed the Symphonic Suite as a whole retained an iconic status as an anti-romantic, therefore even proto-modernist, declaration, despite Nielsen's lack of interest in such terminology.⁵⁵

The Goethe motto is not reproduced in the programme note for the premiere, but it may have been announced verbally, since at least one of the reviews mentions it. Many of the critics on this occasion found the work to be forced and contrived; this would become a routine observation in the critical reception of Nielsen's early works.

In Politiken, B. praised the general concept of the event and the dedication of the performances, singling out Glass's advocacy of Nielsen's "in content and technique equally difficult Suite". The reviewer postponed his verdict on the three main works, but noted:

"Remarkable, but also difficult to grasp was Carl Nielsen's Suite, a work from which sparks fly as if from a chiselling hammer, which testifies to the composer's craftsmanship and ability to present it, but perhaps also to too much work on the part of his will. One misses some sense of atmosphere amid the masses of notes in which the Suite abounds."⁵⁶

M. of Aftenbladet was in broad agreement:

"The succeeding 'Symphonic Piano Suite' by Carl Nielsen was splendidly played by Mr. Glass. The first piece, 'Intonation', was powerful and clear like a firm man's will and promised more

Titelbladet på den trykte udgave bærer, udover en tilegnelse til Victor Bendix,⁵⁴ et motto hentet fra nr. 77 i Goethes Venetianske epigrammer fra 1790: "Ach, die zärtlichen Herzen! Ein Pfuscher vermag sie zu rühren". I den originale sammenhæng forholder digteren sig foragteligt til påstanden om, at det skulle være et ædlere forehavende at "røre et følsomt hjerte" end at hengive sig til naturvidenskabelige sysler så som botanik og ophthalmology. Hvorvidt denne sammenhæng har foresvævet Carl Nielsen da han valgte de pågældende linjer som motto, lader sig ikke afgøre, men de står i klar forlængelse af hans modstand mod det, som han betragtede som "blødheden" i sin egen tids musik, og det var sådan de blev forstået af hans samtid. Faktisk har Symphonisk Suite opnået en form for ikon-status som et antiromantisk og dermed "modernistisk" manifest på trods af Carl Niensens mangel på interesse for den slags udtryk.⁵⁵

Mottoet fra Goethe er ikke gengivet i programnoten fra førsteopførelsen, men er muligvis blevet meddelt mundtligt ved koncerten, eftersom i hvert fald en enkelt af anmelderne omtaler det. Mange af anmelderne fandt værket forceret og forskruet; netop sådanne udtryk skulle fremover blive hyppigt brugte når det kom til den kritiske modtagelse af Carl Niensens tidlige værker.

I Politiken roste B. koncertens overordnede programlægning og de udøvenes entusiasme og fremhævede især Glass' præsentation af Niensens "fra Indholdets og Teknikens Side lige vanskelige Suite". Anmelderen tilbageholdt sin vurdering af de tre hovedværker, men bemærkede:

"Mærkeligt, men ogsaa vanskeligt at faa fat paa var Carl Niensens Suite, et Arbejde, af hvilket der staar Gnister som af den mejslende Hammer, der vidner om Komponistens Kundskabsfyldte og Sans for at udfolde den, men vistnok for meget et Viljesarbejde. Noget savner man Stemning i de vældige Tonemasser, hvormed Suiten tumler."⁵⁶

M. fra Aftenbladet var stort set enig:

"Den paafølgende 'Symfonisk Klaversuite' af Carl Nielsen spillede fortræffeligt af Hr. Glass. Det første Stykke 'Intonation' var kraftigt og klart som en fast Mandsvillie og lovede mere end than the rest of the Suite delivered. The audience seemed to find the succeeding Allegretto interesting, but throughout it was hard to follow the very talented composer in his muse's extremely wild flight."⁵⁷

In an uncredited review, Adresse Avisen noted that Nielsen, Glass and Gustav Helsted were the dominant names in Symphonias concerts and hoped that the following season would bring more variety: "Mr Nielsen nearly dumbfounded us with a toccata-like Symphonic Suite for piano in four movements, performed by Mr. Glass. It was by no means a feast for the ears."⁵⁸

The review in Avisen, also uncredited, likewise craved more variety of names on the programme and noted that the audience was not numerous; it also claimed that the three composers all lacked "strong structure" and "inner organic relationships in their work. [...] Mr. Louis Glass performed Carl Nielsen's Symphonic Suite with great energy. The grandiose counterpoint in this work, which piles up its harsh harmonies seemingly chaotically, certainly demands to be heard several times in order to be fully understood."⁵⁹

For København, Sophus Andersen agreed that the concert deserved a larger audience but also noted the uningratiating nature of Nielsen's work.

"Mr. Carl Nielsen's Symphonic Suite for piano is distinguished by an uninhibited energy, which has a more imposing than captivating effect. One discerns in it the hand of an orchestral composer, in that it feels more like a piano arrangement of an orchestral work than a piano piece."⁶⁰

In Berlingske Tidende, H.V. Schytte contradicted his colleagues by claiming that the hall was "well filled". Noting the Goethe motto, he went on:

"This composer's Opus 8 has, as we might expect from those German words, a very serious physiognomy. 'Not only for pleasure'⁶¹ would be much too flattering. If we were to cross den øvrige Del af Suiten holdt. Publikum formaaede vel at finde den paafølgende 'Allegretto' interessant, men gennemgaaende var det for svært at følge den meget talentfulde Komponist paa hans Muses højst vildsomme Flugt."⁵⁷

En usigneret anmeldelse i Adresse Avisen påpegede at Nielsen, Glass og Gustav Helsted var de dominerende navne ved Symphonias koncerter og udtrykte håb om, at den kommende sæson ville udvise større variation: "Hr. Nielsen forbausede nærmest ved en toccata-lignende Symphonisk Suite i fire Afdelinger for Piano, udført af Hr. Glass. Den var under alle Forhold ingen Ørensløst."⁵⁸

I Avisen, ligeledes i en usigneret anmeldelse, krævedes mere variation i programmerne, ligesom det bemærkedes at publikumstilstrømningen var begrænset. Det hævdedes også at alle tre komponister manglede "streng Struktur" og "indre organisk Sammenhæng i Kompositionen. [...] Hr. Louis Glass foredrog Carl Niensens symfoniske Pianosuite med stor Energi. Den stor-slaaede Kontrapunktik i dette Værk, der tilsyneladende kaotisk taarner sine dristige Harmonier, fordrer sikkert at høres flere Gange for fuldt at forstaaes."⁵⁹

I København er Sophus Andersen enig i at koncerten havde fortjent et større publikum, men hæftede sig også ved den lidet indsmigrende karakter der er over megen musik af Carl Nielsen:

"Hr. Carl Niensens symfoniske Suite for Klaver, udmærker sig ved en hensynsløs Energi, der virker imponerende mere end fængslende. Man mærker i den Orkesterkomponisten, ti den føles mere som et Klaverarrangement af et Orkesterarbejde end som Klaverstykke."⁶⁰

I Berlingske Tidende modsiger H.V. Schytte sine kolleger ved at hævde at salen var "ret godt besat med Tilhørere". Med henvisning til Goethes motto fortsætter han:

"Dette Componistens Opus 8, har, som man af disse tyske Ord kunde vente, et meget alvorstfuldt Physiognomi. 'Ei blot til Lyst'⁶¹ vilde være altfor imødekommende Ord. Naar 'blot' out 'only', those words would apply to this symphony for piano, which in Mr. Glass had an admirable interpreter. This composition – based essentially on harmonic and contrapuntal art, extremely difficult and complicated, fundamentally non-pianistic – was played with a conviction, clarity and energy that should command respect. In performing this original work from memory, Mr. Glass, who is so occupied with other activities that his time for playing the piano must be rather limited, achieved such a feat as we will have to wait and see if anyone can emulate. That the composer is no 'bungler' he has likewise often proved earlier, while his disdain for 'the tender hearts' may have gone a little too far in this new opus."⁶²

On 3 February 1898 the Suite was performed, along with the premiere of the Humoresque-Bagatelles, by Adolfa Johnsson⁶³ in the Koncertpalæ's lesser hall,⁶⁴ a well-attended concert that Nielsen had apparently only decided upon a fortnight earlier, and which also included his G minor String Quartet and A major Violin Sonata.⁶⁵ In a letter two days later he thanked Johnsson for her performances.⁶⁶

Critical reception had not noticeably mellowed by this stage. Gustav Hetsch in Nationaltidende mentioned what he considered to be Nielsen's "fear of being ordinary". By implication, and without naming the piece, he placed the Suite in a transitional period in which "the composer has made his life sour by attacks, broodings and experiments".⁶⁷ After calling the Violin Sonata a "somewhat thankless task" for the performers, Nanna Liebmann in Dannebrog commented that "The skilful young pianist Miss Adolfa Johnsson had scarcely any more joy with the tedious Piano Suite."⁶⁸ In Politiken Charles Kjerulf took the single-composer evening as a symptom of Nielsen's insecurity about his reputation. Calling the suite "to say the least awkward", he lumped it in with the Violin Sonata as "for the most part not really music; on the whole merely note-experiments, leading only to emptiness and boredom".⁶⁹

stryges, passe Ordene til denne Symphoni for Claveer, som i Hr. Glass havde en beundringsværdig Fortolker. Den paa harmonisk og contrapuntisk Kunst væsentligst baserede, højest vanskelige og indviklede, i Grunden slet ikke claveermæssige Composition blev spillet med en Overlegenhed, Klarhed og Energi, der maatte vække Respect. Hr. Glass, der er saa optagen af anden Virksomhed, at hans Tid til selv at dyrke Claveerspillet maa være temmelig knap, gjorde ved at foredrage dette eiendommelige Værk udenad et Kunststykke, som vi ville see, om Nogen gjør ham efter. At Componisten ikke er nogen 'Pfuscher' har han her ligesom saa ofte tidligere godtgjort, medens hans Ringeagt for 'die zärtlichen Herzen' i dette nye Opus synes at gaae noget for vidt."⁶²

Den 3. februar 1898 blev suiten opført sammen med førsteopførelsen af Humoreske-Bagateller af Adolfa Johnsson⁶³ i Koncert-Palæets Mindre Sal⁶⁴ ved en velbesøgt koncert som Carl Nielsen øjensynligt først havde planlagt skulle finde sted 14 dage forinden, og som også indeholdt hans g moll strygekvartet og violinsonaten i A dur.⁶⁵ I et brev to dage senere takkede han Johnsson for hendes udførelse.⁶⁶

På dette tidspunkt var kritikken endnu ikke blevet mærkbart formildet. I Nationaltidende beskrev Gustav Hetsch det som han kaldte Niensens "Frygt for at blive almindelig". Følgelig – og uden at nævne værket – placerede han suiten i en overgangsperiode hvori "Komponisten har gjort sig Livet surt under Anfægtelser, Grublerier og Experimenter".⁶⁷ Efter at have kaldt violinsonaten et "lidet taknemmeligt Arbejde" for de udøvende bemærker Nanna Liebmann i Dannebrog at "Den flinke unge Pianistinde Frk. Adolfa Johnsson havde heller ikke stor Glæde af den kjedsommelige Klaversuite".⁶⁸ I Politiken så Charles Kjerulf koncerten med kun én komponist på programmet som et symptom på Carl Niensens usikkerhed omkring sin egen position. "Den mildest talt uhandelige" suite slog han i hartkorn med violinsonaten og beskrev de to værker som "i Virkeligheden kun undtagelsesvis Musik, som Regel Node-Eksperimenter, der ikke frembringer andet Resultat end Tomhed og Kedsommelighed".⁶⁹

By 1907, the Symphonic Suite was nevertheless well established in Danish concert life. Critical response in the press continued to be unfavourable, however. The work featured in another evening devoted to Nielsen's music on 30 November, and the review by Charles Kjerulf – by then a critic of considerable influence – was eloquent in its rejection. Kjerulf berated the composer for his new F major String Quartet (Op. 44) but praised his songs (including the then brand-new Jens Vejmand) as an example of the music he would have liked Nielsen to compose more of. Sharpening his pen, and perhaps not wholly informed as to the correct chronology, Kjerulf continued:

“Of course he immediately repented, and we got ... the Symphonic Suite for Piano, which has been publicly performed many times. It has the motto ‘Ah, those tender hearts! A bungler could stir them.’ Those poor bunglers, who have dared to stir sensitive musical souls. Shame on you, Mozart, Haydn, Wagner and Tchaikovsky! Why not look for another German motto to help us understand this cacophonous Suite: ‘Only fools are modest’. Mr Henrik Knudsen played it with the most outstanding, the most fanatical dedication, from memory. Let's hope it did not stir the audience too much.”⁷⁰

Less sarcastically, but from a similar point of view, Alfred Tofft in Berlingske Tidende noted that the lesser hall in the Koncertpalæ was nearly full. Finding the new Quartet experimental and anxious not to be uninteresting, he echoed the general view of the Symphonic Suite as “ungrateful”, ending with advice to Nielsen to continue to write “from the heart”, as in the strophic songs and choruses performed at the concert, “without fear of getting too far away from himself.”⁷¹

The opening movement, “Intonation”, was arranged for organ by Paul Gerhardt⁷² and published by Wilhelm Hansen in a collection jointly edited by Gerhardt and Max Reger.⁷³ It is not known whether Nielsen had any input into this project.

Source material for the Symphonic Suite consists of sketches, drafts (C) and a fair copy that served also as printing manuscript (B). As with the Five Pieces Op. 3, Nielsen's own copy of the first printed edition survives and has been chosen as the main source (A).

Omkring 1907 havde Symphonisk Suite imidlertid efterhånden opnået en fast plads i dansk koncertliv, selvom musikkritikken vedblev at være negativ. Værket optrådte på endnu en Carl Nielsen-koncert den 30. November, efter hvilken Charles Kjerulf – på dette tidspunkt en kritiker med betydelig indflydelse – udtalte sig i stærke vendinger. Han kritiserede komponisten for hans nye strygekvartet i F dur (opus 44), men roste hans sange (herunder Jens Vejmand) som eksempel på musik han ville ønske Carl Nielsen havde skrevet noget mere af. Med noget skarpere pen og ikke ganske opdateret med hensyn til kronologien fortsatte Kjerulf:

“Selvfølgelig fortrød han det ogsaa straks, og vi fik ... den symfoniske Suite for Klaver, der adskillige Gang[e] før har været fremført offentligt. Den har til Motto ‘Ach, – die zärtlichen Herzen! Ein Phuscher vermag sie zu rühren’. De stakkels Fuskere, der har ovovet at røre følsomme Musik-Hjerter. Skam Jer, Mozart og Haydn, Wagner og Tschaiakowsky! – Hvorfor ikke tage endnu et tysk Sprikwort til Hjælp til Forstaaelsen af denne kakofoniske Suite: ‘Nur die Lumpen sind bescheiden’. – Hr. Henrik Knudsen spillede den med ypperste, mest fanatiske Hengivelse ... udenad. End ikke det rørte Tilhørerne synderligt.”⁷⁰

Mindre sarkastisk, men med samme udgangspunkt, bemærkede Alfred Tofft i Berlingske Tidende at Koncertpaaets Mindre Sal næsten var fuld. Idet han fandt den ny kvartet eksperimenterende og alt for optaget af ikke at være uinteressant, gentog han den almindelige vurdering af Symphonisk Suite som “ikke taknemlig” og sluttede med at tilråde Carl Nielsen at komponere “fra Hjertet” som i de strofiske sange og korene der var blevet opført ved samme koncert, “uden Frygt for at komme for langt bort fra sig selv.”⁷¹

Den indledende “Intonation” blev arrangeret for orgel af Paul Gerhardt⁷² og udgivet hos Wilhelm Hansen i en samling, redigeret af Gerhardt og Max Reger.⁷³ Det vides ikke om Carl Nielsen havde nogen andel i dette projekt.

Kildematerialet til Symphonisk Suite består af skitser, kladder (C) og renskrift, der også tjente som trykforlæg (B). Som det er tilfældet med de fem klaverstykker opus 3, er Carl Niensens eget eksemplar af førstetrykket valgt som hovedkilde (A).

HUMORESQUE-BAGATELLES, OPUS 11

Little is known of the genesis of the six pieces that make up Nielsen's Op.11, though it is generally assumed that they were written with his young family in mind (his daughters Irmelin and Anne Marie and his son Hans Børge, born in 1891, 1893 and 1895, respectively). The first documented mention of the Humoresque-Bagatelles is a letter from the composer to his wife on 12 May 1897, the same day as the completion date on the manuscript, where Nielsen writes that he has sold "the six little piano pieces", along with the Cantata Hymnus amoris, to Wilhelm Hansen for 650 kroner in total.⁷⁴ As with the Symphonic Suite, his wife made the title page, which in the case of the Humoresque-Bagatelles depicts their children playing.⁷⁵ On 6 January 1898 he noted in his diary that the Humoresque-Bagatelles had been published at Christmas.⁷⁶

Neither Charles Kjerulf nor Nanna Liebmann had much to say about the pieces at their first performances, which was given by Adolfa Johnsson on 3 February 1898. The former merely noted that the Humoresque-Bagatelles "are actually out of place in the concert hall. They are pieces on the lines of Schumann's Kinderszenen, but in a much more refined-naïve manner",⁷⁷ while Nanna Liebmann commented that by comparison with the thankless task of the Symphonic Suite, the pianist "took her revenge with the amusing Humoresque-Bagatelles."⁷⁸ Gustav Hetsch reckoned that Adolfa Johnsson "acquitted herself nicely in the capriciously dashed off Humoresque-Bagatelles, which seemed to be intended for children of 30 years."⁷⁹ As mentioned above (p. x) Nielsen himself played his Humoresque-Bagatelles in public a few years later during a theatrical performance at the Svendborg Theatre.

At some time between December 1920 and 1924 (probably nearer to the earlier date), Nielsen made a private recording on wax cylinder of the Puppet March (No. 5) at the home of his friends Vera and Carl Johan Michaelsen. The sound quality is poor, and given the circumstances in which the recording was made, it is scarcely possible to draw any conclusions about the composer's playing or his preferred manner of interpretation. Nielsen's tempo is a little steadier than usually heard (the performance takes 1 minute 24 seconds), the left hand staccatos

HUMORESKE-BAGATELLER, OPUS 11

Der er ikke overleveret megen viden om tilblivelsen af de seks stykker som udgør Carl Niensens opus 11, selvom den almindelige antagelse er at de blev skrevet med henblik på familiens unge (døtrene Irmelin og Anne Marie og sønnen Hans Børge, født henholdsvis 1891, 1893 og 1895).

Den tidligste dokumenterede omtale af Humoreske-Bagateller er et brev til hustruen af 12. maj 1897, samme dag som slutdatoen på manuskriptet, hvor Nielsen skriver at han har solgt "de seks smaa Klaver Stykker" sammen med kantaten Hymnus amoris til Wilhelm Hansen for 650 kroner i alt.⁷⁴ Som det var tilfældet med Symphonisk Suite, udførte hans hustru titelbladet, som viser deres tre legende børn.⁷⁵ Den 6. januar 1898 kan han notere i sin dagbog at Humoreske-Bagateller er blevet udgivet til jul.⁷⁶

Hverken Charles Kjerulf eller Nanna Liebmann havde meget at sige om stykkerne ved deres førsteopførelse af Adolfa Johnsson den 3. februar 1898. Førstnævnte bemærker blot at Humoreske-Bagateller "er egentlig ikke paa deres Plads i en Koncertsal. Det er Stykker i Smag med Schumanns Børne-Scener, men langt mere raffineret naivt gjorde",⁷⁷ mens Nanna Liebmann anfører at pianisten i sammenligning med det utaknemmelige job med udførelsen af Symphonisk Suite "tog siden Revanche med de morsomme 'Humoreske-Bagateller'".⁷⁸ Gustav Hetsch fastslog at Adolfa Johnsson "skilte sig nydelig fra de i et Lune henkastede 'Humoreske-Bagateller', der synes at være bestemte for Børn paa 30 Aar".⁷⁹ Som nævnt ovenfor (s. x) spillede Carl Nielsen selv Humoreske-Bagateller offentligt et par år senere i forbindelse med en teaterforestilling på Svendborg Teater.

På et tidspunkt mellem 1920 og 1924 (formentlig nærmere førstnævnte årstal) foretog Carl Nielsen en privat indspilning på den tidligere omtalte voksvalse af Dukke-Marsch (No. 5), mens han var på besøg hos vennerne Vera og Carl Johan Michaelsen. Indspilningskvaliteten er yderst ringe, og det er næppe muligt at drage nogen konklusion med hensyn til komponistens klaverspil eller hans foretrukne udførelse af stykket. Tempoet er lidt roligere end man normalt hører det (udførelsen varer 1 minut og 24 sekunder), venstre hånds staccati er sløret are disguised by pedal, and he has a lapse of memory in bb.21-23. The cylinder is housed at the State and University Library, Århus, which initiated the complex restoration process and issued the results on compact disc (source E).⁸⁰

Surviving manuscript sources consist of pencil sketches (C) and an ink fair copy (B) which also served as printing manuscript. The composer's copy of the first printing (A), with his own annotations in three of the pieces, is in the Carl Nielsen Museum, Odense, and is taken as the main source.

FESTIVAL PRELUDE FOR THE NEW CENTURY

There is no documentary source describing the background to Nielsen's work on the Festival Prelude. The piece was dedicated to his friend, Jens Ferdinand Willumsen,⁸¹ and was first published on the front page of Politiken on New Year's Day 1901.⁸² Its first public performance was given by Dagmar Borup⁸³ at the Koncertpalæ on 4 March 1901.⁸⁴ It has been variously arranged for organ (at least twice) and other instruments.⁸⁵

Politiken's Charles Kjerulf made a brief mention of the piece in his review of the concert, noting of Dagmar Borup's performance of the Symphonic Suite and the Festival Prelude:

"She even had the courage to play two pieces from Nielsen's virtually notorious Suite for Piano, and the woman really took hold of it with firm faith, though without convincing us that it is music. Whereas the Festival Prelude – which came out in Politiken's New Year's Day issue – is truly genuine in its stately bearing."⁸⁶

FEST-PRÆLUDIUM VED AARHUNDREDSKIFTET

Der findes ingen dokumentation for baggrunden for Carl Niensens arbejde med Fest-Præludium. Stykket blev tilegnet venen Jens Ferdinand Willumsen⁸¹ og blev første gang offentliggjort på forsiden af Politiken nytårsdag 1901 som faksimile i komponistens egen hånd.⁸² Førsteopførelsen ved Dagmar Borup⁸³ fandt sted i Odd Fellow-Palæets Mindre Sal den 4. marts 1901.⁸⁴ Stykket er siden blevet arrangeret for orgel (mindst to gange) samt for andre instrumenter.⁸⁵

Politikens Charles Kjerulf giver en kort omtale af stykket i forbindelse med sin anmeldelse af hele koncerten; om Dagmar Borups udførelse af Symphonisk Suite og Fest-Præludium hedder det:

"Hun havde endog det Mod at spille to Stykker af Carl Niensens nærmest berygtede Suite for Piano og Fruen tog saamæn[d] fat paa den med haandfast Tro – dog uden at faa os overbevist om, at dette er Musik. Dagens Nyheder noted merely that the piece “was well in keeping with the two previously performed extracts from the ‘Symphonic Suite’ Op. 8”.⁸⁷

From the first printed edition it can be deduced that the manuscript version reproduced in facsimile in Politiken (B) also served as the printer’s copy, since both sources have the same inconsistencies in articulation. The composer’s copy of the Wilhelm Hansen printed edition (A) has been chosen as the main source.

A DREAM ABOUT ‘SILENT NIGHT’

Nothing is known about this piece, beyond the fact that the draft score is dated 3 December 1905 and that it was composed for a collection of Christmas album pieces published by the Society of Danish Composers (Dansk Tonekunstnerforening).⁸⁸ Draft and fair copy (used as printing copy) survive, and these and the first printed score (A, taken as the main source) are in almost complete agreement.

CHACONNE, OPUS 32

On 19 December 1916 Nielsen wrote to his elder daughter Irmelin (he was spending Christmas away from his family because of his marital crisis):

“and I have begun the first days of my holiday by embarking on a large Chaconne for piano, which I am already well along with. You probably know that the passacaglia and chaconne forms are more or less the same: a fundamental theme or bass that is varied in numerous ways. I think this piece will grow strong and big over Christmas; just for now it greatly amuses me to give my fantasy free rein within these fixed periods (8 bars in a moderate 3/4 metre). You must know Bach’s beautiful Chaconne for solo violin. If I could reach up to his shoulders with mine for piano!”⁸⁹

On 18 January 1917 he told Irmelin that the work was finished: “a really big piece, and I think effective.”⁹⁰

Af førstetrykket fremgår at Politikens faksimile fra 1901 (B) har tjent som trykforlæg, idet de samme inkonsekvenser i artikulationen findes i såvel førstetryk som faksimile. Komponistens eksemplar af den trykte udgave hos Wilhelm Hansen (A) er valgt som hovedkilde.

DRØMMEN OM ‘GLADE JUL’

Om dette stykke vides ikke andet end at kladden er dateret 3. december 1905, og at det er komponeret til en samling med julemusik udgivet af Dansk Tonekunstnerforening.⁸⁸

Kladde og renskrift (trykforlæg) er bevaret, og disse svarer med få undtagelser til den trykte version (A) som er valgt som hovedkilde.

CHACONNE, OPUS 32

Den 19. december 1916 skrev Carl Nielsen til sin ældste datter Irmelin (han tilbragte julen adskilt fra sin familie som følge af en ægteskabelig krise):

“jeg har begyndt, mine første Feriedage med at paabegynde en stor Ciaconne for Klaver, som jeg er godt igang med. Du ved nok at Passacaglia og Ciaconne-Formen er næsten ens; et til Grund liggende Thema eller Bas som varieres paa mangfoldige Maader. Jeg tænker den skal vokse sig stærk og stor nu i Julen, foreløbig morer det mig meget at slippe min Fantasi løs indenfor disse bundne Perioder (8 Takter i maadelig 3/4 Takt). Du kender jo Bachs dejlige Ciaconne for Solo-Violin. Kunde jeg naa ham til Skuldrene med min for Klaver!”⁸⁹

18. januar 1917 kunne han fortælle Irmelin at værket var færdigt, og at det er “et ret stort Stykke og jeg tror virkningsfuldt.”⁹⁰

The Chaconne was premiered by Alexander Stoffregen on 13 April 1917, in the second of Nielsen's two concerts of Danish songs with his collaborator Thomas Laub,⁹¹ an event widely reviewed in the Danish press. On 19 April the composer himself told Irmelin that Stoffregen "had had great success with it".⁹² For their part, however, reviewers tended to mention the Chaconne only as a footnote to the main business of the concert.

B.W.G. called it "an interesting work, but one which needs to be heard several times before one can become completely familiar with its details. Mr Stoffregen performed the work with authority and no mean pianistic proficiency."⁹³ Axel Kjerulf⁹⁴ simply called it "a welcome instrumental contrast [to the vocal items in the concert]... a fresh and characterful work".⁹⁵ Emilius Bangert found the Chaconne "very heavy and rather stale, not least in its abstruse piano writing".⁹⁶ An anonymous reviewer simply labelled it "interesting, intricate, old-fashioned music".⁹⁷ The most extended review of the Chaconne was from Gustav Hetsch:

"It held the audience's attention the whole time with its many surprises, especially at the beginning, which we would like to have heard again in order to gain a better appreciation of the connections and details. Unfortunately, however, it was not the beginning but the much more easily assimilable conclusion that was repeated after the applause. This much is nevertheless clear: that Nielsen has here produced an interesting and original work in a new field for him."⁹⁸

These judgments were echoed in summary form two days later in an anonymous notice in Social-Demokraten: "original and interesting".⁹⁹

On 11 February 1918, Christian Christiansen played the Chaconne during a concert of Nielsen's orchestral works including the premiere of Pan and Syrinx, and The Inextinguishable. Charles Kjerulf noted the ovation for Christiansen and described the piece as "a genuine Carl Nielsen piano-experiment, Chaconne blev førsteopført af Alexander Stoffregen den 13. april 1917 ved den anden af to koncerter med danske sange skrevet af Carl Nielsen og hans samarbejdspartner, Thomas Laub,⁹¹ en begivenhed som vandt genklang i den danske presse. 19. april fortalte komponisten selv Irmelin at Stoffregen "gjorde stor Lykke" med værket.⁹² Hvad angår anmelderne nøjedes de imidlertid med at nævne Chaconne som en fodnote ved koncerten.

B.W.G. omtalte det som "et interessant Værk, som dog bør høres flere Gange, for at man fuldt ud kan blive fortrolig med dets Enkeltheder. Hr. Stoffregen foretog Værket med Myndighed og en ikke ringe pianistisk Dygtighed."⁹³ Axel Kjerulf⁹⁴ kaldte det blot "en kærkommen instrumental Afveksling [for koncertens vokale numre]... et friskt og karakterfuldt Arbejde."⁹⁵ Emilius Bangert fandt Chaconne "meget tungt og noget ufrisk, ikke mindst ved sin knudrede Klaverbehandling",⁹⁶ og en anonym anmelder betegnede det simpelt hen som "interessant, snørklet, gammeldags Musik."⁹⁷ Den mest indgående anmeldelse kom fra Gustav Hetsch:

"Den holdt Tilhørerne i Aande hele Tiden ved sine mange Overraskelser, navnlig i Begyndelsen, som vi ønskede at kunne høre igen for at faa bedre fat paa Sammenhængen og Enkelthederne. Desværre blev det imidlertid ikke Begyndelsen men den langt lettere overskuelige og tilegnelige Slutning der gentoges efter Bifaldet. Saa meget syntes dog givet, at Carl Nielsen her paa et ham nyt Felt har frembragt et interessant og ejendommeligt Arbejde."⁹⁸

Disse vurderinger blev gentaget i kort form to dage senere i en anonym notits i Social-Demokraten: "ejendommelig og interessant".⁹⁹

Den 11. februar 1918 spillede Christian Christiansen Chaconne ved en koncert med orkesterværker af Carl Nielsen, heriblandt Det Uudslukkelige og førsteopførelsen af Pan og Syrinx. Charles Kjerulf hæftede sig ved bifaldet til Christiansen og bea contrapuntal piano study without the slightest recourse to ‘pianistic writing’ or any of the grand piano’s richness of colour. Everything is just calligraphy, lines and curves, but it’s the most attractive, neatest, old-fashioned ornamentation.”¹⁰⁰ Kjerulf had recently become something of a convert to Nielsen’s music, and this review signals a shift in the tone of critical reception of his piano works.

Christiansen is reported to have been given licence by the composer to alter anything in the Coda to the Chaconne that he felt to be pianistically uncomfortable. However, he left the passage in question unchanged.¹⁰¹ Stoffregen later claimed responsibility for the two low bass notes at the end of the scale passages and preceding the final chord, which, Nielsen apparently sanctioned and which appear in the first printed edition, but which Stoffregen came to believe misrepresented the composer by introducing a mannerism deriving from the romantics and Franck and Debussy.¹⁰² It has not proved possible to determine who was responsible for other extensive differences in keyboard layout between fair copy and first printing, though it is widely assumed to have been Stoffregen.¹⁰³

In the absence of any evidence for Nielsen’s disapproval of these changes, the first printed edition (A), published by Wilhelm Hansen in 1917, is taken as the main source. The composer’s own copy of the Chaconne – as of all the subsequent piano works – has not been preserved in archives.

Further sources for the Chaconne are a draft score (C), possibly made without prior sketching, and a fair copy (B), which shows no sign of having served as printing copy (the latter must be presumed lost). The fair copy was presented by Nielsen to the Royal Academy of Music in Stockholm in 1924, having left it to the Swedish composer Bror Beckman¹⁰⁴ skrev stykket som “et ægte Carl Niensens Klaver-Eksperiment, en kontrapunktisk Piano-Studie med den mindste Anvendelse af ‘Klaversats’ eller overhovedet Flyglets Rigdom af Klangfarver. Alt kun Tegning, Streger og Sving, men den nydeligste, sirligste, gammeldags Ornamentik”.¹⁰⁰ Kjerulf var på dette tidspunkt blevet en stærk tilhænger af Carl Niensens musik, og denne anmeldelse indvarsler et skift i den kritiske modtagelse af hans klaverværker.

Det siges at Christian Christiansen havde fået lov til af komponisten at ændre alt det i codaen, som han måtte finde pianistisk uhensigtsmæssigt; han lod dog den pågældende passage forblive som den var.¹⁰¹ Senere påtog Stoffregen sig ansvaret for tilføjesen af de to dybe bastoner i slutningen af skalapassagen før den afsluttende akkord – en ændring som Carl Nielsen tilsyneladende anerkendte, og som er gengivet i førstetrykket, men som Stoffregen senere mente passede dårligt til komponistens stil, fordi den indførte en stilkliche der stammer fra romantikere som César Franck og Debussy.¹⁰² Det har ikke været muligt at fastslå hvem der var ansvarlig for andre afvigelser i klaversaten mellem renskriften og førstetrykket, selvom det almindeligvis hævdes at have været Stoffregen.¹⁰³

Da der ikke foreligger vidnesbyrd om Carl Niensens afstandtagen fra disse ændringer, er førstetrykket (A), udgivet af Wilhelm Hansen i 1917, valgt som hovedkilde. Komponistens eget eksemplar af førstetrykket er gået tabt, således som det også er tilfældet med alle de andre efterfølgende klaverværker.

De øvrige kilder til Chaconne består af kladden (C), formentlig udarbejdet uden forudgående skitser, og renskriften (B) som ikke viser nogen tegn på at have været benyttet som trykforlæg (et sådant er formentlig gået tabt). I 1924 skænkede Carl Nielsen renskriften til Kungliga Musikaliska Akademien i Stockholm efter forinden at have overladt det til den svenske komponist Bror Beckmans¹⁰⁴ afgørelse om han vil beholde to decide whether to keep the manuscript or to pass it to the Academy.¹⁰⁵ In a letter of 1 February 1924 Beckman thanked Nielsen for the manuscript and continued: “Of course I have given the manuscript of the Chaconne to the library of the Academy, where it will be considered a treasure.”¹⁰⁶

THEME AND VARIATIONS, OPUS 40

Barely two months after finishing the Chaconne, Nielsen embarked on another piano work embodying the variation principle. On 22 March 1917 he wrote to Irmelin:

“I have had a lot to do, and I’ve also begun a new piano work, a Theme and Variations, which interests me enormously. The theme begins in B minor and ends in G minor. It follows that every time a new variation begins we are refreshed again. I’ve often thought that variation works can be tonally monotonous, and this is a way round the problem. But now I have to put this work to one side for a while. Because yesterday I accepted a commission for a cantata and I will get so much money for it that I cannot in all decency say no.”¹⁰⁷

The first performance was given by Alexander Stoffregen in the larger hall of the Koncertpalæ on 29 November 1917 in an evening of Nielsen’s music. Stoffregen’s performance was unanimously praised, but reaction to the new piano work was still equivocal. Most positive was B.W.G., who noted that the Variations were “built on a theme which in its simple form and remarkable modulatory content was original in its effect”. His following comment placed the work in the line of the Saul and David excerpts, the Second Symphony, and Saga Dream, heard in the same programme:

“One has the impression that Nielsen is progressing further and further. He is not like anyone else. He has the gift for finding what is valuable and genuine, and if he makes demands on those who would like to enjoy his treasures, then it is worth the trouble.”¹⁰⁸

originalmanuskriptet, eller om han vil overdrage det til akademiet.¹⁰⁵ I brev til Carl Nielsen af 1.2.1924 takker Bror Beckman for manuskriptet og fortsætter: “Helt naturligt har jeg overlånat manuskriptet til Ciaconnen till akademiens bibliotek, där det kommer at betraktas som en skatt.”¹⁰⁶

THEMA MED VARIATIONER, OPUS 40

Knap to måneder efter at have afsluttet Chaconne påbegyndte Carl Nielsen endnu et klaverværk byggende på variationsprincippet. 22. marts 1917 skrev han til Irmelin:

“Jeg har haft meget at gøre og har desuden begyndt paa en nyt Klaverværk et Thema med Variationer, som interesserer mig i sjelden Grad. Themaet begynder i h moll og ender [i] g moll[;] deraf følger at hvergang en ny Variation begynder friskes man op ogsaa af den Nye. Variationsværker kan, synes jeg, ofte virke monotont i tonal Henseende, det undgaaes paa denne Maade. Men nu maa jeg lægge dette tilside i nogen Tid. Jeg har nemlig taget imod en Bestilling paa en Kantate igaar og skal have et saa vældigt Honorar at jeg ikke kan forsvare at sige nej.”¹⁰⁷

Førsteopførelsen ved Alexander Stoffregen fandt sted ved en Carl Nielsen-aften den 29. november 1917 i Odd-Fellow Palæets Store Sal. Stoffregens udførelse vandt almindelig anerkendelse, men modtagelsen af det nye klaverværk var stadig blandet. Mest positiv var B.W.G. som bemærkede, at variationerne var “bygget over et Tema, som gennem sin enkle Form og sit mærkværdige modulatoriske Indhold var af en ejendommelig Virkning”, og i det følgende placerede han værket på linje med uddrag fra Saul og David, den anden symfoni samt Saga-Drøm som alle stod på programmet ved samme koncert:

“Man har paa Fornemmelsen, at Carl Nielsen stadig gaar videre og videre. Han er nu engang ikke som andre. Han har Evnen til at finde det lødige og ægte, og stiller han end Fordringer til den, der vil nyde godt af hans Fund, saa lønner det sig at paatage sig Besværet.”¹⁰⁸

Charles Kjerulf, despite expressing his recent conversion to Nielsen's cause in extravagant praise for the symphony and the tone poem, called the Variations merely a succès d'estime:

“even though Mr Alex. Stoffregen played them extremely beautifully. But they were and are genuine Nielsenish experiment-music, which at times could sound poetic – almost inadvertently – but for the most part sounded mathematical, without any natural connection with the ear. Nielsen and the piano have never been really good friends.”¹⁰⁹

Emilius Bangert noted that:

“The theme was superbly set out and provided the seed for 16 variations, full of brilliant invention, including a two-voice canon. Nielsen's famous audacity was not to be denied – especially in the last variations, which on first acquaintance seemed rather outlandish.”¹¹⁰

Sophus Andersen contrasted the Theme and Variations unfavourably with the “inspiration” of Saga Dream:

“It is a remarkably tortuous piece, which certainly must have interested the composer to work on at home – ‘interesting’ as it is, but intellectualised and unnatural in its sounds and not very flattering for the piano.”¹¹¹

On 23 December 1920 Nielsen received a letter from his friend Julius Röntgen,¹¹² thanking him for the present of, presumably, a published score. This letter is interesting not only as a document of reception history but for the response it elicited from the composer – one of his most candid statements concerning the creative process. Both documents therefore deserve quotation in extenso. Röntgen wrote:

“Warmest thanks for your Christmas present of the Variations, which have given me great, serious pleasure. I have been studying them thoroughly over the last few days and now want to give you my impression, just as I have received it from the work. Perhaps my judgment on the details that

Charles Kjerulf, som ellers havde givet udtryk for sin nylige omvendelse til Carl Niensens sag i en overstrømmende begejstret omtale af symfonien og tonedigtet, kaldte blot variationerne for en begrænset succes der dog blev spillet “overordentlig smukt” af Stoffregen:

Emilius Bangert bemærkede at “Temaet var ypperligt fremsat og dannede Kimen til 16 Variationer, fulde af aandrige Paafund, bl.a. en henrivende tostemmig Kanon. Carl Niensens berømte Dristighed nægtede sig intet – især i de sidste Variationer, som i første Omgang syntes noget uden for Lands Lov og Ret”,¹¹⁰

og Sophus Andersen savnede i Tema med Variationer den “inspiration” som han havde mødt i Saga-Drøm:

“Det var et underlig forvredent Arbejde, som sikkert har interesseret Komponisten at sidde at arbejde med hjemme, ‘interessant’ som det er, men udpønsket og unaturligt i sine Klange og lidet flatterende for Klaveret.”¹¹¹

Den 23. december 1920 modtog Carl Nielsen et brev fra vennen Julius Röntgen,¹¹² hvori denne takkede ham for at have sendt ham noderne – formentlig den trykte udgave. Dette brev er interessant, ikke alene set fra et receptionshistorisk synspunkt men også på grund af det svar som det foranledigede fra komponisten – et af hans mest åbenhjertige udsagn om den kreative proces. Begge dokumenter fortjener derfor at blive gengivet in extenso.

still bother me will change with closer study. But the overall impression is that it's a most important work, entirely worthy of you. Everything about it is solid and masterly. I admire the strictness with which the theme is varied, which for me is the only correct application of variation form, just as Bach (Goldberg Variations) Beethoven and Brahms used it. A work such as Schumann's Symphonic Studies doesn't really consist of variations; it's just free fantasising on the theme, just as Reger does in his (beautiful!) Bach Variations and similar works.

With you we never lose the theme for a moment, and that makes the great variety of the variations all the more admirable. It's much harder to be inventive within the demands of the theme than when one renounces it. The fact that we sometimes need more brain than heart to bring this off may be unavoidable.

The theme itself is splendid in its firm melody and the most interesting and yet so natural harmonic-modulatory progression. By taking the path from B minor through F minor to G minor, the danger that all the Variations stay in the same tonality and that the whole thing could therefore become monotonous, is very felicitously avoided. Admittedly one waits in vain for some major-mode sunshine and lyricism, and so the whole thing becomes somewhat harsh, which was doubtless your intention in any case.

I find the double variation 7 and 8 the most beautiful of all. These and the following variations (9 and 10) are the only ones where you modulate away from the theme (though the structure is strictly maintained!). One could make a new series of variations on Variation 7 and use it as an independent theme. Maybe I'll do it sometime: I find the piece so very deep and beautiful!

Variation 13, with its ostinato figure in the right hand against the bass theme, is highly entertaining. Long live the logic whereby F minor, C major, D flat major, B flat minor and so on harmonise so naturally with B minor. Later on there are certainly some tougher misalliances, such as in Variation 15, bar 16 (F minor, F sharp minor, G minor), which don't exactly caress the ear, but which are still completely defensible.

gen habe. Vielleicht ändert sich bei noch genauerem Studium mein Urtheil über einige Details, die mich jetzt noch befremden. Der Gesamteindruck ist aber, daß es ein höchst bedeutendes, ganz Deiner würdiges Werk ist. Alles steht fest und mit vollkommener Meisterschaft dar.

Ich bewundere die Strenghheit mit der das Thema variiert ist, für mich die einzig richtige Anwendung der Variationenform, so wie Bach (Goldberg Variat.) Beethoven und Brahms sie gebraucht haben. Ein Werk wie Schumanns Symph. Etuden sind doch eigentlich keine Variationen, es ist ein freies Phantasi[e]ren über das Thema, ebenso wie es Reger in seinen (schönen!) Bachvariationen und ähnlichen Werken thut.

Bei Dir verliert man das Thema keinen Augenblick, um so mehr ist dann die grosse Verschiedenheit der Variationen zu bewundern. Es ist viel schwerer unter dem Zwang des Themas zu erfinden als wenn man sich davon lossagt. Dass dabei manchmal mehr Kopf als Herzarbeit nöthig ist, ist freilich unvermeidlich.

Das Thema selbst ist prachtvoll in seiner festen Melodie, u. dem höchst interessanten u. doch so natürlichen harmonisch-modulatorischen Gang. Durch den Weg von h moll über f moll nach g moll wird die Gefahr, dass alle Variationen in einer Tonart stehen u. das Ganze dadurch monoton werden könnte, sehr glücklich umgangen. Freilich etwas Dur-Sonnenschein und Lyrik erwartet man vergebens, dadurch bekommt das Ganze etwas sehr Herbes, was jedenfalls in Deiner Absicht gelegen hat.

Am Schönsten finde ich die Doppelvariation 7 und 8. Diese und die folgenden (9 und 10) sind die einzigen wo Du modulatorisch abweichst von dem Thema (die Struktur bleibt streng bewahrt!). Man könnte über Var. 7 eine Reihe neuer Variationen machen u. sie als selbständiges Thema gebrauchen. Vielleicht thue ich es einmal: ich finde das Stück so besonders tief und schön!

Sehr morsomt ist Var. 13 mit der Ostinatofigur in der rechten Hand gegen das Thema-Bass. Es lebe die Consequenz, wodurch f moll, C dur, Des dur, b moll u.s.w. so natürlich mit H moll zusammenklingen. Später kommts allerdings noch zu schlimmeren Mesalliancen, z.B. in Var. 15 Takt 16 f moll, fis moll, g moll, die dem Ohr nicht gerade schmeicheln, aber logisch vollkommen zu vertheidigen sind.

Precisely because of this logic, so strictly maintained, I find it a pity that in Variation 13 you sacrifice the ostinato in the last bar and end with G in the right hand. That destroys the ostinato effect for me. Why not:

The last two variations bring a massive accumulation, which reaches its high point in the coda, where the composer finally gets 'drunk'. The 'Come ubbriaco' is just crazy! After that, however, the B major conclusion tails off – I wish something else had occurred to you after you were no longer 'Come ubbriaco'.

So far (and maybe I'll change my mind on this) I find the conclusion dull, also because the theme is varied there without gaining any new meaning.

Well, now I've got all this off my chest, and you can see from the above how much the piece has got hold of and delighted me. Thanks once again for it."¹¹³

This letter prompted Nielsen to one of his most revealing self-justifications (3 January 1921):

"I thank you with all my heart for your interesting, thought-provoking letter. It's splendid to be understood, and kept up to the mark by a fellow-artist with critical or instructive comments, so that in defending oneself one is provoked to reflection.

I'll get on to the matter of the Variations, but first I want to mention a few words of Leonardo da Vinci, where he talks about intelligent criticism (from the German translation of his Treatise on Painting): 'We know how much man can deceive himself about his own achievements... So be willing to listen to the opinions of others. Look carefully and consider whether the fault-finder is right to find fault with you. If you think he is, then make corrections; if not, then behave as though you haven't heard or understood, or, if it's a man you respect, then bring him round by reason to realise that he is in error.'

113 DK-Kk, CNA, I.a.b.19.

Gerade wegen dieser so streng behandelten Logik finde ich es schade, dass Du im Var. 13 im letzten Takt das 'Ostinato' opferst und mit g in der rechten schließt. Das zerstört mir den ganzen Ostinato Effekt. Warum nicht:

Die beiden letzten Variationen bringen eine große Steigerung, die ihren Höhepunkt erreicht in der Coda, wo der Componist schließlich wie 'besoffen' wird. 'Come ubbriaco' wirkt ganz toll! Danach fällt aber der H dur Schluß ab – ich möchte, dass Dir da noch etwas Anderes eingefallen wäre, nachdem Du nicht mehr 'Come ubbriaco' bist.

Bis jetzt (vielleicht werde ich noch anderer Meinung) finde ich den Schluß matt, auch weil das Thema verändert wird, ohne dass es dadurch an Bedeutung gewinnt.

So, nun habe ich mir alles vom Herzen geschrieben und Du siehst daraus, wie sehr mich das Stück gefeßelt und gefreut hat. Nochmals danke ich Dir dafür!"¹¹³

Carl Niensens svar i brev af 3. januar 1921 er som nævnt en af hans mest ærlige selvvurderinger :

"Jeg takker af ganske Hjerter for dette indholdsrige og tankevækkende Brev. Det er herligt at blive forstaaet og det er godt at blive holdt til Ilden af en jevnbyrdig Kunstner ved kritiske eller belærende Bemærkninger, som man saa atter (ved at forsvare sig) bliver vakt til Eftertanke ved.

Jeg gaar nu lige til Sagen angaaende Variationerne, men vil først anføre nogle Ord af Leonardo da Vinci, hvor han taler om forstaaende Kritik (Tysk Oversættelse af hans Traktat over Maleri): 'Wir wissen, wie sehr der Mensch sich bei seinen eigenen Leistungen täuscht – So sei also bereitwillig anderer Meinung anzuhören. Schau wohl zu und überlege es dir, ob der Tadler recht hat dich zu tadeln. Findest du ja, so verbessere, findest du nein, so gib dir das Ansehen, als habe du's nicht gehört oder verstanden, oder aber, ist es ein Mann, den du hochachtest, so bringe ihn mit Vernunftgründen zu Einsicht, das er sich täuscht.'

113 DK-Kk, CNA, I.a.b.19.

First of all I must ask you to correct a printing error, namely on page 13, bar 3, where the middle part in the right hand should read:

You're right to say that Variation 7 deviates from the theme harmonically, and that one might go on to compose new variations on it. That's exactly what I have done. Variations 8, 9 and 10 are based precisely on the harmonisation in Variation 7, although such that the progression in Variation 10 is much veiled or expanded. There are two bars in Variation 10 for every one in Variation 7, and with that there also results a shift in the phrasing, given that the one is in 4/4, the other in 3/4. Variation 11 refers again to the Theme.

I must also defend myself with respect to the ostinato. According to my conception, and my musical ear, the figure represents a continuous search for a way out, a despairing or comic running in circles to find a cave to disappear in. This cave is G minor, into which the leading-note in the end must, should, and shall scurry in. It's a psycho-physical necessity. (Schoenbergian lawlessness may be amusing for children, but not for a thinking, adult man. I recently looked again through his Three Piano Pieces Op.11 and I find them very childlike in their principles (continual altered octaves, minor second clashes, etc.) and stupid in their realisation.) So far as the conclusion of my Variations is concerned, I must say that I gave some thought to this during my work. It would have been easy enough to make a wild, effective conclusion; but I came to the result you see because the architectonic plan of the whole work is best served by an ordinary ending. Looking back for a moment over the whole piece and recalling the theme and its simple structure, then it must be as it is; or if we consider Variation 15 as a wild defence of a man who is fighting with his back to a mountain of ice and who finally, as if drunk (ubbrioso) and deafened by the battle, stumbles away, then it's right that the entire conclusion should be 'uninteresting', just like a character (in a play) who, having fought to the end and gone away, no longer has to attract the Du skriver rigtigt at Var: 7 viger ud fra Temaet i harmonisk Henseende og at man herudfra kunde komponere nye Variationer. Det er netop hvad jeg har gjort. Var: 8, 9 og 10 gaar netop strengt ud fra Harmoniseringen i Var. 7, dog saaledes at Gangen i Var. 10 bliver meget tilsløret (verschleiert) eller udvidet. Der gaar to Takter af Var: 10 paa en Takt af Var. 7, herved fremkommer jo ogsaa en Fraseringsforskydning idet den ene staar i 4/4, den anden i 3/4 Takt. Var: 11 refererer sig atter til Temaet.

som en bestandig Søgen efter en Udgang, et fortvivlet eller komisk Kredsløb for at finde et Hul at forsvinde i. Dette Hul er g-moll, hvori den som Ledetone tilsidst maa, bør og skal smutte ind. Det er en psykofysisk Nødvendighed. (Den Schönbergske Illigitimitet kan maaske mere Børn, men ikke en tænkende, voksen Mand. Jeg har nylig gennemset paany hans 3 Klaverstykker Op. 11 og finder dem meget barnlige i Principperne (bestandige verspandte Octaver, smaa Secundsammenstød o. s. v.) og dumme i Udførelsen.) - Hvad Slutningen af Variationerne angaar, maa jeg sige, at jeg har tænkt herover under Arbejdet. Det vilde have været mig en let Sag at lave en vild og effektiv Slutning; men jeg kom til det Resultat som nu foreligger, fordi hele Værkets arkitektoniske Plan er bedst tjent med en almindelig Slutning. Ser man med et Overblik tilbage paa hele Stykket og erindrer man sig Temaet og dets enkle (einfache) Struktur, saa maa det være som det er; eller betragter vi Var: 15 som et vildt Forsvar af en Mand der kæmper med Ryggen mod et Isfjeld og tilsidst, ligesom drukken (ubbrioso) og bedøvet (betäubt) af Kampen vakler bort, saa er det rigtigt, at hele Slutningen skal være 'uinteressant', saasandt en Person (i et Drama) der har kæmpet ud og gaar [sin] Vej ikke længere bør tilvende sig Hovedinteressen og heller intet Krav har derpaa. Du ser at main interest to himself and has no wish to do so. So you can see that I quite consciously made the conclusion weaker and weaker; but in the event that this result is unconvincing in its effect, then of course you are right and I am wrong.

Now, dear friend! I thank you once again for your interest and your friendship and all the intelligent things you write. For your words have great value in themselves, even if I don't agree with you about everything; and if, as you write, you find my work worth engaging with, then that's a great encouragement to me and a spur to new things."¹¹⁴

In a letter sent from Villa "Højbo" (Tibberup, near Humlebæk) on 24 February 1921 to Professor Frants P.W. Buhl¹¹⁵ Nielsen wrote in similar vein:

"You can see that these variations are kept in a very strict style, and it has presented me with a truly demanding task, particularly in Variation 3, because actually I had thought it would be impossible to carry through a canon on a theme with such wide-ranging modulations. This is probably the first time that variations have been composed on a theme that begins in one key and ends in another (rather distant) one. I feel that there's often some monotony in pieces of this kind by past composers, though at the same time of course I admit that they have thousands of other good points. I draw your attention to the fact that Variation 7, at the same time as being a genuine variation (though only harmonically) is also the theme for the next three variations, Nos. 8, 9 and 10, in that these follow its harmonic plan scrupulously. Variation 15 presents an extension of the Theme, which you will naturally have seen straight away."¹¹⁶

No sources survive for the Theme and Variations other than the printed score (A), which naturally serves as the main source.

jeg saaledes fuldt bevidst har ladet Slutningen blive mattere og mattere, men ifald denne Udgang ikke virker overbevisende, saa har Du naturligvis Ret og jeg Uret.

Nu, kære Ven! Jeg takker endnu engang for Din Interesse og Dit Venskab og alle de begavede [Ting], Du siger. Thi Dine Ord har i sig selv en stor Værdi, selv om jeg ikke er enig med Dig i alle Ting og naar Du, som Du skriver, finder mit Arbejde værdt at beskæftige sig med, saa er det mig en stor Opmuntring og en Spore til nye Ting."¹¹⁴

I brev til Professor Frants P.W. Buhl¹¹⁵ den 24. februar 1921 udtrykte Carl Nielsen sig i lignende vendinger:

"De ser at disse Variationer er holdte i den strengeste stil og det har været mig et ret besværligt Arbejde, navnlig Var. 3, fordi jeg egentlig havde anset det for umuligt at gennemføre en Kanon over et Thema med saa vidtsvævende Modulationer. – Det er vist første Gang der er komponeret Variationer over et Thema, der begynder i en og slutter i en anden (ret fjern) Toneart. Jeg synes man ofte føler nogen Monotoni i de ældres Arbejder af denne Art, men indrømmer naturligvis i samme Øjeblik at de har Tusinde andre Fortrin. Jeg gør Opmærksom paa, at Var. 7 samtidig med at den virkelig er en Variation (dog kun nærmest harmonisk) tillige er Thema for de følgende tre Var: 8, 9, 10 idet disse paa det nøjeste slutter sig til dens Harmonisation. Var. 15 er en Forlængelse af Themaet, hvad De naturligvis strax ser."¹¹⁶

SUITE, OPUS 45

The only reference in Nielsen's surviving correspondence to his composition of the Suite comes in a letter to his pupil Knud Jeppesen¹¹⁷ of 21 August 1919:

"I didn't write that many notes this Summer, but I did finish something, which is quite different from what I intended, namely piano music instead of orchestral music."¹¹⁸

This letter was written from Damgaard – the estate a few kilometres south of Fredericia on the eastern coast of Jutland facing Funen across the Little Belt – which belonged to his long-standing friend Charlotte Trap de Thygeson.¹¹⁹

He had composed the work partly in his recently purchased summer house "Finis Terræ" in Skagen at the northern tip of Jutland, and partly at Damgaard, where he swapped accommodation with Margrete Rosenberg,¹²⁰ a friend since student days and permanent resident on the estate, in order to work at a better piano. Various details of the piano writing were discussed with Rosenberg.¹²¹

An early sketch for the Suite is headed 'Ild og Vand' (Fire and Water), and it was the association with fire that presumably led Nielsen to add the subtitle Luciferisk for the first performance, thinking of Lucifer as the bringer of fire, rather than of his devilish associations. The fact that reviewers of the first performance all jumped to the unintended conclusion presumably led to his withdrawal of the title, as the preface to the published score explains (see Sources, pp. 243-244).

The Suite carries a dedication to Artur Schnabel,¹²² whose later association with the work – if there was any – is, however, unknown.

In common with the Fourth String Quartet, and later the Preludio e Presto for Solo Violin, the Suite was published (in 1923) by C.F. Peters Musikverlag in Leipzig, following strained

SUITE, OPUS 45

Den eneste henvisning til arbejdet med klaversuiten i Carl Niensens bevarede korrespondance findes i et brev til eleven Knud Jeppesen¹¹⁷ fra den 21. August 1919:

"Jeg har ikke skrevet saa mange Noder i Sommer, men noget har jeg dog færdigt og helt anderledes og andet end jeg havde tænkt mig, nemlig Klavermusik istedetfor Orkestermusik."¹¹⁸

Brevet er skrevet på godset Damgaard, beliggende få kilometer syd for Fredericia på Jyllands østkyst med udsigt til Fyn på den modsatte side af Lillebælt og tilhørende en af hans ældste venner, Charlotte Trap de Thygeson.¹¹⁹

Værket er komponeret dels i det nyligt erhvervede sommerhus "Finis Terræ" på Skagen, dels på Damgaard; her havde han byttet værelse med sin gamle veninde fra konservatoriet, Margrete Rosenberg¹²⁰ – der var fast bosiddende på Damgaard – med henblik på at få adgang til et bedre klaver, og med hvem han nu drøftede forskellige klavermæssige detaljer.¹²¹

En tidlig skitse til suiten bærer overskriften "Ild og Vand", og det var formentlig associationer fra ordet "ild" der fik Carl Nielsen til at tilføje undertitlen Den luciferiske ved førsteopførelsen, og således hæfte sig ved Lucifer som bærer af ilden snarere end ved de sataniske associationer. Det forhold at anmelderne i forbindelse med førsteopførelsen drog sådanne utilsigtede konklusioner, var øjensynligt årsagen til at titlen blev trukket tilbage, således som det forklares i forordet til den trykte udgave (se Sources, s. 243-244).

Suiten er tilegnet Artur Schnabel¹²² hvis senere forbindelse med værket imidlertid er ukendt – hvis der da overhovedet har været nogen.

Ligesom det var tilfældet med den fjerde strygekvartet og senere med Preludio e Presto for Soloviolin, blev suiten relations between Nielsen and his main publisher to that point, Wilhelm Hansen, in difficult post-war financial conditions.¹²³

The first performance was given on 14 March 1921 by Johanne Stockmarr in the lesser hall of the Odd-Fellow Palæ in a concert sponsored by the Danish Concert Society. In the most extended review Gustav Hetsch suggested that:

“Nielsen specialises in extravagant titles for his works. This certainly helps us to remember what they are called, even if one otherwise hasn’t got any clear impression of them. This Suite is in truth ‘black art’, a witches’ brew, full of musical devilry. Since Miss Stockmarr is an acknowledged solid pianist, who always knows her stuff, and since her memory is phenomenal, we must assume that she was playing everything that was prescribed, down to the very last note. But on the other hand she could have played totally at random, for the most part, so wilful and so weird did it sound. Since we must also assume that Nielsen knew what he was doing, we do not dare doubt that all the misshapen effects that assaulted our ears contained musical meaning, which we were merely incapable of assimilating all at once without closer study. Perhaps understanding will dawn another time. Perhaps not. The fact that in the midst of all the harsh oddities, all this apparently nonsensical chatter, bright little episodes shone through that one could grasp straight away and that were moreover of a specially attractive, genuinely Nielsenish beauty, indicates that it is not the composer who had anything wrong with him, even though it must be said that he has gone worryingly far with his experiments.”¹²⁴

Axel Kjerulf also took his misreading of the title as his point of departure, but came to a different conclusion:

“Nielsen’s Suite was entitled ‘Luciferian’, although one could not detect anything particularly devilish in this work, which was more pianistically formed than he customarily manages, moreover clear and harmonically interesting; without appearing especially significant at first hearing, this Suite nevertheudgivet af C.F. Peters Musikverlag i Leipzig (i 1923). Der havde i nogen tid været et noget anstrengt forhold mellem Carl Nielsen og hans hovedforlægger indtil da, Wilhelm Hansen, der på dette tidspunkt i øvrigt havde svære økonomiske problemer bl.a. som følge af efterkrigstidens økonomiske afmatning.¹²³

Førsteopførelsen med Johanne Stockmarr ved flyglet fandt sted i Odd-Fellow Palæets Mindre Sal den 14. marts 1921 ved en koncert arrangeret af Dansk Koncertforening. I den mest udførlige af anmeldelserne skrev Gustav Hetsch:

“Carl Nielsen eksellører i højst aparte Titler paa sine Værker. Det bevirker i alt Fald, at man kan huske, hvad de hedder, selvom man ellers ikke faar noget varigt Indtryk af dem. Denne Suite er i Sandhed ‘sort Kunst’, en Heksekedel, fuld af musikalsk Djævelskab. Da Frk. Johanne Stockmarr er en anerkendt solid Klaverspillerinde, der altid ‘kan’ sine Ting, og hendes Hukommelse er fænomenal, maa man gaa ud fra som givet, at hun ogsaa her til mindste Node spillede, hvad foreskrevet var. Men det kunde omtrent ligesaa godt have været ravgalt spillet, det meste af det; saa vilkaarligt og saa besynderligt lød det. Da nu ogsaa Carl Nielsen maa antages at vide, hvad han gør, tør man ikke tvivle paa, at alle de dysformistiske Tone-Virkninger, der ramte Ens Øren, besad en musikalsk Mening, som man blot ikke var i Stand til paa én Gang uden nærmere Indvielse at fatte. Maaske kommer Forstaaelsen en anden Gang. Maaske ikke. At der imellem alle de ildelydende Mærkeligheder, al denne tilsyneladende Snakken sort, lyste smaa Episoder op, som man kunde faa fat paa staks, og som tilmed var af en sært indtagende, ægte Carl Nielsenisk Skønhed, tyder paa, at det ikke er Komponisten, der har været noget i Vejen med, selvom han maa siges her at være foruroligende langt ude i Eksperimenter.”¹²⁴

Også Axel Kjerulf tog udgangspunkt i en fejltolkning af titlen men drog en anden konklusion:

“Carl Niensens Suite betegnedes som ‘luciferisk’, skønt man egentlig ikke kunde opdage noget særlig djævelsk i dette Arbejde, der var mere klavermæssigt formet, end C.N. plejer at evne det, desuden klart og harmonisk interessant; uden at forekomme synless has unmistakable signs of its author's spirit, and Miss Johanne Stockmarr solved the pianistically extremely difficult task with bravura."¹²⁵

M.S. bemoaned the clash with the concert in the larger hall of the Palæ, where Nielsen's Sinfonia Espansiva was being performed on the same evening. He called the Suite: "on the whole an inoffensive devil, even if once in a while he struck some mighty blows with his tail".¹²⁶

An anonymous reviewer was also favourably disposed:

"Disregarding the merry whim of calling this Suite 'luciferian', when fire and brimstone are precisely what it lacks, one could only rejoice over this new child of Nielsen's muse. It was more pianistic than other works, where Nielsen has established a more intimate relationship with the piano, and this piece showed wit, subtlety and the genuine Nielsenish tone. It must have cost the performer, Miss Johanne Stockmarr, many sleepless nights to get to grips with, and many tortuous days to hammer into shape."¹²⁷

More than one reviewer remarked that the piece was so well received that Nielsen had to rise from his seat to acknowledge the applause.¹²⁸

On 28 November 1925 the Suite was performed by Christian Christiansen in the second concert celebrating Nielsen's 60th birthday. København noted that the Suite was performed "with outstanding pianistic skill by Christian Christiansen", but was otherwise more taken with the performance of G minor String Quintet, composed nearly 30 years earlier.¹²⁹ Gunnar Hauch's review in Nationaltidende was more detailed in its discussion of the Suite; having commented on the last movement of the Violin Sonata Op. 35, with its "liberating manifestation of healthy power, rich in ideas", the reviewer went on:

"A related effect is to be found even more in the conclusion of the Piano Suite (Op. 45), where the capricious ideas fly so playfully over the entire keyboard that the bass line, at once derlig betydeligt ved en første Overhøring, har denne Suite dog umiskendelig Præg af sin Autors Aand, og Frk. Johanne Stockmarr løste den pianistisk saare vanskelige Opgave med Bravour."¹²⁵

M.S. beklagede sammenfaldet med en koncert i Palæets Store Sal hvor Carl Niensens Sinfonia Espansiva blev opført samme aften. Han kalde suiten "i det Hele og Store en skikkelig Djævel, selv om han en Gang imellem slog nogle vældige Slag med Halen".¹²⁶

Hos en anonym anmelder hedder det:

"Saa man bort fra det muntre Paafund at kalde denne Suite, som netop manglede Svovl og Hekseri, luciferisk, kunde man kun glæde sig over dette nye Barn af den Carl Niensenske Muse. Det var mere klavermæssigt gjort end andre Arbejder, hvor Carl Nielsen er traadt i intimere Forbindelse med Klaveret, og der var baade Lune, Finhed og den egne Carl Niensenske Duft over dette Arbejde, som maa have kostet den Udførende (Frk. Johanne Stockmarr) mange søvnløse Nætter at holde Styr paa, mange kvalfulde Dage til den rene mekaniske Udhamring."¹²⁷

Adskillige anmeldere hæftede sig ved at værket blev så vel modtaget at komponisten måtte rejse sig fra sin stol for at modtage publikums hyldest.¹²⁸

28. november 1925 blev suiten opført af Christian Christiansen ved den anden af de koncerter hvormed Carl Niensens 60-års dag blev fejret. København hæfter sig ved at Suiten blev udført "med fremragende pianistisk Dygtighed af Chr. Christiansen" men er i øvrigt mere optaget af opførelsen af den næsten 30 år gamle strygekvintet i g-mol.¹²⁹ Gunnar Hauchs anmeldelse i Nationaltidende er mere udførlig i sin omtale af suiten; efter at have omtalt sidste sats af Violinsonaten opus 35 med sit "befriende Udslag af sund, idérig Kraft" fortsætter anmelderen:

"Endnu mere finder dette et beslægtet Udslag i Slutningen af Klaversuiten (Op. 45), hvor de capriciøse Indfald flyver saa kaadt over hele Klaviaturet, at Bassen, paa een Gang advarende og opmun-warning and encouraging, has to beat out its two-note 'Look out!'. This Suite, whose remaining movements, however, have nothing like the same spontaneity as the finale, was played with true mastery by Mr. Christian Christiansen – a magnificent achievement, which he has seldom equalled.”¹³⁰

Extant autograph sources for the Suite are a complete pencil draft, with occasional sketches (C), and a fair copy of movements 1, 2 and 5 (B), evidently made for Margrete Rosenberg. A fair copy of movements 1-4 and 6 survives in the hand of Nancy Dalberg (D) but shows no signs of having been used as the printer's copy, which must be presumed lost. As in the case of the Chaconne, it may be that some of the unique readings in the first printed edition, published by C.F. Peters Musikverlag in 1923 (A), represent the advice of pianist friends of the composer, but in the absence of any evidence for Nielsen's disapproval, this score is taken as the main source.

THREE PIANO PIECES

Nielsen mentions his completion of the first of his Three Piano Pieces on 17 January 1928, in a letter to Irmelin, who was then in New York: "I have composed a new piece for solo violin, and one (a little one) for piano."¹³¹ On the same day his wife wrote to Irmelin, probably describing the composer playing through the already completed piece: "And he is sitting now working on something very beautiful for the piano in the evening, and I'm sitting inside in the living-room, listening. When I ask him what it is or what it's going to become, he says he doesn't know."¹³²

On 25 January another letter to Irmelin, written from Lillehammer in Norway, where Nielsen and his wife were on a skiing holiday, again mentions the pieces for violin and for piano, now identifying the latter as Impromptu, and over the next three weeks both Frida Møller and Margrete Rosenberg wrote to thank Nielsen for copies of the piece.

The second piece is dated 1 March in the manuscript, and the Adagio and Impromptu (in that order) were played by Christian Christiansen for the New Music Society (Forenin-

De bevarede autografe kilder til suiten omfatter en komplet blyantskladde med spredte skitser (C) og en renskrift af første, anden og femte sats (B), formentlig udarbejdet til Margrete Rosenberg. Renskrift i Nancy Dalbergs hånd er overleveret af satserne 1-4 samt 6 men udviser ikke nogen tegn på at have været anvendt som trykforlæg, hvilket således må formodes at være gået tabt. Som det var tilfældet med Chaconne, er det muligt at en række detaljer i noteteksten i den trykte udgave fra 1923 hos C.F. Peters Musikverlag (A) skyldes råd fra nogle af komponistens pianistvenner. Da der ikke er belæg for at hævde at Carl Nielsen tog afstand fra disse ændringer, er førstetrykket valgt som hovedkilde for nærværende udgave.

TRE KLAVERSTYKKER

To dage efter at have slutdateret renskriften nævner Carl Nielsen i brev af 17. januar 1928 til Irmelin, som på det tidspunkt opholdt sig i New York, at han har fuldført det første af de tre klaverstykker: "Har komponeret en ny Ting for Soloviolin og en (lille) for Claver."¹³¹ Samme dag fortalte hustruen i et brev til Irmelin hvordan komponisten havde gennemspillet sandsynligvis netop dette stykke: "Så sidder han nu og laver noget meget smukt på Claveret om Aftenen, og jeg sidder inde i Dagligstuen og lytter. Når jeg spørger ham hvad det er eller skal være siger han han ved det ikke."¹³²

I et nyt brev til Irmelin, skrevet den 25. januar fra Lillehammer i Norge hvor Carl Nielsen var på skiferie med sin hustru, omtales igen nogle stykker for violin og for klaver, sidstnævnte nu under titlen Impromptu, og i løbet af de kommende tre uger skrev både Frida Møller og Margrete Rosenberg til Carl Nielsen for at takke ham for kopier af stykket.

Det andet stykke er i manuskriptet dateret 1. marts og Adagio og Impromptu (i nævnte rækkefølge) blev spillet af Christian Christiansen ved Foreningen Ny Musiks koncert på gen Ny Musik) on 14 April 1928 at Borups Højskole. In a letter to his wife, Nielsen reported on the dress rehearsal at Christiansen's house earlier the same day, noting that "Christiansen played his two [pieces] excellently."¹³³ Reviewing the concert, Kai Flor noted that they were "worthy of their author and received a sparkling, tonally nuanced performance."¹³⁴

After an interval of eight months, largely taken up with Nielsen's work on the Clarinet Concerto, he completed the third piece on 6 November, which is mentioned in his correspondence to Eduard Erdmann:

"I've long wanted to dedicate some new piano pieces to you, but I've been taken up with various work and duties. Nevertheless I'm now sending you a modest harvest from the field of my work – three new piano pieces. It was fun to compose these three little sisters, but that's no guarantee of their quality, and since I'm personally implicated in the affair, I mustn't sit in judgment and instead must just keep my mouth shut."¹³⁵

On 7 August 1929 Johanne Stockmarr proposed to Nielsen that she should play all three pieces in a recital on 11 December, together with some or all of the Piano Music for Young and Old (see below):

"I behaved like a complete blockhead the other day; I so wanted to talk to you about the fact that for my piano recital – which was unfortunately postponed last year – I should like to play the three pieces, the new ones, and that I should therefore like to ask permission to borrow the one that you unfortunately had to pick up – I have the other two. Now the piano recital will quite certainly not happen until 11 December – I have the hall for that evening. But I should like to know whether it's all right with you if I play the three pieces."¹³⁶

However, this recital seems to have been postponed until 5 May 1930, when Stockmarr performed the Three Piano Pieces in the lesser hall of the Odd-Fellow Palæ.

Meanwhile the first complete performance had been given by Christian Christiansen on 6 March 1930 in the Antiksal of the Glyptotek, the art gallery in central Copenhagen, endowed by the Carlsberg Foundation. The programme, delayed from 4 March because of the indisposition of the singer, Poul

Borups Højskole den 14. april 1928. I et brev til sin hustru bemærkede Nielsen at "Christiansen udførte ogsaa sine to [stykker] fortreffeligt" ved generalprøven i Christiansens hjem.¹³³

I sin anmeldelse af koncerten skrev Kai Flor at stykkerne var "sin autor værdig og fik en gnistrende, klangligt nuanceret Gengivelse."¹³⁴

Efter en pause på otte måneder, hvor Carl Nielsen først og fremmest havde arbejdet på klarinetkoncerten, kunne han den 6. november afslutte det tredje stykke således som det er nævnt i et brev til Eduard Erdmann:

"Schon lange habe ich daran gedacht, Ihnen einige neue Klavierstücke zu widmen, bin aber von verschiedenen Arbeiten und Pflichten genommen. Jetzt sende ich Ihnen trotzdem eine bescheidene Ernte von meinem Arbeitsfelde – drei kleine Klavierstücke. Es hat mich amüsiert die drei Schwesterchen zu komponieren, aber es ist ja kein Kriterium, daß sie auch gut sind, und da ich persönlich in der Sache impliziert bin, muß ich als Schiedsrichter nett und zierlich meinen Mund halten."¹³⁵

Den 7. august 1929 foreslog Johanne Stockmarr Carl Nielsen at spille stykkerne ved en koncert den 11. december sammen med samlingen Klavermusik for Smaa og Store (et udvalg af stykkerne eller dem alle; se nærmere i det følgende):

"Jeg bar mig ad som et stort Fæ forleden Dag; jeg vilde saa gerne have talt med dig om, at jeg til min Klaveraften, som jo desværre blev udsat forrige Aar, gerne vilde spille de 3 Stykker, de nye, og saa maa jeg jo altsaa have Lov at laane det igen, som du jo desværre lod hente; de 2 andre har jeg. Nu er Klaveraftenen ganske vist først d. 11^{te} Dec., jeg har Salen den Aften; men jeg vilde gerne vide, om det passer dig, at jeg spiller de 3 Ting."¹³⁶

Koncerten synes imidlertid at være blevet udskudt til 5. maj 1930 hvor Johanne Stockmarr opførte Tre Klaverstykker i Odd-Fellow Palæets Mindre Sal.

Forinden havde den første komplette opførelse fundet sted ved Christian Christiansen; det foregik den 6. marts 1930 i Antiksalen på Glyptoteket. Programmet, udskudt fra den 4. marts på grund af sangeren Poul Wiedemanns indisposition, blev gentaget den 7. marts og bestod yderligere af César Wiedemann, was repeated on 7 March. It also included César Franck's Prelude, Chorale and Fugue, songs by Nielsen (including a new one, Hjemstavn,¹³⁷ to words by Frederik Poulsen) and others.

Gunnar Hauch found the pieces “very typical of their composer, even if they perhaps do not belong to those of his works that will win the widest renown. The first, ‘Allegro fluente’, seemed to have the strongest character.”¹³⁸ An anonymous review noted of the Three Piano Pieces that Christiansen “allowed their remarkable pianistic qualities, their polyphonic timbral richness and clear structure to emerge beautifully”.¹³⁹ Presumably in view of the earlier performance of the Adagio and Impromptu, this review mentioned that the pieces were presented “in altered and expanded form”, and the same claim was made by Kai Flor¹⁴⁰ for Stockmarr's performance on 5 May 1930 in the Odd-Fellow Palæ, lesser hall, in a recital that included the Humoresque-Bagatelles and the Suite, the Three Piano Pieces being advertised on the programme as “Second Performance”; Flor mistakenly noted this as a first performance of the pieces in their new form.

Nielsen's draft score of the first and third pieces and his fair copy of all three, are extant. Several manuscript copies were made before the eventual publication (posthumously in 1937). These include two copies of the Adagio made by Nielsen, and one of all three pieces and one of No. 3 by an unknown copyist with sporadic pencil indications in the composer's hand. Since the first publication was posthumous, the fair copies – in the case of No. 2, the apparently most correct of the fair copies – are taken as the main source.

PIANO MUSIC FOR YOUNG AND OLD, OPUS 53

On 18 December 1929 Nielsen gave an introductory address at the Music-Pedagogic Society (Musikpædagogisk Forening) at Borups Højskole in Copenhagen, in the course of which he observed:

“If we are to debate this evening the question of whether our composers could imagine composing music which on the one hand has a folk-like, or better, accessible character, and on the other hand would be suitable for teaching purposes – for not

Franck's Prélude, Chorale et Fugue, sange af Carl Nielsen (heriblandt den nykomponerede *Hjemstavn*¹³⁷ til tekst af Frederik Poulsen) og andre.

Gunnar Hauch fandt stykkerne “meget typiske for deres Autor, selv om de maaske ikke hører til dem af hans Arbejder, som vil vinde videst Terraæn. Stærkest i Karakteren syntes den første ‘Allegro fluente’ at virke”.¹³⁸ En anonym anmelder noterede om de Tre Klaverstykker at Christian Christiansen “lod deres udmærkede klavermæssige Egenskaber, deres polyfone Klangrigdom og klare Struktur træde smukt frem”.¹³⁹ Sandsynligvis med henvisning til den tidligere opførelse af Adagio og Impromptu oplyser denne anmelder at stykkerne blev præsenteret i “ændret og øget Form”; noget lignende siges af Kai Flor¹⁴⁰ om Johanne Stockmarrs opførelse den 5. maj 1930 i Odd-Fellow Palæets Mindre Sal ved en koncert der også omfattede Humoreske-Bagateller og Suite opus 45; her annonceres klaverstykkerne i programmet som “Anden Opførelse”, mens Flor fejlagtigt taler om en førsteopførelse i deres nye skikkelse.

Carl Niensens blyantskladde af første og tredje stykke samt renskriften af alle tre stykker er bevaret. Før den endelige trykning forelå (posthumt i 1937), blev udarbejdet en række kopier, heraf to af Adagio i Carl Niensens hånd, yderligere en af alle tre stykker samt en af nr. 3 i fremmed hånd med enkelte blyantsnotater af Carl Nielsen. Eftersom førstetrykket udkom posthumt, er renskriften (A) anvendt som hovedkilde for nr. 1 og 3 i nærværende udgave, mens B er anvendt som hovedkilde for nr. 2.

KLAVERMUSIK FOR SMAA OG STORE, OPUS 53

Den 18. december 1929 holdt Carl Nielsen et foredrag på Borups Højskole i København ved et møde i Musikpædagogisk Forening hvor han bl.a. sagde:

“Naar vi nu iaften skal drøfte det Spørgsmaal om vore Komponister kunde tænke sig at være med til at komponere Musik som dels har en folkelig eller rettere letfattelig Karakter og dels egnede sig til Undervisningsbrug for den ikke altfor teknisk very advanced young players or beginners – then I think it’s a good thing, a good idea, and most welcome that it should be the young leadership of the ‘Music-Pedagogic Society’ that has taken this initiative.”¹⁴¹

At first glance it would seem likely that Nielsen began composing his Piano Music for Young and Old straight after that meeting, at the rate of roughly one piece per day. But it may also be that some of the pieces already existed, since a newspaper review of the meeting noted that after his lecture “there were demonstrations of recent Danish educational music by Carl Nielsen.”¹⁴² And the idea at least for the composition may go back some months before that, since the first mention of the pieces is in a letter from Johanne Stockmarr to the composer dated 7 August 1929, where she floats the idea of playing one or both books in public, along with the Three Piano Pieces: “and I also thought about playing the book of your miniatures, or perhaps both books; what do you think?”¹⁴³ As noted above, this recital was postponed until 5 May 1930.

Nielsen recorded his work on the Piano Music for Young and Old starting from No. 10 on 1 January 1930. The following completion dates are noted in his diary (which gives one number higher than indicated for Nos. 10-21, because the composer originally counted Nos. 3a and 3b, both in G major, as separate numbers; having presumably renumbered the set, No. 22 is correctly entered, as are No. 23 (which Nielsen returned to having originally numbered it 21) and No. 24.

udviklede Ungdom, eller for Begyndere, saa mener jeg det er en god Sag og en god Ide og det er højest glædelig at det er den unge Ledelse af ‘Musikpædagogisk Forening’ som har taget dette Initiativ;”¹⁴¹

Umiddelbart kunne det se ud som om Carl Nielsen begyndte kompositionen af Klavermusik for Smaa og Store straks efter dette møde med gennemsnitligt et stykke per dag, men det er også muligt at nogle af stykkerne allerede var færdige, idet man i en avisomtale kunne læse at der efter foredraget “var [...] Demonstrationer af nyere dansk Undervisningsmusik af Carl Nielsen.”¹⁴² Selve ideen til værket gik efter al sandsynlighed nogle måneder tilbage, eftersom den tidligste omtale af stykkerne findes i et brev fra Johanne Stockmarr til komponisten, dateret 7. august 1929, hvor hun nævner sine planer om at spille begge samlinger offentligt sammen med de Tre Klaverstykker: “og saa havde jeg tænkt at spille det Hefte med dine Smaastykker eller maaske begge Hefterne; hvad synes du?”¹⁴³ Som nævnt ovenfor blev denne koncert udsat til 5. maj 1930.

Carl Nielsen anfører at arbejdet med Klavermusik for Smaa og Store begyndte med nr. 10 den 1. januar 1930. Efterfølgende slutdatoer stammer fra dagbogen som dog anfører de enkelte stykker fra nr. 10 til nr. 21 med et nummer højere end i den endelige version, fordi Carl Nielsen oprindeligt havde betegnet nr. 3a og 3b, begge i G-dur, som selvstændige numre. Efter formentlig at have nummereret hele samlingen på ny, indførte Carl Nielsen nr. 22 med sit korrekte nummer, ligesom det er tilfældet med nr. 23 (som tidligere havde heddet nr. 21) samt nr. 24:

Contrary to information in Meyer & Schandorf,¹⁴⁵ Nielsen's diary entries reveal that he was not at Gothenburg at this time but only went there on 7 February (for conducting appearances on the 12th and 16th), after returning from Damgaard for a few days to Copenhagen.

Nielsen considered No. 18 in C minor to be the best of the pieces he had composed to that point,¹⁴⁶ and he made a special copy of it (source C) and sent it to Irmelin on 16 January 1930. She replied three days later:

"Thanks for your letter and the lovely little piece. I've been practising, but I have so few pianistic gifts. Nevertheless I can hear that it's delightful, and I can imagine you playing it with your small, broad, but sensitive, or rather lightly and delicately gliding fingers."¹⁴⁷

Apart from the Preface to the first published score (see Critical Commentary pp. 246-247), Nielsen explained his concept in a letter to Telmányi of 19 January 1930:

"And I've been composing each day a little piano piece in a new tonality, because I want to get up to 24 (up to B major/G sharp minor and G flat major/E flat minor), and it interests me like nothing before, because the task is so circumscribed that it's very difficult. These are five-note pieces; and naturally that means that for example in C major I use within the range  both D flat and C sharp, E flat and D sharp, F sharp and G flat. But look: you can move your hand or hands in many ways within the tonality, e.g. in the right hand (e.g. in B minor)  and the left  or (right)  (left)  etc. in many ways without thumb-crossing and still get variety. The old piano methods (so far as I know) only have the basic range in both hands; so for G major:

So I regard it as something new to work in this way, and as I've said, it has my greatest devotion in this little form."¹⁴⁸

Af dagbogsoptegnelserne fremgår det at Carl Nielsen ikke – således som det hævdes hos Meyer og Schandorf¹⁴⁵ – var i Göteborg på denne tid, men først tog dertil den 7. februar (med henblik på at dirigere ved koncerter den 12. og 16.) efter at være vendt tilbage fra Damgaard til København for nogle få dage.

Carl Nielsen anså nr. 18 i c mol for at være det bedste af de stykker han hidtil havde komponeret,¹⁴⁶ og han lavede en særlig kopi af det (kilde C) som han sendte til Irmelin den 16. januar 1930. Tre dage senere svarede hun tilbage:

"Tak for Brev – og det fine lille Stykke. Jeg øver mig – men jeg har jo saa faa pianistiske Evner; trods det kan jeg høre at det er henrivende – og jeg kan forestille mig dig spille det, med dine smaa brede – men 'følsomme' eller rettere, let og delikat henglidende Fingre."¹⁴⁷

Udover hvad han skrev i forordet til den trykte udgave (se Critical Commentary, s. 246-247), forklarede Carl Nielsen sine ideer i et brev til Telmányi fra 19. januar 1930:

"og jeg komponerer hver Dag et lille Klaverstykke i en ny Toneart, da jeg skal have 24 (altsaa indtil H Dur – gis moll, Ges Dur – es moll), og det interesserer mig som intet før, fordi Opgaven er jo saa bunden, at det bliver meget vanskeligt. Det er altsaa femtonige Stykker d.v.s., naturligvis benytter jeg f. Ex. i C dur indenfor  baade (des og cis) (es dis) (fis-ges). Men se her: man kan jo flytte Haanden eller Hænderne paa mange Maader indenfor Tonearten f. Expl. i højre Haand (f. Expl. i h moll)  i venstre  eller (højre)  (venstre)  o.s.v. paa flere Maader uden Over- eller Undersætning og dog faa Afveksling. De gamle Klaverskoler har (saavidt jeg ved?) kun Grundbeliggenhed i begge Hænder, altsaa G Dur derfor anser jeg det for en Fornyelse at arbejde med dette og det har, som sagt, min største Hengivelse i denne lille Form."¹⁴⁸

On 12 August 1931 he wrote to Hans Henny Jahnn¹⁴⁹, describing the set as “music for children, but in a somewhat different meaning from the wholly innocent kind.”¹⁵⁰

On 13 August 1930 Finn Høffding¹⁵¹ wrote to Nielsen in terms that show that the meeting of the Music-Pedagogic Association led to a competition for new educational pieces:

“At the same time I must touch on the question of your Piano Pieces. I was quite speechless when my wife explained Wilhelm Hansen’s position with regard to you; I had no idea that the company had the slightest thing to do with the Piano Pieces; on the contrary before the competition began, I was given to understand that your Piano Pieces were going to be published by Borup, which pleased me no end. Wilhelm Hansen offered to collaborate in a competition, prompted, so they said, by that discussion evening at the Music-Pedagogic Association which you introduced. In the Association we’re considering a performance of these newly composed piano pieces given by children; I hope you won’t have anything against your pieces being played alongside the others. It goes without saying that if the Music-Pedagogic Association takes it upon itself to premiere and publicly to acknowledge certain pieces, then your collection of Preludes will automatically be acknowledged and the Society will be obliged to inform its members. I hope that the collections will come out in two or three volumes, which will be a big advantage for their dissemination, and I also believe economically more advantageous; it would have been wonderful if the Music-Pedagogic Association had been able to publish your Preludes, but unfortunately there are no funds for it.”¹⁵²

On 17 September 1930 Nielsen’s pupil Rudolph Simonsen¹⁵³ wrote to compliment him: “There’s an extraordinary richness of Fantasy within the five notes.”¹⁵⁴

Den 13. august 1930 henvendte Finn Høffding¹⁵¹ sig til Carl Nielsen i vendinger der viser at mødet i Musikpædagogisk Forening havde ført til en konkurrence om ny undervisningsmusik:

“Samtidigt maa jeg lige berøre Spørgsmaalet om de smaa Klaverstykker; jeg var ganske maalløs da min Kone fortalte om Wilh. Hansens Stilling overfor Dem; jeg anede intet om at Forlaget have haft det mindste med de Klaverstykker at gøre, tværtimod inden Konkurrencen blev startet, havde jeg faaet at vide at Deres Klaverstykker kom hos Borup, hvilket i høj Grad glædede mig. Wilh. Hansen tilbød at samarbejde i en Konkurrence, tilskyndet, som de sagde, af hin Diskussionsaften i Musikpædagogisk Forening, hvor De indledede. Vi paatænker i Foreningen en Demonstration af disse nykomponerede Klaverstykker spillet af Børn, jeg haaber da ikke, at De vil have noget imod at vi lader Deres Stykker demonstrere sammen med de andre. Det er jo givet at naar MPF tager sig paa at præmiere og offentlig anerkende visse Stykker, saa er deres Præludiesamling a fort[il]ori anerkendt og Foreningen forpligtiget til at gøre sine Medlemmer opmærksom paa dem. Jeg haaber paa at Samlingen vil komme i 2 eller 3 Hefter, det vil være en stor Fordel for deres Udbredelse, og jeg tror ogsaa økonomisk fordelagtigere; det havde været dejligt om MPF havde kunnet udgive Deres Præludier, men det er der jo desværre ikke Raad til.”¹⁵²

Carl Niensens elev Rudolph Simonsen¹⁵³ omtalte i brev af 17. september samlingen i rosende vendinger: “Det er en ubegribelig Fantasirigdom indenfor de 5 Toner!”¹⁵⁴

On 27 October 1930 Herman D. Koppel¹⁵⁵ gave an all-Nielsen piano recital in the hall of Copenhagen Conservatoire. August Felsing's review praised the whole enterprise and noted that Koppel

“crowned the performance by humming subtly and perceptively six pieces from the recently published collection For Young and Old, in which Nielsen writes so transparently, simply and straightforwardly, that it must appeal to all who have just the slightest feeling for absolute music in its purest form. How subtly major and minor modes alternated in No. 2, and how beautifully formed was No. 13 in F major, a pastoral idyll that is comically interrupted by the following grotesque Clodhopper's-March.”¹⁵⁶

Reviewing the same concert, Kai Flor claimed that these “educational piano pieces, just as clearly as his greatest art music, bear witness to [the composer's] genius, because they show perhaps the hardest thing of all to achieve – greatness in small dimensions.”¹⁵⁷

Apart from the fair copy of No. 18 that Nielsen made for his daughter (C), the first three pieces also exist as fair copies (B). A complete draft score survives (D), but no printer's copy. The first published edition is taken as the main source.

PIANO PIECE

The only surviving information about this piece seems to be the editorial paragraph preceding its publication in Dansk Musiktidsskrift a few months after the composer's death:

“The following piano piece, which is of a later date [than the Piano Music for Young and Old], shows that Nielsen continued to work with the problem of piano music for educational purposes, but was looking for solutions along other lines from Op. 53. The piece is published here for the first time.”¹⁵⁸

How the journal came by the piece is not known; nor is the date of composition, or the whereabouts of the manuscript.

Den 27. oktober 1930 gav Herman D. Koppel¹⁵⁵ en Carl Nielsen-klaveraften i musikkonservatoriets koncertsal i København. August Felsing's anmeldelse roste arrangementet og bemærkede at Koppel

“satte Kronen paa Værket ved at nynne fint og forstaaende de seks Stykker af den nyligt udsendte Samling for Smaa og Store, hvori Carl Nielsen skriver en Sats saa gennemsigtig og nem og lige til, at den maa gaa i alle, som blot har den ringeste Føling for den absolute Musik i sin primitive Form. Hvor fint vekslede Moll og Dur i Nr. 2, hvor skønt forment var Nr. 13 i F-Dur, en pastoral Ynde, som brødes pudsigt af den paafølgende groteske Klodrian-March.”¹⁵⁶

I sin anmeldelse af koncerten fremhævede Kai Flor disse “Undervisnings-Klaverstykker, der lige saa tydeligt som hans største Kunstmusik viser Rækkevidden af hans Genialitet, fordi de giver det maaske vanskeligste af alt – det store i det smaa.”¹⁵⁷

Udover renskriften af nr. 18 som Carl Nielsen lavede til datteren (C), foreligger også de første tre stykker i renskrift (B). Endvidere er bevaret en fuldstændig kladde (D), men intet trykforlæg. Førstetrykket er hovedkilde til nærværende udgave.

KLAVERSTYKKE

Eneste oplysning om denne komposition synes at være redaktørens indledning i Dansk Musiktidsskrift hvor den blev offentliggjort et par måneder efter komponistens død:

“Det efterfølgende klaverstykke, der er af senere dato [end Klavermusik for Store og Smaa], viser, at Carl Nielsen fortsat har arbejdet med problemet klavermusik til undervisningsbrug, men søgt løsningen ad andre veje end i op. 53. Stykket offentliggøres her for første gang.”¹⁵⁸

Det vides ikke hvordan tidsskriftet er kommet i besiddelse af stykket; ej heller kendes kompositionsdato eller et eventuelt manuskripts senere skæbne.

ORGAN WORKS

NIELSEN AND ORGAN MUSIC

Unlike the piano works, Carl Nielsen's organ works come exclusively from the last part of his life. However, this does not mean that he had no interest in the organ before this period. An occasional interest in the organ can be traced back to his very earliest works from the end of the 1880s. For example, the first of two fantasy pieces for oboe and piano opus 2 – Romance – was probably originally intended for oboe and organ.¹ And we know with certainty that the Romance was performed by these instruments several times.²

In the autumn of 1913 Nielsen met the German organist Karl Straube³ in Copenhagen. The meeting appears to have inspired him to start on a work for organ. In a letter dated 6th October to his wife Anne Marie⁴ he talks about his plans, saying among other things: "I have the urge to write a fantasia for organ and have already begun. It is tremendous how an organ can sound when a great master is handling it".⁵ This is confirmed by a very brief sketch designated Organ Fantasia,⁶ but in all probability the work never got beyond the sketch stage. Other undated sketches for organ suggest that Nielsen worked from time to time with the instrument,⁷ but as already mentioned it was only in the last years that the organ left visible traces in his list of works.

Although there is no direct statement about this from the composer, it seems reasonable to see a connection between Carl Nielsen's organ works and the reform effort that was taking place at that time in Danish sacred music. Thomas Laub⁸ had begun this reform many years earlier, but it was to make its fullest impact during the 1920s. Laub's reform was concerned with abandoning emotive Lied-like hymn-singing in favour of a reintroduction of the older stylistic types – the Protestant chorale and Renaissance vocal

CARL NIELSEN OG ORGELMUSIKKEN

I modsætning til klaverværkerne stammer Carl Niensens orgelværker udelukkende fra den sidste del af hans liv. Dette betyder dog ikke at det først var på dette tidspunkt, at interessen for orglet meldte sig. En lejlighedsvis beskæftigelse med orglet kan spores tilbage til hans allertidligste værker fra slutningen af 1880'erne. Således var det første af de to fantasistykker for obo og klaver opus 2 – Romance – antagelig oprindeligt tænkt for obo og orgel.¹ Og det vides med sikkerhed at denne sats gentagne gange er blevet fremført offentligt for denne besætning.²

Da Carl Nielsen i efteråret 1913 traf den tyske organist Karl Straube³ i København, inspirerede mødet ham tilsyneladende til at påbegynde et værk for orgel. I et brev dateret den 6. oktober til hustruen Anne Marie⁴ fortæller han om sine planer. Det hedder bl.a.: "Jeg har faaet Lyst til at skrive en Phantasi for Orgel og har allerede begyndt. Det er mægtigt som et Orgel kan lyde, naar en stor Mester tumler med det."⁵ Udsagnet bekræftes af en ganske kort skitse betegnet Orgelfantasi,⁶ men efter al sandsynlighed er værket aldrig kommet ud over skitseplanet. Andre udaterede skitser for orgel kunne tyde på at Carl Nielsen fra tid til anden har arbejdet med dette instrument,⁷ men som nævnt var det først i de seneste år at orglet satte sig synlige spor i hans værkrække.

Skønt der ikke findes nogen direkte udsagn herom fra komponistens side, er det nærliggende at se en forbindelse mellem Carl Niensens orgelværker og de reformbestrebelse der netop i disse år fandt sted indenfor den danske kirkemusik – en reform som Thomas Laub⁸ havde indledt mange år tidligere, og som i løbet af 1920'erne for alvor slog igennem. Laubs reform gik ud på at afskaffe den følelsesbetonede, romancelignende salmesang til fordel for en genindførelse af de klassiske stilforpolyphony – and in the case of organ music replacing the sonority and harmony-based romantic stylistic ideals with those that characterized the art of organ music in the seventeenth century.⁹ This change was also manifested in the so-called “Organ Movement”, with its origins in Germany, which rejected the nineteenth-century idea of good organ-style, aspiring to sound orchestral, in favour of a return to the idioms of the “Baroque” period. Considering Carl Nielsen’s decidedly polyphonic mode of writing, it is not surprising that these currents appealed to his compositional curiosity.

29 LITTLE PRELUDES FOR ORGAN OR HARMONIUM, OPUS 51

It appears to have been another external factor that prompted Nielsen to get to grips with his first organ work, namely that the organist Johannes Hansen¹⁰ asked him to compose some organ preludes for use in divine service. This request resulted in the 29 Little Preludes for Organ or Harmonium opus 51.

The preludes were written over a relatively short period at the beginning of 1929. They are mentioned for the first time in a letter from Carl Nielsen to his wife, dated 5th February. At this time he was staying at the Damgaard estate near Fredericia and wrote: “I have made a little ‘celestial’ prelude which – if it were to take on human form – would look like a smiling angel from the Renaissance”.¹¹ The pencil draft for Preludes 14-27 contains scattered datings, which document their composition between 19th February and 19th March, and it must be presumed that the whole collection was finished by the end of March.¹²

12 The printed programme for the Carl Nielsen Memorial Concert in Roskilde Cathedral on 11.2.1932 states that one of the preludes was composed in 1900, while the others were from 1929. We must assume that this information comes from Emilius Bangert (1883-1962), who organized the concert. Torben Schousboe believes he can demonstrate that Prelude 3 was from 1900, since the draft for this piece is written on a different type of music paper from the other preludes, and the style of No. 3 suggests the period around the turn of the century (cf. Torben Schousboe, “Carl Niensens præludier for orgel”, Organistbladet, vol. 32 (1966), pp. 20-27). However, there seems to be no proof for such an assumption, since the music paper used for the draft of Prelude 3 originally served as the title page for a manuscript copy of the Three Piano Pieces Op. 59 (composed in 1928). See also the Sources pp. 248-249.

mer – den protestantiske koral og renæssancens vokalphony – og for orgelmusikkens vedkommende at lade den klangligt og harmonisk funderede romantiske orgelmusik vige for de stilidealer der kendetegnede det 17. århundredes orgelkunst.⁹ Sidstnævnte aspekt kom ligeledes til udtryk i den såkaldte orgelbevægelse som i disse år med udgangspunkt i Tyskland stod for et opgør med det romantiske, orkesterefterlignende orgel, idet man søgte en tilbagevenden til barokorglet. Tager man Carl Niensens udpræget polyfone skrivemåde i betragtning, er det oplagt at disse strømninger har appelleret til hans kompositoriske nysgerrighed.

29 SMAA PRÆLUDIER FOR ORGEL ELLER HARMONIUM, OPUS 51

Det var dog tilsyneladende en ydre anledning der fik Carl Nielsen til at tage fat på det første orgelværk, idet organisten Johannes Hansen¹⁰ havde bedt ham om at komponere nogle præludier for orgel til brug ved gudstjenesten. Denne anmodning udmøntede sig i de 29 Smaa Præludier for Orgel eller Harmonium opus 51.

Præludierne blev til over en relativ kort periode i begyndelsen af 1929. De omtales første gang i et brev fra Carl Nielsen til hustruen dateret den 5. februar. Han opholdt sig på dette tidspunkt på godset Damgaard ved Fredericia og skriver: “Jeg har lavet et lille ‘himmelsk’ Præludium, som – ifald det antog menneskelig Skikkelse – vilde ligne en smilende Engel fra Renæssancen.”¹¹ Spredte dateringer i blyantskladden til præludierne nr. 14-27 godtgør at de er komponeret i tidsrummet 19. februar til 19. marts, og det må antages at hele samlingen har været færdig i slutningen af marts.¹²

12 I det trykte program til Carl Nielsen-mindekoncerten i Roskilde Domkirke 11.2.1932 anføres det at et enkelt af præludierne skulle være komponeret år 1900, mens de øvrige var fra 1929. Det må antages, at denne oplysning stammer fra Emilius Bangert (1883-1962) der arrangerede koncerten. Torben Schousboe mener at kunne godtgøre at det er præludium nr. 3 som stammer fra år 1900, idet kladden til denne sats er skrevet på en anden type nodepapir end de øvrige præludier, ligesom stilen i nr. 3 peger på tiden omkring århundredeskiftet (jf. Torben Schousboe, “Carl Niensens præludier for orgel”, Organistbladet, 32. årg. (1966), s. 20-27). Der synes dog ikke at være belæg for en sådan antagelse, idet det nodepapir som er anvendt til kladden til præludium nr. 3 oprindeligt har tjent som titelblad for en afskrift af de tre klaverstykker op. 59 (komponeret 1928). Se i øvrigt Sources, s. 248-249.

In connection with the composition work Mogens Wöldike¹³ lent Nielsen the keys to the Christiansborg Palace Chapel, where he tested the potential of the organ several times. Wöldike also presented Nielsen with Johann Pachelbel's organ works. However, the person who most directly shared the composer's deliberations was the organist Peter Thomsen,¹⁴ from whom Nielsen borrowed music written by organ composers of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries – like Frescobaldi, Scheidt, Scheidemann, Weckmann and Böhm. He made small marks by the passages that appealed to his taste, and the toccata forms in particular captured his interest. He is said to have considered Frescobaldi and Scheidt particularly worthy of imitation.¹⁵ In this connection it should be mentioned, too, that Johannes Hansen had lent Carl Nielsen Thorvald Aagaard's¹⁶ collection 25 Præludier til Gudstjenesten for Orgel uden Pedal eller Harmonium (25 Preludes for Divine Service for Organ without Pedals or Harmonium) as a model. When Nielsen's Preludes turned out to be something quite different, Johannes Hansen is said to have been somewhat disappointed at the result.¹⁷

The greater part of a year was to pass before the Preludes were "christened" in public performance. This was on 23rd January 1930 in a concert at Skovshoved Church, north of Copenhagen, marking the debut of its new Frobenius organ as a concert instrument, when Poul Schierbeck¹⁸ performed 28 of the Preludes. The concert was praised by reviewers, who particularly emphasised the highly differentiated character of the Preludes. In Nationaltidende the reviewer August Felsing thought that the collection had a retrospective tendency. He wrote amongst other things:

"He [Nielsen] chose the form of the preludes and in the course of the many long and short pieces gave of himself in a retrospective presentation beginning with broadly sustained

I forbindelse med kompositionen havde Mogens Wöldike¹³ lånt Carl Nielsen nøglerne til Christiansborg Slotskirke hvor han flere gange afprøvede orglets muligheder. Endvidere havde Wöldike foræret Carl Nielsen Johann Pachelbels orgelværker. Den person der mest direkte deltog i komponistens overvejelser, var dog organisten Peter Thomsen.¹⁴ Hos denne lånte Carl Nielsen noder af det 17. og 18. århundredes orgelkomponister – navne som Frescobaldi, Scheidt, Scheidemann, Weckmann og Böhm. Han satte små tegn ved de passager der faldt i hans smag, og især toccata-formerne optog ham meget. Efter sigende skulle han have fundet Frescobaldi og Scheidt særligt efterfølgelsesværdige.¹⁵ Det skal i denne forbindelse nævnes at Johannes Hansen havde lånt Carl Nielsen Thorvald Aagaards¹⁶ samling 25 Præludier til Gudstjenesten for Orgel uden Pedal eller Harmonium som forbillede. Da Carl Niensens præludeer gik hen og blev noget ganske andet, skal Johannes Hansen være blevet noget skuffet over resultatet.¹⁷

Der skulle gå det meste af et år før præludeerne blev holdt over dåben ved en offentlig fremførelse. Det skete den 23. januar 1930 ved en koncert i Skovshoved Kirke nord for København hvor Poul Schierbeck¹⁸ opførte 28 af præludeerne. Ved denne koncert indviedes i øvrigt også kirkens nye Frobenius-orgel som koncertinstrument. Koncerten blev rosende anmeldt, idet man især heftede sig ved præludeernes meget forskelligartede karaktertræk. I Nationaltidende mente anmelderen August Felsing ligefrem at samlingen havde et retrospektivt anlæg. Han skrev bl.a.:

"Han [Carl Nielsen] valgte Præludiernes Form og gav i Løbet af de mange kortere eller længere Satser sig selv i en retrospektiv Fremstilling, begyndende med bredt baarne, fugerede Temaer fugato themes in the linear-clear idiom of ‘Saul and David’, on through the highly varied associations of ideas in the symphonies, through lyrically disposed motifs that recalled the plain song style that captures the mind of the common man, towards the gigantic content of the last great works, such as the swelling passage-work of the clarinet concerto, to end in a cantabile devotional strophe that rose high above the day and the age. One might say a collection of musical aphorisms, shot through with polyphonic vitality, standing now in instrumental relief as a modern counterpart of Chopin’s great preludes for piano, opus 28, now in intellectual power and variety – with their captivating, stray ideas thrown up with an eruptive power that has its deep wellspring in Nielsen’s expansive compositional urge, forming a sounding analogy to Søren Kierkegaard’s Diapsalmata from Either–Or.¹⁹

The first complete performance of all 29 preludes played as a continuous cycle took place on 19 March the same year in the St. Johannes Church in Copenhagen with Peter Thomsen at the organ.²⁰ In connection with the preparations for this concert Nielsen attended two registration rehearsals.²¹

The composer does not appear to have regarded his preludes as an inviolable entity, and was happy to see groups performed; for example, he suggested a suite of eleven (22, 23, 10, 11, 21, 15, 24, 18, 13, 25 and 28) to the organist, P.S. Rung-Keller,²² at the same time giving Rung-Keller a free hand to include more or change the order in which they were played.²³

In October 1930, when the Preludes were published by Skandinavisk og Borups Musikforlag, Nielsen – quite in keeping with his models from the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries – had omitted any indications of dynamics, articulation and phrasing.²⁴ The only guidelines for the player were the Klarinetkoncertens opbrusende Passageværk for at ende i en cantabil, andagtsfyldt Strofe, der løftede sig højt over Dagen og Tiden. Om man vil, en Samling tonale Aforismer, gennemstrømmet af polyfon Livskraft, der snart i instrumentalt Relief – staar som et moderne Sidestykke til Chopins store Præludieværk for Klaver, Opus 28, snart i intellektuel Kraft og Afveksling – med deres fængslende, løsrevne Tanker, slynget ud med en eruptiv Kraft, der har sit dybe Udspring i Carl Niensens ekspansive Kompositionstrang, former sig som en klingende Analogi til de Søren Kierkegaardske Diapsalmata fra Enten–Eller.’¹⁹

Den første fuldstændige opførelse af alle de 29 præludier spillet som en sammenhængende cyklus fandt sted den 19. marts samme år i Sankt Johannes Kirke i København med Peter Thomsen ved orglet.²⁰ I forbindelse med forberedelserne til denne koncert deltog Carl Nielsen i to registreringsprøver.²¹

Tilsyneladende betragtede komponisten dog ikke sin præludiesamling som et ubrydeligt hele når den blev opført til koncert. Således foreslog han organisten P.S. Rung-Keller²² en suite bestående af følgende elleve præludier: nr. 22, 23, 10, 11, 21, 15, 24, 18, 13, 25 og 28, idet han dog gav Rung-Keller frie hænder til at tage flere præludier med eller ændre rækkefølgen.²³

Da præludierne i oktober 1930 udkom på Skandinavisk og Borups Musikforlag, havde Carl Nielsen – helt i pagt med sine forbilleder fra det 17. og 18. århundrede – udeladt enhver form for anvisning mht. dynamik, artikulation og frase-ring.²⁴ Eneste rettesnor for den spillende var metronomangivel-metronome markings for the individual pieces, and even then it was stated in a footnote that the metronome speeds given should be regarded as approximate and were to be adjusted for the space and the instrument. This spare notation prompted Peter Thomsen to publish a small article in Dansk Kirkemusiker-Tidende on dynamics and registration in the Preludes, pointing out that the remarks were based on the composer's own instructions.²⁵ He wrote for example:

“For the rendering of the Preludes a ‘Mixture organ’, with many – gentle – mixed voicings, will be best suited; on a ‘modern’ instrument with the less transparent sound and the large number of sweeping and gliding stops they will have difficulty coming into their own. Within the individual pieces there should be no changing of stops – it would be quite mistaken to use a general crescendo or to add a powerful-sounding stop on the final chord.

The printed edition of the preludes gave rise to several lengthy reviews in specialist periodicals, where a recurring theme was the issue of the suitability of the preludes for use in church services. In his review in Dansk Musiktidsskrift Povl Hamburger²⁷ thought that only Nos. 14 and 29 met the requirements of a modern church style. He saw the collection rather as suited ser til de enkelte satser, idet det i en fodnote blev bemærket at de opgivne metronomtall var at betragte som tilnærmelsesvis og måtte rette sig efter rum og instrument. Denne meget summariske notationsform foranledigede Peter Thomsen til at bringe en lille opsats i Dansk Kirkemusiker-Tidende vedrørende dynamik og registrering i præludierne, hvor han gjorde opmærksom på at bemærkningerne støttede sig til komponistens egne anvisninger.²⁵ Det hed heri bl.a.:

“Til Gengivelse af Præludierne vil et ‘Mixturorgel’, som raader over mange – og milde – blandede Stemmer, være bedst egnet; paa et ‘moderne’ Instrument med den mindre gennemsigtige Klang og det store Antal strygende og svævende Register vil de vanskeligere komme til deres Ret. Indenfor de enkelte Stykker bør ingen Registerændring finde Sted – helt misforstaaet vil det være at anvende Generalcrescendo eller at tilføje et stærkt klingende Register paa Slutningsakkorden.

Den trykte udgave af præludierne afstedkom flere fyldige anmeldelser i fagtidsskrifter hvor et tilbagevendende emne var spørgsmålet om præludiernes egnethed til brug ved gudstjenesten. I sin anmeldelse i Dansk Musiktidsskrift mente Povl Hamburger²⁷ at det kun var nr. 14 og 29 der levede op til de krav man måtte stille til en moderne kirkestil. Han betragtede 25 This presumably refers to Nielsen's above-mentioned participation in the registration rehearsals before the concert on 19.3.1930. That Nielsen had accepted Peter Thomsen's arrangement can be seen from a letter from Nielsen to Peter Thomsen, dated 26.10.1930, in which he says: “I would of course very much like to have your registration proposals in print and I am sure that other musicians and organists would also be pleased with them” (DK-Kk, NBD 2. rk., 1981/101).

25 Hermed refereres antagelig til Carl Niensens ovenfor omtalte deltagelse ved registreringsprøverne før koncerten den 19.3.1930. At Carl Nielsen var indforstået med Peter Thomsens opsats, fremgår af et brev fra Carl Nielsen til Peter Thomsen, dateret 26.10.1930. Heri hedder det bl.a.: “Jeg vil naturligvis meget gerne have Deres Registreringsforslag paa Tryk og jeg er sikker paa at andre Musikere og Organister ogsaa vil være glade derfor.” (DK-Kk, NBD 2. rk., 1981/101).

for study and proposed the title “Studies for Organ” instead of “Preludes”.²⁸ Knud Hjortø²⁹ was more discreet in his review in Vor Ungdom. He wrote:

“The preludes should be known by Danish organists, and they should be presented to the congregations. It may well be that many people will find them a little odd and perhaps a little too cheerful at first, but on the other hand people have gradually become used to music that is in the old style, and rigid formality is probably less appreciated than it once was”.³⁰

To follow up on Hjortø’s review the editor of Vor Ungdom asked Nielsen to contribute a reply in this discussion. This led to an article in which Nielsen wrote:

“As for my opinion about the use of the Preludes, it is of course difficult for me, given my interest in the matter, to stand quite objectively before my own small, cherished creations, but I will try, and so I will first mention the numbers that are certainly not suitable for liturgical use in our age, that is Nos. VIII, XI, XV, XVIII, XXII, XXVI and XXVIII. On the other hand I think that I, II, III, V, VII, X, XII, XIV, XIX, XXI, XXV and XXIX can be heard in church; Nos. XIV and XXIX are perhaps best as processional, the rest as recessional. About the numbers in the volume that I have not mentioned I can venture no opinion in this context. At present there are such great differences of opinion within what are otherwise the most advanced and promising circles, that it is quite strange; and even among a whole phalanx of young and youngish church musicians who believe they are striving for the same goal, opinions are widely different when it comes to organ music in church, and of course what underlies this is the fact that we do not have organ music from a time or of a content that corresponds to that of the a cappella style. In other words, we lack models.

One of the most knowledgeable and most gifted of the young church musicians, the organist Peter Thomsen, has however recently proposed the following three requirements for sacred organ music in a letter to me:³¹ snarere samlingen som egnet til studiebrug og foreslog titlen “Studier for Orgel” i stedet for “Præludier”.²⁸ Mere afdæmpet var Knud Hjortø²⁹ i sin anmeldelse i Vor Ungdom. Han skrev bl.a.:

“Præludierne bør kendes af danske organister, og de bør forelægges for menigheden. At mange til at begynde med vil finde dem lidt aparte og måske lidt for glade, kan jo gerne være, men på den anden side er folk efterhånden blevet noget vant til musik, der er i gammel stil, og den stive højtidelighed er sikkert mindre regnet, end den engang var.”³⁰

I forlængelse af Hjortø’s anmeldelse bad redaktionen af Vor Ungdom Carl Nielsen om selv at bidrage med en replik i denne diskussion. Det førte til et indlæg hvori det bl.a. hed:

“Hvad nu min Mening om Præludiernes Anvendelse angaar, saa er det naturligt for mig, som er Part i Sagen, vanskeligt at staa helt objektivt overfor mine egne smaa, kære Skabninger, men jeg skal forsøge, og jeg vil saa først nævne de Numre, som afgjort ikke egner sig til kirkelig Brug i vor Tid, nemlig Nr. VIII, XI, XV, XVIII, XXII, XXVI og XXVIII. Derimod mener jeg, at I, II, III, V, VII, X, XII, XIV, XIX, XXI, XXV og XXIX kan lade sig høre i Kirken; Nr. XIV og XXIX maaske bedst som Indgangsspil, Resten til Udgang. Om de Numre i Heftet, jeg ikke har nævnt, tør jeg i denne Sammenhæng ikke have nogen Mening. Der hersker i Øjeblikket saa stor Meningsforskel indenfor de ellers mest fremskredne og forjættende Krese, at det er helt forunderligt; og selv blandt en hel Falanks af unge og yngre Kirkemusikere, der mener at stræbe efter samme Maal, er Meningen vidt forskellige, naar det drejer sig om Orgelmusik i Kirken, og det ligger naturligt deri, at vi ikke har Orgelmusik fra en Tid eller af et Indhold, der svarer til a capella-Stilens. Med andre Ord: vi mangler Forbilleder.

En af de bedst funderede og mest begavede blandt de unge Kirkemusikere, Organist Peter Thomsen, har imidlertid i et Brev³¹ til mig fornylig fremsat følgende tre Krav angaaende de Egenskaber, kirkelig Orgelmusik bør have:

1) Linear composition – that is, melodic parts that are not stopped by periodic phrase-building, da capo forms and the like.

2) Modulation that is not used to ‘colour’ the theme but which – when it is used at all – only appears because the motion of the parts actually requires it.

3) A certain ‘spaciousness’, so that listeners – in this case the congregation – do not get the impression that the music is the speech or reflections of one man.

I wholly agree with these words, and if ever again I engage in the composition of organ preludes, I will take pains to suppress personal taste and aspire to the crystal-clear values that lie latent in the will of the music itself, elevated above all kinds of personal feelings.”³²

The main source for the present edition is the printed edition of 1930, but taking into account an errata list that Peter Thomsen drew up immediately after the appearance of the printed edition.³³ In addition, the two fragmentary fair copies and the pencil draft have, in certain instances, served to correct obvious errors.

MELODY

In the pencil draft of the 29 Little Preludes for Organ or Harmonium, between Nos. 13 and 14, there is a small piece designated Melody. It is clear from the manuscript that this piece was at first numbered as No. 14, but later the number was rubbed out and the whole piece was put in brackets. Apart from this draft there are no other sources for this little piece, which was probably never played in public. The piece is published here for the first time.

TWO PRELUDES

The two preludes with no opus number were composed for Peter Thomsen at the beginning of 1931, possibly after the composition of Commotio had been completed. It is reasonable to see these two pieces as the composer’s attempt to meet the requirements for a sacred organ style that were expressed in the above-mentioned article in Vor Ungdom. The preludes were published in 1947 by Skandinavisk Musikforlag. The main source for the present edition is the fair copy that Nielsen sent to Peter Thomsen.

1) Lineær Skrivemaade – altsaa melodiske Stemmer, der ikke standses af Periodebygning, da capo-Former o.l.

2) En Modulation, der ikke benyttes til at ‘farve’ Temaet, men som – naar den overhovedet fremkommer – kun optræder, fordi Stemmernes Gang ligefrem kræver den.

3) En vis ‘Rummelighed’, saa at Tilhørerne – i dette Tilfælde Menigheden – ikke faar Indtryk af, at Musikken er en Enkeltmands Tale eller Betragtninger.

Jeg slutter mig ganske til disse Ord, og skulde jeg endnu engang komme til Komposition af Orgelpræludier, vil jeg umage mig med Undertrykkelse af personlig Smag og stræbe imod de krystalklare Værdier, som ligger gemt i Tonerens Egenvillie, hævet over alle Slags Fornemmelser.”³²

Hovedkilden til nærværende udgave er den trykte udgave fra 1930, idet der er taget hensyn til en trykfejlsliste som Peter Thomsen udarbejdede umiddelbart efter fremkomsten af den trykte udgave.³³ Endvidere har de to fragmentariske renskrifter og blyantskladden i visse tilfælde kunnet tjene til at korrigere oplagte fejl.

MELODI

I blyantskladden til 29 smaa Præludier for Orgel eller Harmonium findes mellem nr. 13 og 14 en lille sats der er betegnet Melodi. Det fremgår tydeligt af manuskriptet at denne sats først har været nummereret som nr. 14, men siden er nummeret blevet visket ud, og hele satsen er sat i parentes. Bortset fra denne kladder findes der ikke andre kilder til dette lille stykke som antagelig aldrig har været fremført offentligt. Satsen udgives hermed for første gang.

TO PRÆLUDIER

De to præludier uden opusnummer er komponeret til Peter Thomsen i begyndelsen af 1931, muligvis efter afslutningen af Commotio. Det er oplagt at se disse to satser som komponistens forsøg på at efterleve de krav til kirkelig orgelstil der kom til udtryk i den ovenfor omtalte artikel i Vor Ungdom. Præludierne udkom i 1947 på Skandinavisk Musikforlag. Hovedkilden til nærværende udgave er den renskrift som Carl Nielsen sendte til Peter Thomsen.

COMMOTIO, OPUS 58

After the composition of the 29 Little Preludes for Organ or Harmonium Nielsen began work on what was to be his last major composition, the organ work Commotio.³⁴ In so doing he was fulfilling a wish of many years' standing,³⁵ and unlike the little preludes, this work seems to have had no external prompting. For example on 4 March 1931 he remarked in a letter to his close friend Vera Michaelsen:³⁶ "It is perhaps foolish to create a work for which there may be no use and for which no one has asked, but I suppose we are all foolish when it comes down to it, and yet -- --!"³⁷

It is not quite clear precisely when Nielsen began working on Commotio; it can only be noted that some pages in the middle of the pencil draft are written on music paper that contained theory problems set for the organ examination of the conservatoire in June 1930, indicating the earliest possible date for these pages. The composition work lasted until the end of February 1931, when he put the finishing touches to the work during a stay at Damgaard. In Nielsen's extensive correspondence with family and friends it is clear that he ascribed extraordinary importance to the work. On 24th February he wrote to his son-in-law Emil Telmányi:³⁸

"None of my other works has demanded such great concentration as this: an attempt to reconstitute what is truly the only valid organ style, the polyphonic music that is especially suited to this instrument, which for a long time has been regarded as a kind of orchestra, which it absolutely is not. More on this when the occasion arises".³⁹

34 Latin: movement.

COMMOTIO, OPUS 58

Efter tilblivelsen af de 29 smaa Præludier for Orgel eller Harmonium påbegyndte Carl Nielsen arbejdet med det der skulle blive hans sidste større komposition, nemlig orgelværket Commotio.³⁴ Hermed realiserede han et mangeårigt ønske,³⁵ og i modsætning til de små præludier skyldes dette værk tilsyneladende ikke nogen ydre anledning. Således bemærkede han den 4. marts 1931 i et brev til sin gode veninde Vera Michaelsen³⁶ at: "Det er maaske fjollet at man udfører et Værk som der maaske slet ikke er Brug for og som ingen har spurgt om, men vi er vel alle fjollede, naar det kommer til Stykket og dog -- --!"³⁷

Det står ikke helt klart præcis hvornår Carl Nielsen påbegyndte arbejdet med Commotio, blot kan det konstateres at nogle sider midt i blyantskladden er nedskrevet på nodepapir der har indeholdt teoriopgaver til konservatoriets organisteksamen juni 1930; altså kan disse sider af kladden tidligst være nedskrevet på dette tidspunkt. Arbejdet med kompositionen strakte sig frem til slutningen af februar 1931 hvor han under et ophold på Damgaard lagde sidste hånd på værket. I Carl Niensens omfattende korrespondance med familie og venner fremgår det klart at han tillagde værket overordentlig stor betydning. Den 24. februar skrev han til sin svigersøn Emil Telmányi:³⁸

"Intet af mine andre Arbejder har krævet saa stor Koncentration som dette: Et Forsøg paa at genopbygge den virkelig eneste gældende Orgelstil, nemlig den polyfone Musik som passer specielt for dette Instrument, som i lang Tid er blevet betragtet som et Slags Orkester, hvad det aldeles ikke er. Mere herom ved Lejlighed."³⁹

Det skal dog i denne forbindelse nævnes at Emilius Bangert angiveligt skulle have opfordret Carl Nielsen til at komponere et koncertstykke til ham (venligst meddelt af fru Elin Bangert). Forholdet mellem Bangert og Carl Nielsen er behandlet i Niels Bo Foltmann "Emilius Bangert, Carl Nielsen og 'Commotio'", Musik i Roskilde - fra jødeharpe til festival (Historisk årbog fra Roskilde Amt 1996/97), s. 51-62.

On 26 February he wrote to Knud Jeppesen:⁴⁰

“I am here to make the last concentrated effort on my big organ work, and in a few days I shall have finished. It has interested me a great deal, but that is of course not to say that it has arrived at the goal I set myself, and I am really very anxious to know what you – and perhaps one or two other artists – will say about it. Only in one respect have I outdone Johan Seb. Bach’s organ works: in length. I think it plays between 22 and 24 minutes”.

The same day Nielsen related in a letter to his wife that now he was sure about his work and had actually finished it. He had only a few hours left before he could begin to make the fair copy.⁴¹

The draft is end-dated “Damgaard 27 Febr 31”, and on 2 March the relieved composer could again write to his wife:

“Now my big organ piece is quite finished and I am happy about the work because it has been done with greater skill than all my other things; I myself must be the best judge of that, although not of what it is otherwise like in spirit. It is a large work, and lasts I think about 22 minutes. Bach’s longest organ work (the Prelude and Fugue in E minor) is 368 bars long, mine is 511; so as far as size is concerned – – ? Bach is unreachable!”⁴²

On the title page of the fair copy the title is given as Commotio. Nr. I, which might indicate that Nielsen had planned this work as the first in a whole series of works of the same kind. As we know, such a plan was never realized.

There was great interest in the new work among Danish organists, and it was played privately by three different organists before its first public performance. The first of these private performances took place on 24 April 1931 in Christiansborg Palace Chapel. Shortly before this Nielsen had given Peter Thomsen the manuscript to look through, and after he had

Og den 26. februar skriver han til Knud Jeppesen:⁴⁰

“Jeg er her for at faa den sidste Koncentration til mit store Orgelværk, og om et Par Dage er jeg færdig. Det har interesseret mig i stærkeste Grad, men det er naturligvis ikke ensbetydende med at det er ved Maalet, jeg satte mig, og jeg er egentlig meget spændt paa, hvad De – og maaske en eller to Kunstnere mere – vil sige til det. Kun i en henseende har jeg overgaaet Johan Seb. Bachs Orgelværker: i Omfanget. Jeg tror det spiller mellem 22 og 24 Minutter.”

Samme dag berettede Carl Nielsen i et brev til hustruen Anne Marie at han nu var sikker på sit værk og i virkeligheden færdig. Der manglede blot nogle timers arbejde før han kunne tage fat på renskriften.⁴¹

Kladden er slutdateret “Damgaard 27 Febr 31”, og den 2. marts kunne en lettet komponist atter skrive til sin hustru:

“Nu er mit store Orgelstykke helt færdigt og jeg er glad for det Arbejde fordi det er gjort med større Dygtighed end alle mine andre Ting; det kan jeg jo nok selv bedømme, derimod ikke hvordan det ellers er i Aanden. Det er et stort Værk og varer vist circa 22 Minutter. Bachs største Orgelværk (Præludium og Fuga i e moll) er paa 368 Takter, mit er 511, saa hvad Omfanget angaar – – ? Bach er uopnaaelig!”⁴²

På titelbladet af renskriften anføres værkets titel som Commotio. Nr. I, hvilket kunne tyde på, at Carl Nielsen forestillede sig dette værk som det første af en hel række værker af samme art. En sådan plan blev som bekendt aldrig realiseret.

Forhåndsinteressen for det nye orgelværk var stor blandt de hjemlige organister, og inden den første offentlige fremførelse blev det spillet gentagne gange under private former af tre forskellige organister. Den første af disse koncerter fandt sted den 24. april 1931 i Christiansborg Slotskirke. Carl gained a rudimentary knowledge of the work they agreed on a time and place for playing it through for the composer. On this occasion the work was played through twice.⁴³

On Sunday 14th June it was Finn Viderø⁴⁴ who performed Commotio (also twice) in a private performance in the St. Nikolaj Church Hall, where a new Marcussen organ, built according to the principles of the Organ Movement, had been installed the previous year. Unfortunately we have no statements from Nielsen about the new organ and its possible significance for the realization of his intentions.⁴⁵

A week later Emilius Bangert performed the work in Roskilde Cathedral. Again, the composer was present with a group of family and friends.⁴⁶

Finally, at some point just before 16th July, Peter Thomsen must again have played the work for Nielsen, since the latter wrote (in a letter to Thomsen dated 16th July 1931): “It pleased me greatly to hear the stage you’ve reached with my ‘Commotio’.”⁴⁷

On 27th June Bangert wrote to Nielsen, suggesting how the work might be shortened:

“However, there is one place in it where I feel a deficiency – or rather, that there is too much. It is the little idyllic piece in 3/4 time. I have a feeling that it forms too great a break in the fugue and makes the work as a whole slightly too long. Do not take it the wrong way that I write this; I feel my argument is strengthened by the fact that Christiansen, without my saying anything about it, tells me that he [had] quite the same impression – that is, that the fugue, from about ten bars before the idyll, should not slacken, but rise in intensity to the excellent final set of entries. I myself think that there should be a cut from about bar 9 before the idyll to bar 9 before the cadence or at this point there should be a bridging passage without any abatement in tempo and dynamics. Excuse my immodest and unsolicited interference in this matter. Please think about it – I would so much like to see your first major organ work have the great, monumental feel quite consistently. It is the only really ‘great’ organ work at all in contemporary music”⁴⁸

Nielsen havde kort forinden givet Peter Thomsen manuskriptet til gennemsyn, og efter at denne havde sat sig nødtørftigt ind i værket, havde de aftalt tid og sted for en gennemspilning. Ved denne lejlighed blev værket spillet to gange.⁴³

Søndag den 14. juni var det Finn Viderø⁴⁴ der opførte Commotio (ligeledes to gange) ved en privat koncert i Sankt Nikolaj Kirkesal hvor der året før var blevet opstillet et nyt Marcussen-orgel, bygget efter orgelbevægelsens principper. Desværre foreligger ingen udtalelser fra Carl Niensens side om det nye orgel og dets mulige betydning for virkeliggørelsen af hans intentioner.⁴⁵

Senere på måneden – sankthansaftensdag – spillede Emilius Bangert værket i Roskilde Domkirke hvor komponisten igen var til stede sammen med en kreds af familie og venner.⁴⁶

Endelig må Peter Thomsen på et tidspunkt umiddelbart før den 16. juli have spillet værket for Carl Nielsen, idet denne i et brev til Peter Thomsen (dateret den 16. juli 1931) skrev: “Det glædede mig meget at høre den Form, De nu har faaet paa min ‘Commotio’”⁴⁷

Den 27. juni skrev Bangert til Carl Nielsen og foreslog en forkortelse af værket:

“Der er dog et Sted i det, hvor jeg føler en Mangel, – eller rettere, at der staar formeget. Det er den lille idylliske Sats i 3/4 Takt. Jeg har paa Følelsen, at den gør for stærkt Indbrud i Fugaen og gør Værket som Helhed noget for langt. Tag mig ikke ilde op, at jeg skriver det; jeg bestyrkedes i Sagen ved, at Christiansen, uden at jeg havde nævnt noget derom, siger mig, at han [havde] ganske det samme Indtryk, – altsaa, at Fugaen fra en halv Snæs Takter før Idyllen ikke maa afslappes, men tværtimod stige i Intensitet til den udmærkede Slutningsgennemførelse. Jeg tror selv, at der skulde gøres et Spring fra c. Takt 9 før Idyllen til Takt 9 før Slutningsgennemførelsen eller paa dette Sted laves en Overgang uden Afspænding i Tempo og Dynamik. Undskyld min uskaansomme og ukaldede Indblanding i denne Sag. Tænk venligt derover, – jeg vilde jo saa gerne, at Deres første store Orgelværk skulde have det store, monumentale Præg helt gennemført. Det er overhovedet det eneste virkelig ‘store’ Orgelværk i ny Musik.”⁴⁸

A month later, on 26 July, Nielsen replied:

“I have thought about your suggestion for the cut in ‘Commotio’, but I think the fault (in the architecture) lies elsewhere, and perhaps in the fact that the last fugato movement should be mightier, that’s to say also broader.

But we will talk again, and you must not think that I would feel for a moment that your honest criticism is offensive. I may be an old cavalier, but I don’t like to get on my high horse, and I am simply grateful if we can arrive at the best result through mutual help and sincere exchanges of opinions”.⁴⁹

It is generally known that Nielsen was very open to colleagues’ suggestions for small changes in his works. It is therefore all the more notable in this case to see how he was not in doubt about the viability of his own ideas.

The circumstances surrounding the actual first performance of Commotio are slightly obscure. The fact of the matter is that Nielsen had somehow “promised” the first performance to both Emilius Bangert and Peter Thomsen.⁵⁰ However, the problem was solved by Bangert “premiering” the work in Aarhus, while Peter Thomsen first performed it in Copenhagen.⁵¹ The actual first performance thus took place in Aarhus Cathedral on 14th August 1931, at the Aarhus Tourist Association’s 40th Organ Recital.⁵² Nielsen, who was by this time greatly weakened by a heart condition, deliberated to the last whether he had the strength to make the trip. But in the end he did go to Aarhus, where he attended the concert. The first performance appears to have passed off quite unremarked, for apart from a small advance notice in Aarhus Stiftstidende on 12th August, it has not been possible to find any mention, let alone reviews, of this concert.

In the course of the summer the news of Nielsen’s major organ work also reached south of the Danish border, and in July the cathedral organist and Landeskirchenmusik-

En måned senere, den 26. juli, svarede Carl Nielsen:

“Jeg har tænkt meget paa Deres Forslag om det Spring i ‘Commotio’, men jeg tror Fejlen (i det arkitektoniske) ligger anderledes og maaske deri at den sidste fugerede Sats skal være mere mægtig, altsaa ogsaa bredere.

Men vi tales ved og De maa ikke tro at jeg et Øjeblik skulde føle Deres ærlige Kritik som stødende. Vel er jeg en ældre Kavallér, men det pukker jeg nødtigt paa og jeg er bare taknemmelig ifald vi kan naa til det bedste Resultat ved fælles Hjælp og oprigtig Udveksling af Meninger.”⁴⁹

Det er almindelig kendt at Carl Nielsen var meget åben over for kollegers forslag til mindre ændringer i hans værker. Så meget desto mere bemærkelsesværdigt er det derfor at konstatere hvordan han i dette tilfælde ikke var i tvivl om bæredygtigheden af sine egne ideer.

Forholdene omkring den egentlige uropførelse af Commotio er lidt dunkle. Sagen er den at Carl Nielsen var kommet til at “love” uropførelsen til såvel Emilius Bangert som Peter Thomsen.⁵⁰ Problemet blev imidlertid løst ved at Bangert “uropførte” værket i Aarhus, medens Peter Thomsen opførte det “1ste Gang” det i København.⁵¹ Den egentlige uropførelse fandt således sted i Aarhus Domkirke den 14. august 1931 ved Aarhus Turistforenings 40. Orgelforedrag.⁵² Carl Nielsen der på dette tidspunkt var stærkt svækket pga. en hjertelidelse, overvejede til det sidste om han havde kræfter til turen, men endte dog med at tage til Århus hvor han overværede koncerten. Uropførelsen er tilsyneladende foregået ganske ubemærket, for bortset fra en lille forhåndstale i Aarhus Stiftstidende den 12. august har det ikke været muligt at finde omtaler, endsige anmeldelser af denne koncert.

I løbet af sommeren var nyheden om Carl Niensens store orgelværk også nået syd for grænsen, og i juli henvendte domorganisten og Landeskirchenmusikdirektor fra Schleswig, Torben Schousboe (1983), op. cit., p. 611). The confusion has been aggravated by the fact that Emilius Bangert himself, in Roskilde Tidende, 10.2.1932, spoke of the Lübeck performance as the first performance.

51 This performance took place 9.11.1931 in the church Helligåndskirken in the first concert of the Dansk Koncert-Forening.

Torben Schousboe (1983), op. cit., s. 611). Forvirringen er ikke blevet mindre af at Emilius Bangert i Roskilde Tidende, 10.2.1932 selv har omtalt Lübeck-opførelsen som uropførelsen.

51 Denne opførelse fandt sted 9.11.1931 i Helligåndskirken ved Dansk Koncert-Forenings første koncert.

direktor from Schleswig, Erwin Zillinger,⁵³ approached Bangert and Carl Nielsen⁵⁴ with a request for permission to perform Commotio at the Nordic-German Organ Week that was to take place in Lübeck in October. However it was Bangert who eventually gave this performance. During the preparations for the concert Nielsen was asked to write programme notes for his new organ work, and on 30 August he wrote to Bangert:

“I do not really know how we should furnish the programme, but in the title I think we must furnish Commotio with a footnote, thus:

Carl Nielsen:

*Commotio for Organ Op. 58

[footnote:] *Bewegung, auch geistig.

I do not want to add the word ‘phantasierender’⁵⁵.

After all, the work is so rigorous in its form and part-writing that I am incapable of doing anything more fixed. I would like the following, if more explanation is wanted than the title itself (overleaf), which I would really rather see it limited to.⁵⁶

The Latin word Commotio really applies to all music, but the word is used more specifically here as an expression of self-objectification.

In a major work for the mighty instrument that is called the organ, whose sound is determined by the natural element we call air, the composer must attempt to suppress all personal, lyrical feelings. – The expression becomes great and rigorous and demands a kind of dryness instead of the emotional, and must rather be gazed at with the ear than embraced by the heart.

The work is borne up by two fugues, to which an introduction, intervening movements and coda cling like climbing plants to the tree-trunks of the forest; however, the composer thinks that further analysis is superfluous.

The Germans of course like to have something, but down there you can give them three alternatives: 1) the bare title; 2) the bracketed { piece;⁵⁷ 3) your suggestion on the card (which I enclose in case you have not made a copy.)”⁵⁸

Erwin Zillinger,⁵³ sig til Bangert og Carl Nielsen⁵⁴ med en anmodning om tilladelse til at opføre Commotio ved den nordisk-tyske orgeluge som skulle finde sted i Lübeck i oktober måned. Det blev dog i sidste ende Bangert der kom til at forestå denne opførelse. Under forberedelserne til den pågældende koncert blev Carl Nielsen opfordret til at skrive programnoter til sit nye orgelværk, og den 30. august skrev han til Bangert:

“Jeg ved ikke rigtigt hvorledes vi skal forsyne Programmet, men i Titlen maa vi vist helst forsyne Commotio med en Fodnote, saaledes altsaa:

Carl Nielsen:

*Commotio für Orgel Op 58

[note] *Bewegung, auch geistig.

Jeg vil ikke gerne have noget om ‘phantasierender’ ind. Værket er jo saa strengt i sin Form og Stemmeføring at jeg ikke evner at gøre noget fastere.

Jeg kunde tænke mig følgende ifald man vil have mere Forklaring end selve Titlen (omstaaende) som jeg egentlig helst saa det indskrænket til:

Das lateinische Wort Commotio gilt eigentlich alle Musik, aber das Wort ist hier besonders benutzt als ein Ausdruck für Selbst-Objektivierung.

In einem grösseren Werke für das mächtige Instrument welches man Orgel nennt, und dessen Töne von dem Naturelement, welches man Luft nennt, bedingt sind, muss der Komponist versuchen alle persönliche, lyrische Gefühle zu unterdrücken. – Die Ausgabe wird gross und streng und fordert eine Art Trockenheit anstatt das Gefühlsvolle und muss lieber mit dem Ohre⁵⁵ beschaut als vom Herzen umschlungen sein.

Das Werk wird von zwei Fugen getragen wozu Introduction, Zwischensätze und Koda sich klammern, wie Schlingpflanzen an den Stämmen des Waldes; der Komponist meint aber dass weitere Analyse überflüssig ist.

Tyskerne vil jo gerne have noget men De kan jo give dem dernede 3 Alternativer 1) den tørre Titel 2) det indklammede { Stykke⁵⁶ 3) Deres Forslag paa Kortet (som jeg sender med ifald De ikke har taget Kopi).”⁵⁷

The plan had been that Nielsen himself would go to Lübeck and attend the concert. This came to nothing,⁵⁹ but immediately before Bangert went off to Lübeck, he played Commotio one more time for Nielsen in Roskilde Cathedral.⁶⁰

In the middle of the Nordic-German Organ Week the announcement of Nielsen's death came. All the participants were profoundly moved, and when Bangert performed Commotio in the final concert on 6th October, the concert had completely changed character. What should have been a tribute to Denmark's great living composer became instead a moving valediction. The concert was reviewed by Svend-Ove Møller⁶¹ in Dansk Kirkemusiker-Tidende. The review says among other things:

“In the final concert, which also took place in the Marienkirche, the cathedral precentor Emilius Bangert (Roskilde) played Nielsen's last work: Commotio for organ. Mixed with the melancholy feelings that fill us on the death of Nielsen, is gratitude that it was granted him to complete this work, which we may designate without exaggeration as the most significant production in recent organ literature. Nielsen understood as few others did how to deploy the resources of his time such that they do not appear modern in the negative sense. His mode of expression, peculiar and distinctive as it may be, feels quite natural; not for an instant does one get the impression that he sought out new paths simply to get away from the well-known roads; the affectation which so often characterizes modern music is not to be found in Carl Nielsen; his thoroughly wholesome musical idiom and his ability to create living music has produced here an organ work of enduring value.

Emilius Bangert gave Nielsen's work a masterly performance. Deeply immersed in the composition, he was able to create the effect of a sculpted totality with a meticulous account of all details; even the smallest figure was given precisely the musical form that it should have – something that is in fact typical of Bangert's eminent organ art. It was an experience to attend the first performance of Nielsen's Commotio in the memorable Marienkirche, where presumably most of the other great Danish master Buxtehude's organ works sounded for the first time”.⁶²

Det havde egentlig været planen at Carl Nielsen selv skulle tage til Lübeck og overvære koncerten. Dette blev imidlertid ikke til noget,⁵⁸ men umiddelbart før Bangert drog af sted til Lübeck, spillede han endnu engang Commotio for Carl Nielsen i Roskilde Domkirke.⁵⁹

Midt under den nordisk-tyske orgeluge indløb meddelelsen om Carl Niensens død. Alle deltagere var dyb berørte, og da Bangert fremførte Commotio ved afslutningskoncerten den 6. oktober, havde koncerten ganske skiftet karakter. Det der skulle have været en hyldest til Danmarks store nulevende komponist, blev i stedet en bevægende afsked. Koncerten blev anmeldt af Svend-Ove Møller⁶⁰ i Dansk Kirkemusiker-Tidende. Heri hedder det bl.a.:

“Ved Afslutningskoncerten, som ligeledes fandt Sted i Mariekirken, spillede Domkantor Emilius Bangert (Roskilde) Carl Niensens sidste Værk: Commotio for Orgel. I de vemodige Følelser, der fylder os ved Tanken om Carl Niensens Død, blander sig Taknemmeligheden over, at det forundtes ham at fuldføre dette Arbejde, der uden Overdrivelse tør betegnes som den nyere Orgellitteraturs betydeligste Frembringelse. Carl Nielsen forstod som faa at benytte sin Tids Virkemidler paa en saadan Maade, at de ikke virker moderne i daarlig Forstand. Hans Udtryksmaade, hvor ejendommelig og særpræget den end er, føles ganske naturlig, ikke et Øjeblik faar man Indtryk af, at han søgte nye Stier blot for at komme bort fra de kendte Veje; det forskruede, der saa ofte præger moderne Musik, findes ikke hos Carl Nielsen, hans kernesunde Tonesprog og Evne til at skabe levende Musik har her frembragt et Orgelværk af blivende Værdi.

Emilius Bangert gav Carl Niensens Værk en mesterlig Udførelse. Dybt indlevet i Kompositionen formaaede han at skabe en plastisk Helhedsvirkning med omhyggelig Redegørelse for alle Enkeltheder, selv den mindste Figur fik netop den musikalske Form, som den skulde have, – noget der jo er typisk for Bangerts fornemme Orgelkunst. Det var en Oplevelse at overvære Uropførelsen af Carl Niensens Commotio i den minde- rige Mariekirke, hvor vel de fleste af den anden danskfødte Stormester, Buxtehudes, Orgelværker har lydt for første Gang.”⁶¹

On the journey home from Lübeck Bangert wrote the following letter of condolence (dated 7 October) to Anne Marie Carl-Nielsen. He said among other things:

“At the pre-concert meeting for the ‘Organ Week’ on Monday morning, the President, Dr. Domes, informed those in attendance what had happened, and urged me to say some commemorative words about your husband, which I did as well as I could, struggling both with the foreign language and with my own emotions. The whole company was greatly moved – and not least on Tuesday at the performance of the work. I myself hardly know how it went, but in the judgement of competent listeners it went well. The enthusiasm for the new organ work was overwhelming; at the gathering after the concert the manuscript was circulated – all the organists studied and discussed it, and expressed the unanimous wish that it might become available through publication soon”.⁶³

In the course of the summer of 1931 Carl Nielsen had begun to investigate the possibility of having Commotio printed. He wrote to the German organ expert and music publisher Hans Henny Jahnn⁶⁴ and asked about the possibility of having Commotio published by a German publishing house, which he thought would make the work more widely known than if it appeared from a Danish publisher. However, Jahnn was rather sceptical about the possibility of the work being printed in Germany – Peters in particular he considered out of the question – yet he was not averse to a possible publication from his own publishing house Ugrino.⁶⁵ But before the negotiations with Jahnn had been completed Nielsen died, and instead it was Emil Telmányi who came to be responsible for the publication. As early as 1932 Commotio was available in print, published by Samfundet til udgivelse af Dansk Musik (3rd series, No. 40) in collaboration with the Danish publisher Skandinavisk- og Borups Musikforlag and the German firm Fr. Kistner & C.F.W. Siegel. As his basis for the edition Telmányi had used two sources, Nielsen’s ink manuscript and the pencil draft. He corrected the ink manu-

På rejsen hjem fra Lübeck skrev Bangert følgende kondolencebrev (dateret den 7. oktober) til Anne Marie Carl-Nielsen. Heri hed det bl.a.:

“Ved ‘Orgelugens’ Forhandlingsmøde Mandag Morgen meddelte Præsidenten, Dr. Domes, Deltagerne, hvad der var sket, og rettede Opfordring til mig om at sige nogle Mindeord om Deres Mand, hvad jeg gjorde, saa godt jeg kunde, kæmpende baade med det fremmede Sprog og min egen Bevægelse. Der var stor Grebthed over Forsamlingen, – og ikke mindre i Tirsdags ved Værkets Opførelse. Jeg ved selv knapt nok, hvordan det gik, men efter kompetente Tilhøreres Dom skal det være gaaet godt. Begejstringen over det nye Orgelværk var overvældende; ved Sammenkomsten efter Koncerten circulerede Manuskriptet, – alle Organisterne studerede og diskuterede det og fremsatte énstemmigt Ønske om, at det gennem en snarlig Offentliggørelse maa blive tilgængeligt.”⁶²

I løbet af sommeren 1931 havde Carl Nielsen begyndt at undersøge mulighederne for at få Commotio trykt. I den forbindelse henvendte han sig til den tyske orgelelksperit og musikforlægger Hans Henny Jahnn⁶³ og forhørte sig om mulighederne for at få Commotio udgivet på et tysk forlag, hvilket han mente ville give værket en større udbredelse, end hvis det udkom på et dansk forlag. Jahnn var imidlertid noget skeptisk mht. værkets muligheder for at bliver trykt i Tyskland – ikke mindst forlaget Peters regnede han for udelukket – han var dog ikke utilbøjelig til en eventuel udgivelse på sit eget forlag Ugrino.⁶⁴ Men inden forhandlingerne med Jahnn var ført til ende, døde Carl Nielsen, og det blev i stedet Emil Telmányi der kom til at forestå udgivelsen. Allerede i 1932 forelå Commotio på tryk udgivet af Samfundet til udgivelse af dansk Musik (3. serie, nr. 40) i et samarbejde med det danske forlag Skandinavisk- og Borups Musikforlag samt det tyske Fr. Kistner & C.F.W. Siegel. Som grundlag for udgaven havde Telmányi anvendt to kilder, nemlig Carl Niensens blækmanuskript og blyantskladde. Blækmanuskriptet rettede han til således at det kunne anvendes som trykforlæg, og hele script so that it could be used as the printing manuscript, and he documented the whole of the editorial work in an extensive list of emendations and alternative readings. Thus Nielsen's ink manuscript – the main source for the present new edition – appears with a large number of additions and changes in Telmányi's hand. For unexplained reasons Telmányi also made some additions – accidentals – in pencil in Carl Nielsen's pencil draft. These circumstances have greatly complicated the editorial work for this edition. To some extent Telmányi's list of emendations documents what he added and changed, but there remain a number of details where it has been impossible to determine whether a given addition in pencil comes from Nielsen's or Telmányi's hand. All doubtful cases are documented in the list of Editorial Emendations and Alternative Readings (pp. 267-270).

During Nielsen's lifetime at least three copies of the work were made, of which only a copy by Peter Thomsen (source C) is known to us today. From this, the copyist Otto Köppe made another copy, which was sent to Erwin Zillinger, who probably passed it on to Hans Henny Jahnn.⁶⁶ Besides, Finn Viderø is said to have possessed a copy of the manuscript.⁶⁷

Finally it should be mentioned that at one point Nielsen considered publishing the work entirely without expression and performance instructions.⁶⁸ However, the present edition includes all the markings that can be established with certainty as from Nielsen's hand.

revisionsarbejdet dokumenterede han i et omfattende revisions- og variantapparat. På denne måde fremtræder Carl Nielsens blækmanuskript – hovedkilden til nærværende nyudgave – med en lang række tilføjelser og ændringer i Telmányis hånd. Af uforklarlige grunde foretog Telmányi endvidere nogle tilføjelser – løse fortegn – med blyant i Carl Nielsens blyantskladde. Disse forhold har i høj grad kompliceret revisionsarbejdet til denne udgave. Telmányis revisionsberetning godtgør i en vis udstrækning hvad han har tilføjet og ændret, men tilbage står en række detaljer hvor det har være umuligt at afgøre, hvorvidt en given tilføjelse med blyant stammer fra Carl Nielsens eller Telmányis hånd. Alle tvivlstilfælde er dokumenteret i revisions- og variantfortegnelsen (s. 267-270).

I Carl Nielsens levetid blev der udarbejdet i det mindste tre afskrifter af værket hvoraf vi i dag kun har kendskab til den ene, nemlig en afskrift foretaget af Peter Thomsen (kilde C). På grundlag af denne udfærdigede kopisten Otto Köppe en afskrift der blev sendt til Erwin Zillinger, som antagelig har sendt den videre til Hans Henny Jahnn.⁶⁵ Endelig skal Finn Viderø have haft en kopi af manuskriptet.⁶⁶

Til slut skal det nævnes at Carl Nielsen på et tidspunkt overvejede at udgive værket helt uden nuancerings- og foredragsbetegnelser.⁶⁷ Nærværende udgave medtager dog alle betegnelser der med sikkerhed kan fastslås til at stamme fra Carl Nielsens hånd.

Suite, Opus 45, third movement bb. 19-22, draft (Source C). Shows original notation of b. 19. In the first printing, the lower dyads in the second half of the bar were transposed down a minor seventh. The present edition retains the change and considers it to be intentional. If it was not so, it must represent a double error on the part of the printer – mistaking both the octave register and the pitch-classes – and the double error must also have escaped Nielsen's attention in the proofs.

Suite, opus 45, tredje sats, t. 19-22, kladde (kilde C). Siden viser den oprindelige notation af t. 19. I førstetrykket er de nederste to-klange i anden halvdel af takten transponeret en septim ned. Nærværende udgave gengiver denne ændring og anser den ikke for at være en fejl. Såfremt der havde været tale om fejl, måtte nodestikkeren have begået en dobbelt fejltagelse – såvel oktavregister som tonehøjde – og denne dobbelte fejltagelse måtte i givet fald have undgået Carl Niensens opmærksomhed i forbindelse med hans korrekturlæsning.

Commotio (Source A), bb. 10-17. When preparing the fair copy Nielsen changed a triplet in b. 13 and b. 14 to a dotted rhythm, which, however, does not fit into the metre of the bar. It is probably a scribal error. The pencil additions were made by Emil Telmányi. See the same passage in source B (facsimile, p. lxxvii).

Commotio (kilde A), t. 10-17. I forbindelse med renskrivningen ændrede Carl Nielsen en triolfigur i t. 13 og t. 14 til en punkteret rytme, som imidlertid ikke passer ind i taktens metrum. Det må antages, at der er tale om en skrivefejl. Tilføjelserne med blyant er foretaget af Emil Telmányi. Se samme passage i kilde B (faksimile, s. lxxvii).

Measures 1-3 of the piece. The music is in C major, 2/4 time. Measure 1 starts with a piano (p) dynamic and is marked '(nynnende) (humming)'. The melody in the right hand consists of quarter notes: C4, D4, E4, F4, G4, A4, B4, C5. The left hand provides a simple accompaniment of quarter notes: C3, G2, C3, G2, C3, G2, C3, G2. Measure 2 continues the melody: D4, E4, F4, G4, A4, B4, C5, B4. Measure 3 continues: A4, G4, F4, E4, D4, C4. The dynamic changes to mezzo-forte (mf) in measure 3.

Measures 4-6 of the piece. Measure 4 starts with a piano (p) dynamic. The melody in the right hand: C4, D4, E4, F4, G4, A4, B4, C5. The left hand accompaniment: C3, G2, C3, G2, C3, G2, C3, G2. Measure 5 continues the melody: D4, E4, F4, G4, A4, B4, C5, B4. Measure 6 continues: A4, G4, F4, E4, D4, C4. The dynamic remains piano (p).

Measures 7-9 of the piece. Measure 7 starts with a mezzo-forte (mf) dynamic. The melody in the right hand: C4, D4, E4, F4, G4, A4, B4, C5. The left hand accompaniment: C3, G2, C3, G2, C3, G2, C3, G2. Measure 8 continues the melody: D4, E4, F4, G4, A4, B4, C5, B4. Measure 9 continues: A4, G4, F4, E4, D4, C4. The dynamic remains mezzo-forte (mf).

CRITICAL COMMENTARY

In the Critical Commentary the following conventions are used:

- 1 “by analogy with” is used when something has been “added”, “emended” or “omitted” by analogy with another passage in the main source. The analogy may be vertical. When something is added “by analogy with” one or more instruments, it is understood that the analogy is with the same place in the same bar(s). Or it may be horizontal. When something is added “by analogy with” one or more bars, it is understood that the analogy is with a parallel place in the same instrument(s).
- 2 “as in” is used when something is “added”, “emended” or “omitted” to correspond to the same place in another source.
- 3 “in accordance with” is used in cases where there is no authoritative source, only a guideline – for example printed part material.

In the bar number column, the symbol “+” is used to indicate an upbeat to the bar in question.

The earliest sources are the sketches (B, C, D). From these Nielsen presumably prepared fair copies which were sent to the music publisher Wilhelm Hansen but are now lost. However, probably before making these he wrote fair copies of Nos. II (originally entitled “Novellette”) and V (originally “Elfentanz”), source F, since these are preserved along with the memoirs of Emilie Demant Hatt and were therefore presumably notated during Emilie’s and Carl’s times together in the summers of 1887-89. The significant divergences between these copies and the first printed score suggest that they were early versions.

The first printed edition (A) has been chosen as the main source. Nielsen’s copy contains several corrections.

Fol.2^f: Two bars fair copy of first movement.
Included with a sketch for the Violin Sonata Op. 9.

The earliest sources for the Symphonic Suite are the sketches (C), elaborated into drafts in the same source. The fair copy was also used as printing manuscript (B). The two bars of fair copy in D appear in the middle of a sketch for the Violin Sonata, Op. 9. Nielsen’s own copy of the printed edition (A) has been chosen as the main source; some of its pencil and crayon corrections were incorporated into later printings.

"VORBEMERKUNG

Ursprünglich hatte ich mir gedacht, dem Titel dieser Suite das Wort "Luziferisch" hinzuzufügen, aber da dieses Wort die Gefahr einer einseitigen Auffassung in sich schließt, will ich lieber andeuten, wie die sechs Musikstücke aufgefaßt werden können. Ich sage ausdrücklich: aufgefaßt werden können, nicht aufgefaßt werden sollen, denn jeder talentvolle Künstler muß für seine eigene Auffassung Freiheit und Raum haben, und man sieht ja so oft in der ausübenden Kunst – Musik, Schauspielkunst – daß, wie ein Wunder, ein Nachteil sich zu einem Vorteil wenden kann, – gerade eine jener sonderbaren Erscheinungen, welche der Kunst oft ein wunderbares Leben verleiht.

Wenn ich Klavierkünstler wäre, würde ich mein Opus ungefähr wie folgt ausführen:

Den Anfang des ersten Satzes etwas kalt und spröde im Ton und in einem ruhig dahinfließenden Tempo. Bei "un poco meno" das Tempo wohl etwas langsamer, aber mehr inneres Leben. Bei "con fuoco" und schon etwas vorher ein mehr drohender Charakter. Der 5., 6. und 7. Takt nach "Tempo I pp" sehr innig.

Zweiter Satz: "Poco moderato" mit dem zartesten Klang und auserlesener Anwendung der Pedale, gleichsam lauschend.

Dritter Satz mit überlegener Ruhe und Kraft und an manchen Stellen – z.B. Takt 5 usw. und Takt 20 usw. – mit einer gewissen brutalen Laune.

Vierter Satz mit vollkommen kühlem gläsernen¹⁵ Vortrag, ohne Spur von "Gefühl" aber mit auserlesenem Klang.

Der fünfte Satz ergibt sich von selber.

¹⁵ The correct German should be gläsernem

Der sechste Satz durchweg mit einem Hintergrund von dämonischer Stimmung, welche den Spieler zu starken Kontrasten und heftigen Akzenten hintreibt. Kopenhagen, 24. April 1923. Carl Nielsen".¹⁶

16 "PREFACE

Originally I considered giving this Suite the title 'Luciferian'. But since this word invites a dangerously one-sided interpretation, I should rather suggest how the six pieces may be understood. I insist: may be, not should be, understood, because every talented artist must have freedom and space for his own interpretation, and often in the performing arts – music, acting – we see how a disadvantage can miraculously turn into an advantage. This is one of those special phenomena that often give art a wonderful life.

If I was a pianist, I would perform my opus something like this:

The beginning of the first movement rather cold and brittle in tone and in a peacefully flowing tempo. At un poco meno the tempo indeed somewhat slower, but with more inner life. At con fuoco and already a little before that, a more menacing character. The fifth, sixth and seventh bars after Tempo I pp very inwardly.

The second movement: Poco moderato with the tenderest tone and subtlest pedalling, as though listening.

The third movement with contemplative tranquillity and in many passages – e.g. bars 5ff. and 20 ff. – with a certain brutal temper.

The fourth movement in a totally cool, glassy style, with no trace of 'feeling' [i.e. with no affectation] but with subtle tone.

The fifth movement speaks for itself.

The sixth movement throughout with a demonic mood in the background, which drives the player to strong contrasts and decisive accents.

Kopenhagen, 24 April 1923. Carl Nielsen".

The numerous erasings and fragmentary sketches in C suggest that this was Nielsen's composing score, from which he made fair copies such as B. No autograph fair copies of third, fourth and sixth movement are extant, with the exception of the variant bars in sixth movement found with the draft score (C). Numerous significant differences between both B and C and Nancy Dalberg's fair copy (D) suggest that she must have prepared her copy from a source that has not survived. Similarly the extensive unique readings in the first printing (A) suggest the existence of a further intermediate source, no longer extant. Important variants between the first printing and other sources are shown by musical examples in the Editorial Emendations and are reproduced as facsimiles, pp. lxiv-lxxi. Of these, the variant reading at b. 19 is prima facie more plausible than the version in A, printed here. However, if the latter was incorrect, it would represent a double error on the part of the engraver (omitting an 8^{va} sign and misnotating by a second) not noticed by Nielsen at proof stage. For this reason, the reading in the main source is equally likely to represent a change of mind on the part of the composer, and the plausibility of the variant is considered insufficient to warrant departure from the principles of the present edition.

gen af det klanglige Udtryk i dette Afsnit af Klaverstykket og derfor ikke har noteret nogen Nuancering.

Betegnelserne maa derfor kun betragtes som et Forslag."²¹

From the draft score (D), Nielsen prepared the fair copy (A) and later the copies of No. II (B, C) which include the corrections noted separately in A. It is not possible to determine the chronology of B and C, and each contains a number of evident mis-copyings as well as corrections. As B is more carefully notated, it is taken as the main source for the second piece, together with the first and third pieces in A. Since I was published posthumously it is not taken into account in the preparation of the current edition. However, in view of Christian Christiansen's claim that the dynamic markings in bb. 1-24 of the first piece reflect the composer's general intention (see comment reproduced above) the two pages with these markings are included as facsimiles on pp. lxii and lxiii.

“FORORD. Ved et Møde i “Musikpædagogisk Forening” i December ifjor blev det drøftet, hvorvidt vore Komponister kunde tænke sig at komponere lette og for Undervisningen brugbare Smaastykker for Klaver. Nærværende Samling af korte og lette Stykker i alle Tonarter er et Forsøg paa en Udvidelse at Begrebet: “Femtonige Klaverstykker”. Jeg har ganske vist ikke overskredet det femtonige Omraade (Kvintbeliggenheden) i disse Smaastykker, men derimod indenfor de beskedne Rammer ved modulatoriske og polyfone Elementer bestræbt mig for at imødekomme en almindelig Trang i Tiden til at komme lidt mere forberedt og maaske ogsaa lidt hurtigere forstaaende hen til den store Musiklitteratur. København i Juli 1930 CARL NIELSEN²² VORWORT. Es wurde in einer Sitzung des “Musikpädagogischen Vereins” im Dezember vorigen Jahres erwägt, inwiefern unsere Tonsetzer sich denken könnten, leichte und für den Unterricht geeignete kleine Klavierstücke zu schreiben. Die vorliegende Sammlung von kurzen und leichten Stücken in allen Tonarten ist ein Versuch zur Erweiterung des Begriffes “Fünftönige Klavierstücke”. Ich habe zwar das fünftönige Gebiet (die Quintlage) in diesen kleinen Stücken nicht überschritten, habe mich jedoch innerhalb des bescheidenen Rahmens durch modulatorische und polyphone Elemente bestrebt, dem gegenwärtig allgemein herrschenden Bedürfniss entgegenzukommen: etwas besser vorbereitet und vielleicht auch mit mehr Verständnis in der grossen Musiklitteratur zu gelangen. Kopenhagen im Juli 1930 CARL NIELSEN”

²² “PREFACE: At a meeting of the ‘Music-Pedagogic Society’ last December there was a discussion as to how our composers might consider composing easy little piano pieces suitable for teaching purposes. The present collection of short, easy pieces in all the keys is an attempt to broaden the term ‘Five-note Piano Pieces’. Although I have not exceeded the five-note range (the perfect fifth) in these little pieces, on the other hand within the modest framework I have endeavoured by means of modulation and polyphony to meet a general urge nowadays to gain access to the great literature of music a little more readily and perhaps with a little more rapid understanding.

The draft score (D) contains all 25 pieces, but no complete fair copy evidently survives and no printing manuscript. Phrase markings in the fair copy of Nos. I-III (B) differ significantly from those in the printed score, and presumably the same would apply to the lost fair copy of the remaining pieces (all but No. XVIII, of which Nielsen made a copy, Source C). Only the most significant variant readings in the draft score are noted in the list of Editorial Emendations and Alternative Readings.

Paginated 1-4, 4a-4c, 5-36 (p. 35 unpaginated) partly in an unknown hand.

Paper type: 12 staves.

The source has been restored.

Title on 1st music page: "Smaa Præludier for Orgel eller / Harmonium".

²⁴ "Dear Lisa! Here are the small preludes I promised. As you can see I have indicated hardly anything as regards the performance (f, p etc.) but II for example is to be played vigorously and festively, XII and XXVIII strongly and emotionally and XXIII incisively; the rest people must find out for themselves. Greetings, Your Carl N. 22-10-29."

Contains a rough draft for all 29 preludes, as well as sketches for Fra Rold til Rebild (p. 4c), The silent woman (pp. 7, 33-34, 36), Melodi (pp. 15-16), Blomsterstøv fra Blomsterbæger (p. 33), Nu er for stakket Tid (p. 35), and manuscript copies from Tomás Luis de Victoria (p. 4b), G.P. da Palestrina (p. 4b), Giovanni Croce (p. 5). Page 4b is written on a scrapped manuscript title page with the words “Tre Klaverstykker / (Drei Klavierstücke) / af / Carl Nielsen.” written in ink.

E Printed edition, P.S. Rung-Keller’s copy.

DK-Kk, CNS 3e.

Dedication on the title page: “Kære Hr Rung-Keller! / Modtag de bedste Hilsener til / Højtiderne og en Tak for Deres / Interesse i det gamle Aar fra / Deres hengivne / Carl Nielsen / 23-12-1930”.²⁵

Donated to the Royal Library by P.S. Rung-Keller in 1965.

Same version as A.

The source has been trimmed.

Also contains a manuscript copy of Fest-Præludium ved Aarhundredskiftet [“Festival Prelude for the New Century”], designated “(XXX) Festprælud. (1900)”, arranged for organ (by Rung-Keller?). Pasted in on a single folio (25x27 cm, 14 staves) between p. 22 and p. 23.

Additions in pencil, and in red and blue crayon.

F Proofs, Peter Thomsen.

DK-Kk, CNS 3d.

Donated to the Royal Library by Irmelin Eggert Møller in 1958. 35x26 cm, 1 folio, fol.^r written in ink.

Paper type: 10 staves.

Contains proofs for Nos. VII, VIII, X, XXVII and XXVIII written in by Peter Thomsen.²⁶

G Draft for Nos. XXII and XXIII, fragment.

DK-Kk, CNS 003c.

No provenance.

35x27.2 cm, 1 folio, fol.^r written in pencil.

Paper type: 12 staves.

The source has been restored.

Contains a rough draft for No. XXII and No. XXIII, bb. 1-3 (presumably the source of Source D). In addition, cadential figures by G.P. da Palestrina, Jacob Handl, Clemens non Papa and Alessandro Scarlatti written in pencil by Carl Nielsen (fol.^v).

H Draft for No. XXVII.

DK-Kk, CNS 312b.

Donated to the Royal Library by Irmelin Eggert Møller in 1958. 35x27.5 cm., 2 pages written in pencil, additions in red crayon.

Contains an early draft for No. XXVII (fol. 2^f staves 7-10 – fol.2^v, staves 3-4, 7-10) and a ca. 3-bar sketch designated “Præludium”, 9/8, F sharp minor (not included in op. 51). Contained in sketch for Island, CNS 312b.

The earliest sources for the work are the two rough drafts (G, H), both of which are precursors to the complete draft (D). This was in turn the source for the fragmentarily preserved ink manuscript (B), which also functioned as the printing manuscript for the printed edition of 1930. The partly autograph score (C) was probably drawn up on the basis of B. The main source for the present edition is the printed edition (A), with allowances for a list of errata that Peter Thomsen drew up immediately after the appearance of the printed edition (F). Moreover, the two fragmentary fair copies and the pencil draft have in certain cases served to correct obvious errors.

I Suggested proof correction, Peter Thomsen.

DK-Kk, CNS 1f.

9x34.8 cm, 1 folio written in ink (fol.^r) and pencil (fol.^v).

Paper type: 4 staves (paper fragment).

Suggested corrections to bb. 176-177 written by Peter Thomsen.

(May belong to the time after Nielsen's death).

The earliest evidence of Nielsen's work with Commotio is to be found in the fragmentary sketches and draft (D, E, F, G, H). These were the point of departure for the complete pencil draft (B), which was in turn the source for the fair copy (A). Peter Thomsen's manuscript copy (C) was drawn up from A. On the basis of this the copyist Otto Köppe made a manuscript copy that was sent to Erwin Zillinger, who presumably sent it on to Hans Henny Jahnn.³⁶ Finally, Finn Viderø is said to have had a copy of the manuscript.³⁷ Neither of these two sources is known today. Peter Thomsen's suggested proof corrections (I) presumably arose after the death of the composer, probably in connection with the printing. In 1932 Commotio was available in print, edited by Emil Telmányi for Samfundet til udgivelse af dansk Musik (3rd series, no. 40) in a collaboration with the Danish publisher Skandinavisk- og Borups Musikforlag and the German Fr. Kistner & C.F.W. Siegel. As the basis for the edition Telmányi used two sources, Carl Nielsen's ink manuscript (A) and pencil draft (B). He prepared the ink manuscript for use as a printing manuscript, and he documented the whole of the editorial work in an extensive list of editorial emendations and variants. Thus Carl Nielsen's ink manuscript – the main source for the present new edition – appears with a large number of additions and changes in Telmányi's hand. For unexplained reasons Telmányi also made some additions – accidentals – in pencil in Carl Nielsen's pencil draft. These factors have greatly complicated the editorial work for this edition. Telmányi's editorial commentary documents to a great extent what he added and changed, but there remain a number of details where it has been impossible to tell whether a given addition in pencil is from Carl Nielsen's or Telmányi's hand. In the present edition we have disregarded Telmányi's revisions, although they are documented in the Editorial Emendations and Alternative Readings.
