Danish Official Account of the Copenhagen Battle. DENMARK. COPENHAGEN, APRIL 7

From OLFERT FISCHER, Commander in Chief, to his Royal Highness, the Crown Prince.

N the first of April at half past three o'clock in the Vafternoon, two divisions of the English fleet under Vice-Admiral Nelfon and a Rear-Admiral, weighed anchor, proceeded eastward towards the Middle Ground, and shortly cast anchor again fouth of the fame. This force confifted of twelve ships of the line, several large frigates, bomb and other veffels, making in all thirty-one fail. On the 2d of April, about nine in the morning, the wind S. E. these ships as well as those lying north of the Middle Ground under the command of Admiral Parker, weighed anchor. The thips of the line and heavy frigates, under the command of Vice-Admiral Nelfon, drew up towards the King's Deep, in order to take their station successively near the place which I was intrusted to defend. The bombarding and fmaller veffels took their station nearer the town; and the division of Admiral Parker, confibing of eight thips of the line and feveral smaller vessels, cruized with the utmost press of sail towards the fouth, to the right wing of the defence.

At half past ten o'clock, the northernmost thip of Ad ment or information in the name of the United States, or by action of debt, in the name of the United States, and of the informer; one half of which fine shall accrue to the United States. The guard ships, Provestmen and Wagrien, ship Dannebrog, the first English ship, being 74 guns, kept itself fast by means of an anchor) obeyed the signal by a well directed and well supported fire. The remainder of the ships then came up, and some of them having sailed in front of the ships that first cast anchor, and others behind them, they formed a close line; which, as it extended only north of the line of battle ship Leeland, engaged only two-thirds of the force entrusted to me. There being no fire from the Three Crown batteries, nor from the ships Elephant or Mars, and very little from the frigate Hielperen.

"In about half an hour after, the engagement become general. Twelve line of battle ships, of which one was of 80 guns, and almost all the rest of 74; and from six to eight frigates were on one fide. On the other fide were feven graid ships, one of which only was of 74 guns; the rest of 64 and under; two frigates and fix smaller vessels. The enemy had every where two ships for one of ours; and the guard ship Provestion had, besides the Rear-Admiral and a ship of the line, two frigates against her, which were raking her from ftem to ftern, without her being able to re-

" Were I only to relate, in the manner of an history, what your Royal Highness has seen, as well as the citizens of Denmark and of Europe; that this which I shall call an unequal contest, was maintained with unexampled bravery for the space of four hours and a half; that the fire of the power engaged with us was already fo exhaulted, that feveral of the Englith ships, and among the rest, that of Admiral Nelson, fired only single shots; that this hero, at the very moment, and during the very heat of the battle, sent a flag of truce on shore to require a cessation of hostilities :-When I have to add the account I received of two English Mines of the line having fruck, but that they hoifted their flags again, as foon as they were reinforced by other flips: Under those circumstances, I may be permitted to fay, that the ancient fame of Denmark in Naval wars has this day shone forth with incredible lustre, that I have to thank Heaven for having had all Europe as a witness to the same.

"Besides, the balance turned against Denmark in a quarter where it was not likely it should. The ships that were first, and to the south of those most severely attacked, and even the Providers had almost all their gams dismount. and even the Provoften, had almost all their guns dismounted, and were obliged to yield to a superior soice.

"About half paft ri, the Dannebrog line of battle ship, close to which Admiral Nelson lay for some time, was so much damaged, that I went with my flag on board the Holfiein, but instead of this the Dannebrog sought under the streamer that had been hoiseed. At the end of the battle, the had are man killed and wanneded. the had 270 men killed and wounded.

"About half past two the Holfiein was so shattered, had so many killed and wounded, and so great a number of guns dismounted, that I caused the streamer to be hoisted instead of my flag; and as the Zeoland had all her rigging that away, I betook myself to the Three Crown Battery, from which place I commanded the north wing which was flightly engaged with Admiral Parker's division, until I received at four o'clock the orders of your Royal Highwest to keep in the midst of the battle.

" Then, that part of the force which lay to the fouth of the Three Crown Battery, as far the frigate Hickornen, fell tend alone with a fuperior force, cut her table and got der way. The thip Riven after having received leveral their, had lie mafts and rigging fluctered, and loft a number of men in killed and wounded; his brought back into the Crown by the gun hoats Nyborg and Agger/buse, and the Dannebrog flortly after the battle blew up.

"Belides the injury which the enemy evidently furtained, I am convinced that their loss in men and in their flaips.

was very confiderable. And the advantage of the conquer-ors confift only in ufeless ships, in cannon mostly spiked, and powder thrown overboard.

The number of the killed and wounded cannot as yet be given; but I suppose it may amount to 1600 or 1800 men. Among the killed, I am grieved to name the Commanders of the ship Infolstretten, and the frigate Cronenburg, Capt. Kurab, and First Lieut. Hauch, with several other brave officers. Among the wounded is F. Brain, the Commander of the Dannebrog, who has loft his right hand.

"I want language to express my fense of the unexampled bravery of the officers and crews. The battle itself can alone describe it.

OLFERT FISCHER.

LIFFORD, [Ireland] April 7. Nopper Tandy's trial is over. After teveral artempts to put off the trial were refused by the Court, Mr. Tandy's counsel threw up their brief. Mr. Tandy then addreffed the Court in a fhort but impressive speech, avowing every thing fer forth in the indicament, and faid his heart disdained a falsehood.

Judge Chamberlain begged he would weigh well the confequence of fuch a declaration; that fentence of death must instantly follow.

Mr. Tandy answered he was not afraid to meet death in any shape; he knew well the awful sentence of the law-he was ready to receive it with the refignation of a Christian, and with the firmness and fortitude of a man. The Judge (Chamberlain) then passed sentence, which is to take place the 4th of next month.

15 We have fince learned that Mr. TANDY has been pardoned, by his Britannic Majesty.

of Egyptian Affairs. PARIS, MARCH 24. A packet has arrived at Tou-lon from Egypt, which it left the 4th of February; and brings dispatches from Gen Menou, at Cairo, to 25th January. The Justice and Egyptienne frigates, with troops, arms, &c. arrived at Alexandria from Toulon, in January. The French army is well fed, clothed, paid and d sciplined; and retain their ancient enthufiasm. The Egyptians are friendly to the French, and pay their taxes with exactness. Mourad Bey con-tinues faithful and amicable; and Djezzar Pacha refufes to acknowledge the anthority of the Commander in Chief, the Grand Vizier, whose army is wasting by famine, fickness and discontent. Commerce begins to flourish both in the Mediterranean and Red-Sea ports. The French manufacture cloth, hats, dimities, filks, excellent handkerchiefs, wax-eard'es, beer, and leather. Some coffee plantations are already laid out:

Lord NELSON, to afk the particular object of fending the flag of truce." No. III. " Lord NELSON's object in fending the flag of truce, was humanity ! he therefore consents that hostilities shall cease, and that the wounded Danes may be taken on thore, and Lord NELSON will take his prisoners out of the vessels, and burn or carry off his prizes, as he mall think fit. " Lord NELSON, with humble duty to his Royal Highness the Prince of Denmark, will consider this the greatest victory he ever gained, if it may be the cause of a happy Reconciliation and Union, between his own most gracious Sovereign, and his Majesty the King of Denmark.

(Signed) " NELSON and BRONTE." " On hoard his Msjesty's thip Elephant, Capenhagen " Roads, April 2, 1801.

So late as the 8th inflant, the Truce granted by Lord Notes a hed not hermbroken, and the most languine hopes were entertained that the dispute with Denmark would be amicably adjusted.

Thole who efficient the importance of the naval triamph at Copenhagen by the Danish official rhodomontade, have only to be told that the Abbe Steves, at Berlin, on learning the news of the important wiftory obtained by Lord NELSON over the French fleet ar Aboukir, confoled himself by carelessly saying :- " Very well-we have only loft timber and men."

PARTICULARS Relating to the battle off Copenhagen, not before published.

Not one of the shot fired on the sleet on passing the Sound, touched a ship. The Swedish batteries at Hel-Engburg did not fire a gun. The squadron under Lord; NELSON confifted of the Edgar, 74; Ardent, 64 Monarch, 74; Glatton, 54; Elephant, 74; Ganges, 74; Polyphemus, 64; Defiance, 74; Ruffell, 74; Bellona, 74; Ifis, 50, and Agamemnon, 64; and La Defiree, 44; Amazon, 38; Blanche, 36; and Alc-mene, 32, frigates. The Danish line of defence was manned with 12,000 foldiers and failors. The Agamemnon, Ruffell, Bellona, Elephant and Defree got on ground, owing to the difficulty of the navigation .-The first article of the truce was respecting the delivery of a 74 gun floating battery, which after firiking, hoisted her colours. The Danish officers, in an interview with Lord NELSON, denied the had ever flruck; Lord NEL-son replied, "Upon my honour the did," and added, "if she was not immediately given up to the boats, he would haul down the slag of truce." The Danish officers faid, "they wished to treat with Lord NELSON in person." "I am Lord NELSON," replied the hero, fee, here is my fin."—At the same time throwing aside his green dreadnought, shewing the slump of his right arm, and exposing also his three stars. The ship was immediately given up. A letter from an officer on board the Ganges, fa s, "Our prizes being chiefly hulks, and their hulls most marvellously shot to pieces, we shall be obliged to destroy the most of them; but there are eleven fine new feventy-fours in the harbour, which we must foon have." The following is a list of the Danish ships taken, viz. Wagrier, 50 guns; Albestein, 64; Rensberg, 34; Jutland, 50; Cronenberg, 26; Spereris, 18; Shark, 28; Charlotte Amelia, 96; Holftein, 64; Sea-Horfe, 20, and Provesteen, 64; belides I funk, I burnt; and I funk, I burnt, 1 destroyed aground, fince.

Miscellaneous Articles.

LONDON, APRIL 18. The correspondence between England and France still goes on - Disparches from Paris, it is faid, have been received by Government this morning.

Sweden it is faid, has fignified her disposition to negociate: the death of the Emperor PAUL, it is supposed, has operated not a little to effect this change in the politics of the Court of Stockholm. The Danish troops are reported to have evacuated Hamburgh, of which sown it is expected the Prussians will take possession, as, according to the last accounts, they continued to occupy a part of the Electorate of Hanquer. Some hopes, wever, are entertained, that the late events at Copenhaven, as well as the change of politics which is suppost-

Archduke Charles's army, which was expected to take | ed to have taken place at Petersburgh, will have some effect in moderating the claims of the Court of Berlin.

PARIS, APRIL 14. The death of the Emperor PAUL has caused the most lively fensation throughout this capital : Moraliss commiserate the fate of a Prince, who had purchased with several years of absolute submission, the right of reigning some time longer. Politicians affert that his demife will have a confiderable influence on the future doctinies of Europe; this is merely conjectural, and does not so immediately concern the Republic of France.

LONDON, APRIL 17. Our readers will recollect that in March, Lord HAWKSBURY, in a note to the Swedish Baron VON EHRENSWARD, on the subject of the Northern Confederacy, faid, " His Majesty has already repeated his determined and unalterable Refolution to infift upon the acknowledgement of the principles of those maritime rights which have stood the test of ages, and have been confidered the best fecurity for the JUST RIGHTS and privileges, as well of NEUTRAL as belligerent powers." As this declaration was made before the events of the Emperor's death, and the Copenhagen battle, it cannot be supposed that Great-Britain will now recede from it; and of course, if the Northern Rowers perfift in their system, the war in the North is not so near a termination as many imagine.

APRIL 18. One cannot be surprised that the defenders of the Northern Confederacy, now happily dead of an apoplexy, should seek consolation under that circumflance and the calamity which has happened to their friends in Copenhagen. We think, however, that they lean upon a reed, if they have no better hopes than those affigned in their leading paper yesterday upon an expression in the Ukase of the new Emperor of Russia. This Prince avows his intention to follow the system of Catharine the Second; he will therefore, fays this print. forbear taking any decifive part in the quarrel of France and other European powers.

Now we are compelled to bid the Opposition despain their charm, for certainly the Czar ALEXANDER deer not mean that he will follow the fystem abandoned by the late Empress; but the system upon which she was afting when death put an end to her glorious reign .-Had they possessed, as upon a former occasion, a Repre fentative of Opposition at the Court of St. Peterfburgh they would have known that her Majesty had agreed to march forty thousand troops against the Republicans, and that this army was only the vanguard of the forces the had determined to employ in the suppression of the revolutionary principles and unprincipled ambition which threatened every power in Europe. It will be no eafy matter, therefore, to convince any man, that to follow her fyshem is to forbear taking any decisive part in the quarrels of Europe.

The only courts in Europe which go in mourning for the death of PAUL I. are those of Berlin and Paris.

CONNECTIOUT. CONNECTION I. HARTFORD, May 18.
The amount election of this Steme was bolden Thursday last .- The House choic CALVIN Gon DARD, Elq. Speaker. A fermon was delivered before the Executive and Legislative bodies, by the Rev. Dr. 1 TRUMBULL, of North-Haven. The voice for Go. vernor were counted, when the whole number was found to be 13.307; of which His Excellency JONATHAN TRUMBULL, Efq. had 12,156—Mr. LAW, the Candidate proposed by the Wallingsford, thanksgiving caucus, had only 1056 For Lieutenant Governor JOHN TREADWELL, Eig. bad 9366, of 1347 Ephraim Kirby, Esq. the Jacobin candidate had 2038. The old Afficants had an equally honorable support, as had ANDREW KINGSBURY, Elq. Treasurer; and SAMUEL WYLLYS, Eig. Secretary.

In no one instance within our recollection, has this anniversary produced more marks of sincere and substanion. The re-election of ALL the officer of government, by a number of votes altogether unexampled, after such violent, and indecent attempts, to ren der them odious to their fellow-citizens, and at a time, when if ever, it was to be feared, that the public mind might become in a degree bewildered, is a lessen to jacobins, which must certainly have some tendency to make them despair of revolutionizing Connecticut. They will learn at least, that the people of the State have not looked with an indifferent eye, upon their attempts to Subvert their government, under the cloak of " Thankfgivings," and civic feafts. At the present election, all honest men shewed figns of unfeigned pleasure at the complete success of federalism in Connecticut, over the children of democracy; as well as at the high proof of the attachment of the citizens to their "fleady habits." The concourfe of people was unufally great, and the numbers and appearances of the Clergy, have not been at any time more respectable, and venerable. It gave univerfal pleafure to fee fo many of these pious, and worthy men at a festival, which is never more honored than by their general attendance.-At the fame time, let not the people suppose themselves secure, unless the vigilant spirit which is now so happily awake, can be kept awake. Beings, which have every thing to gain, and nothing to lose, will forever be bold, and industrious; and they are too often successful. LET THIS TRUTH NOT BE FORGOTTEN.

A melancholly event occurred at Bedbam on Monday last. Two young persons, (Mr. Jason Fairbanks, and Mils Eliza Fales) of that place, who for some time have had a warm attachment to each other, but which unhappily received obstructions, met by appointment in a thicket adjacent to her father's house, in the afternoon of that day. soon after Fairbanks appeared at Mr. Fales', covered with blood, and shewing a bloody knife to one of the family faid, it was the knife with which Eliza had killed herfelf that she then lay dead in the thicket, and that he had attempted to destroy himself, but was unable. The relatives of the young lady haltened to the spot, and found her wel-tering in blood, speechless and expiring.—Her body was much mangled, having been stabbed in several places, her arm and hand were wounded, and her throat cut in a most shocking manner. Her cries were heard near a quarter of a mile by some of her semale acquaintance. Her companion, though he walked to the house, had his throat cut, and various stabs in his breast, bowels, &c. He is, however, yet alive; and was on Thursday committed to gaol, to take his trial in August next. The rumains of the young lady were interred on Wadnefiley last. Before May 23
