Dear Miss Delvalle!

A long time has gone since I have heard anything from you or you from me. I don't know if you have had the cards, but I think so, as nothing has been returned to me in the last years. I have not hastend to write to you, because I have no better news for you than before. The status of your poor sister is quite unchanged, she does not speak at all but is quiet and gentle. Bodyly she is well, eats well and sleeps well as ever.

How are you? I should be glad to hear something from you, and especially how your address is that I can be more sure that my letters and cards can reach you.

With kind regards also from my wife

Yours truly
